JAPAN UPHELD; LEAGUE INQUIRY REFUSED CHINA

Empire's Stand Toward Restoration of Peace Accorded Favor.

NEW BASIS OF APPEAL DECLARED NECESSARY

Delegate of Republic Claims Invasion Has Made Direct Negotiation Impossible.

Geneva, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The council of the League of Nations approved Japan's attitude toward the problem of restoring peace in Manchuria tonight and found itself unable to accept China's plea for an immediate inquiry b an impartial commission.

Its attitude was adopted after two hours' debate in the face of Japan's declared unwillingness to submit to league intervention, but after Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japanese spokesman, had announced his government's purpose to complete the withdrawal of troops, already begun, and to do nothing to aggravate the situation in the troubled area.

Viscount Cecil, the British representative, apparently expressed the council's position when he said that according to Article 11 of the league covenant, under which the Chinese appealed, the council had done its duty in procuring these measures of pacification.

Chinese Move Awaited.

The problem will be kept under the council's observation for possible developments and the next move was expected to come from the Chinese.

Lord Cecil explained and the council acquiesced in his views that if China wished the league to intervene in the Manchurian affair in the face of Japanese objection, China would have to appeal under article fifteen of the covenant, which makes intervention obligatory.

Alfred Sze, the Chinese spokesman and an advocate of league intervention, indicated that China possibly would take this course and appeal over the council's head to the league assembly.

Article fifteen of the league covenant provides that "if there should arise between members of the league any dispute likely to lead to a rupture, which is not submitted to arbitration or judicial settlement in accordance with article thirteen, the members of the league agree that they will submit the matter to the council."

It further provides that the council may refer the dispute to the assembly at the request of either party.

Japanese Issue Warning.

Before Lord Cecil stated the league's apparent attitude, the Japanese spokesman warned the council not to intervene in Manchuria before the two powers had time to settle the affair themselves.

The Chinese representative immediately replied with a demand that the council supervise the Japanese troop withdrawal through a special commission.

Geneva, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—Alfred Sze, Chinese delegate to the League of Nations Council, faced his colleagues in a tense public session tonight and announced in a voice trembling with emotion that China could never accept Japan's proposals for solution of the conflict in Manchuria.

"In view of the Japanese military invasion of our territory, direct negotiations with Japan are absolutely impossible," Sze declared in rejecting the suggestions of the Japanese delegate, Kenkichi Yoshizawa, and leaving the council virtually without hope of aiding in a settlement. The council adjourned to enable its members to reconsider the deadlock.

Says Protection Sole Aim.

Previously Yoshizawa had submitted a new official note from Tokyo

Car Plunges Over Cliff; Two Unhurt

Washington Men Escape Safely in 125-Foot Fall Near Middletown, Md.

Two Washington men narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday afternoon when the automobile in which they were riding crashed through a guard rail and plunged over a 125-foot embankment on South Mountain, near Middletown, Md.

The two men, Benjamin S. Swann and his brother, Daniel J. Swann, both of 918 P street northwest, declared that they were unable to explain the accident. The former, who was driving the machine, said that he was traveling at a moderate rate of speed down a steep incline. Suddenly the steering wheel was wrenched from his hands, he said, and the car ran from the highway.

After crashing through a heavy guard-rail, Mr. Swann declared, the machine overturned and slid on its side down the embankment. The brothers climbed from their wrecked machine, which came to rest in a small stream of water, and made their way to Middletown. They suffered only slight lacerations and a passing motorist brought them to Washington.

BARBED WORDS HURLED BY DRYS AT LEGION WETS

Antisaloon Spokesman Leads War on Move for Referendum.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 25.—Wets and drys were engaged in a furious argument here today following the American Legion convention. Two things precipitated it—the legion's action yesterday in urging Congress to resubmit the prohibition question to the States for a vote on modification or repeal, and the angry statement of Dr. Clarence True Wilson, Methodist dry leader, that the convention was a "liquor orgy" and that "numbers of staggering drunks disgraced the uniform and yelled for beer."

The wets insisted that the resolution adopted yesterday was an unequivocal measure which places the legion squarely on record against prohibition. At the same time they denounced Dr. Wilson for his "staggering drunks" statement.

The drys, on the other hand, contended that the legion's resolution was "puerile and meaningless" in that it failed to make any specific recommendation with regard to modification or repeal.

Henry L. Stevens, of North Carolina, the new national commander of the legion, said that he did not believe that "the legion has taken the wet side."

"By adopting the resolution," he said, "the legion merely called for a popular expression of opinion on the prohibition question by the citizens of the United States."

Answering the statement of Dr. Wilson, executive secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, Commander Stevens said:

"There were fewer drunks at this convention than I have ever seen at any convention. A million of us have stood up for our Constitution and still support it."

Other influential legionnaires who rank high in national politics can-

Possible Bruening Visit To America Discussed

(Associated Press.)

The possibility that Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, of Germany, might visit this country was discussed yesterday at the State Department.

Undersecretary Castle said the chancellor would be cordially welcomed if he desired to come to the United States, but that the State Department had not heard that he desired to make the trip.

"There has been no suggestion of it whatever except in the press," he said.

P. U. C. ORDERS NEW VALUATION ON GAS PLANTS

Ruling Takes Companies by Surprise at Time of Low Prices.

MUST FILE FIGURES BY NEXT FEBRUARY 1

Marks Victory for Citizens in Rate Problem; Probe of Control Pushed.

Valuation of the Washington and Georgetown Gas Light Companies was ordered yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission.

The commission's decision came in the midst of a proceeding to discover the true ownership of the Washington Gas Light Co., which owns the Georgetown company, although the valuation order was issued independently of the ownership inquiry.

Determination of the commission to put an official value on the properties of the gas companies marked the victorious end of a long fight by consumers, led by William McK. Clayton, veteran chairman of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Undesired by Companies.

It was a particularly unpalatable dose at this time to the representatives of the nationally powerful utilities interests which own and operate the local gas companies, who had given no indication that they were ready to seek a formal valuation at this time.

They found small comfort in the situation which will mean a valuation at a period when prices are at their lowest level in years, and this low price level will inevitably find reflection in the valuation which is to be fixed by the commission under the reproduction new theory which has been developed and insisted on by the utilities during the period of rising prices which worked to boost valuation totals.

The commission fixed next February 1 as the date by which the owners of the companies must file with it their claim of value. It also ordered that it be furnished "in detail" with information showing the rates of depreciation applied to the various classes of property owned by the companies.

Dismiss Former Proceedings.

Simultaneous with its valuation order the commission formally dismissed the old gas valuation proceedings, initiated by the former owners of the gas company in 1928, but which was dropped when George A. G. Wood, president of the company, came to Washington to run the company for the new owners.

The valuation of the gas company never has been definitely fixed. The valuation placed by the utilities commission immediately after it was created, which was announced as of December 31, 1914, was challenged by the gas as well as other local utilities. That challenge, dormant through the years, still was pending when the last proceedings were initiated before the commission.

The valuation fixed by the first commission was $8,800,000 for the Washington and $775,000 for the Georgetown company, which was then an operating company with its own production plant.

Kept Record of Improvements.

With this original valuation, though it never was made to stick legally, the commission has kept track of

ELECTION ON OCT. 28 EXPECTED IN BRITAIN

MacDonald to Lead National Government on Tariff Issue, Is Belief.

London, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—Dissolution of Parliament and a general election about October 28 appeared tonight to be assured.

Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, who returned unexpectedly today for conferences with the cabinet on the political situation, was reported to have decided to appeal to the country as the head of the so-called "national government." An official announcement is expected after the prime minister sees King George, who returns from Balmoral Tuesday.

The Laborite Daily Herald will say tomorrow that MacDonald surrendered to Conservative party pressure to hold a general election next month. Previously the prime minister had strongly warned against the danger of risking the coalition cabinet's economy program in an appeal to voters at present.

MacDonald, heading a coalition of Conservatives and Liberals, will oppose the Labor party, which he formerly led to power, in the election. He will seek a strong parliamentary majority to enable the cabinet to put through its revenue tariff proposals.

Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, and Sir Herbert Samuel, acting Liberal leader, will confer with him Sunday at Chequers. David Lloyd George, Liberal leader and former prime minister, probably will not be able to participate in the election because of illness.

The uneasiness aroused by unemployed demonstrations at Liverpool, Birmingham and several Scottish cities mounted as policemen clashed with a crowd of 30,000 at Dundee. A

Crew of Spanish Vessel Arrested in Wage Row

Ferrol, Spain, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—All sailors with the exception of engineers aboard a Spanish battleship anchored in the harbor were arrested today in their own quarters.

It was learned that the men were arrested as result of telegrams sent to the naval minister protesting against increases in salary granted to engineers of the ship.

Patent Suit Seeks DO-X Confiscation

Crew, Pilot, Officers and General Motors Named in Infringement.

New York, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—The giant German flying boat, DO-X, survivor of fire and storm in its 10-month crossing of the Atlantic, became the subject today of a patent infringement suit. Isaac Schafran and Jacob Thaler started action in Federal court to have the air liner confiscated and its profits and those of its crew accounted for on the ground the plane's builders, operators and owners infringed patents held by them.

General Motors Corporation is one of the defendants, which also include all members of the crew, the Dornier Co. of America, Lieut. Clarence Schildhauer, U. S. N., pilot; Capt. Wolfgang van Gronau and the Dornier Metall Bauten G. M. B. H.

Damages amounting to three times the DO-X unrevealed profits also were asked. Counsel for Schafran declared the patent alleged to have been infringed was issued to his client, an inventor, who assigned a half interest to Thaler for financial assistance.

Flier Trio Saved From Sea Reaches New York by Boat

Rody, Johanssen and Veiga, Forced Down by Lack of Fuel on Lisbon to U. S. Hop, Undaunted; Portuguese Critically Ill.

New York, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Three European airmen who waited seven days for death in a disintegrating plane on the surface of the North Atlantic, came into port today smiling.

"We'll try again next spring," said Willy Rody, 20, as he stood with Christian Johanssen, beside the hospital bed of Fernando Costa Viega, third member of the party whom the battering of mighty waves affected most.

Rody, a rollicking German lad, said that despite an ordeal which included hunger, gnawing thirt and near despair, he and his companions were confident they could span the North Atlantic nonstop from East to West, a feat accomplished only thrice thus far.

Viega, a Portuguese sportsman, was near death from fever when the motorship Belmoira on September 21, picked them out of the wreckage of the plane Esa, in which they had flown from Portugal to a point 80 miles off Cape Race. Like the other two, his feet were swollen from dangling for a week in icy water, and his knee was infected from a scrape suffered as a mighty wave tossed the wreckage almost on its side.

But as the liner Stavangerfjord, to which they were transferred at sea, steamed up the bay, he smiled weakly and stammered a few words in Portuguese, indicating that he'd fly the ocean yet.

Johanssen, who is a former German war pilot of Danish blood, told most of their story, for he alone knows English.

Taking off from Juncal do Sol September 13, in an all-metal Junkers once owned by Charles Levine, they flew through a pleasant day into a night of howling horror.

Winds buffeted their craft cruelly, thunder growled through the pitch darkness and as they fought upward

Traylor Indorsed For Next President

Kentucky Farmers Call Chicago Banker Moses of 1932 Fight.

Columbia, Ky., Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Melvin A. Traylor, of Chicago, was indorsed for President of the United States today by farmer folk of the foothills of Kentucky. He left here 32 years ago, a penniless youth, and achieved fame in national and international finance.

President of the First National Bank of Chicago, Traylor was eulogized by his boyhood friends as a "Moses" destined to lead the Nation and the world out of the valley of economic depression. A crowd estimated by leaders of the rally at from 3,000 to 5,000 gathered in a grove at the Columbia Fair Grounds for the rally.

Traylor's boyhood acquaintance, James Garnett, Louisville, presided and said: "We are asked whether he is wet or dry. While I am not authorized to speak for him, I am persuaded to believe Mr. Traylor will assume that the eighteenth amendment will remain in the Constitution as long as the thirteenth is a part of it."

Many Children Injured As Wind Razes School

Richmond, Ind., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Four children were injured critically and 88 others suffered bumps or slight bruises when a severe windstorm caused the roof of the grade school at Boston, near here, to collapse into the second floor today.

Janice Williams was believed by hospital authorities here to have suffered injuries which will prove fatal. Billy Holder, 14; Lawrence Weller and Ruth Daugherty, all under 14 years old, also were believed to be hurt seriously.

First Snows of Winter Fly in New England

Concord, N. H., Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Winter came to New Hampshire during the night. When the sun rose today, Mount Washington and the Presidential Range were found glistening beneath a blanket of snow. In some sections the snow was 8 inches deep.

Vanishing Tanker Sought Off Coast

Ship Disappears Suddenly Near Highland Light; Guards Lead Hunt.

North Truro, Mass., Sept. 25 (U.P.).—A small, unidentified tanker disappeared with mysterious abruptness off here today, and Coast Guard boats were dispatched to the spot where it was last seen in an effort to learn the fate of the craft and its crew.

Headed south, the tanker was sighted off Race Point at 9 a. m., and off here about noon. The lookout at Highland Light Signal Station saw the vessel at 12:20 p. m., but twenty minutes later it had disappeared and an alarm was sent to Coast Guard bases.

The tanker could not have steamed out of sight in the twenty-minute interval, station attaches said.

DISCUSSION OF TAX INCREASE GROWING

Reed Again Lays Sales Levy Before Hoover; Capper Criticizes Plan.

(Associated Press.)

The question of new taxes, that breeder of congressional conflict, has come to command increased attention in the administration.

It was up yesterday between President Hoover and Senator Reed, as well as between the senator and his fellow Pennsylvanian, Secretary Mellon.

Over their charts and diagrams, meanwhile, worked the Government fiscal experts, intent upon devising a way out of the financial doldrums for the Treasury.

More and more there seems to be talk of how tax revenue should be increased now, instead of whether it should. That was the case yesterday. Moreover, the sales tax idea dominated the discussion.

It can be said on high authority that President Hoover has not made up his mind as to tax legislation at the coming congressional session. He will rely on what the Treasury evidence shows to guide him.

Senator Reed, who seldom differs with the White House or Treasury on fiscal matters, emphasized his advocacy of a sales tax.

Out in Burlington, Kans., another Republican, Senator Capper, let a county fair crowd know he opposed such a tax.

"Unthinkable," was the way Senator

Capone's Brother Again Loses Income Tax Plea

Chicago, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Ralph Capone, elder brother of "Scarface Al," and a public enemy in his own right, was today refused a rehearing of his income tax evasion case by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Capone, sentenced in the Federal district court to serve three years in Leavenworth and fined $10,000, now has but one recourse left in his effort to escape punishment. A writ of supersedeas from the Supreme Court would permit Capone to retain his freedom until the high court could act on his case. He has previously heard the Court of Appeals uphold his conviction.

Alfonso and Cousin Unite To Regain Spanish Throne

Fontainebleau, France, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—Exiled King Alfonso, tumbled from the Spanish throne last April by a republican uprising, began a tea-table campaign today to regain his lost crown.

Alfonso has achieved a reconciliation with his cousin, Prince Don Jaime of Bourbon, the Carlist pretender to the Spanish throne, and the two royalists have signed a secret document agreeing to unite all monarchist forces "when the time comes."

The agreement was believed to have greatly strengthened the position of Alfonso, inasmuch as it would unite all Spanish monarchists behind him in the event an opportunity comes for a successful royalist movement in Spain, which is remote at present. The agreement also strengthens the future chances of Don Juan, the third son of Alfonso, who has been the choice of both pretenders for the throne in case their own efforts are unsuccessful.

King Alfonso and Don Jaime, whose great-grandfather was the founder of the Carlist movement in Spain a century ago, had never spoken to each other until this week. Two days ago they met secretly in Don Jaime's Paris apartment, where they were reconciled and where Don Jaime agreed to support Don Juan for the throne.

Today Don Jaime returned the visit as a luncheon guest at the comparatively modest residence of the Spanish royal family at Fontainebleau. Outwardly, the luncheon was significant only for the fact that the two rival branches of the Bourbon house had been brought together, but it was more than a mere gesture. They discussed the possibility of monarchist intervention in Spain, the stability of the present Republican regime and the question of monarchical influence in the forthcoming elections.

Later they agreed to aid each other in the event of monarchist action in Spain. Alfonso has never actually abdicated the Spanish throne, although it has been known that his chief hopes recently centered on the possibility of putting Don Juan into power either by royalist influence in the Spanish elections or otherwise.

HOOVER URGES HALT IN DRAIN ON U. S. FUNDS

Asks Cessation of Direct Pressure and Inroads in Emergency.

LAUDS LEGIONNAIRES ON DEFEAT OF BONUS

Appeals for Subversion of Sectional Interests in Times of Stress.

(Associated Press.)

A moratorium on demands upon Congress for increased expenditures, at least until times are better, was requested yesterday by President Hoover.

He urged emphatically a cessation of the "direct pressure" and "propaganda" which he said are annually loosed upon Congress in behalf of this or that measure, whether meritorious or not.

Instead, he said, there should be a subversion of sectional interest to the common good.

Standing behind the broad desk in his private office, the President, at his semiweekly press conference, stated the details of his request swiftly, but without raising his voice.

Praises Legion's Stand.

He praised particularly the American Legion's antibonus action as a meritorious example of what he sought.

The Legion, he asserted, had set "an example to other voluntary bodies in the country in its determination to make no request of the next Congress" in December.

The President's statement was directed not only at projects perennially lobbied for in Washington, but causes advanced by individuals and other groups.

Most of the demands on Congress, Mr. Hoover pointed out, come from voluntary associations, some of them group interests and some business.

He cited as an example an analysis of 271 bills introduced in the last Congress, all of them rejected, which asked for appropriations over a ten-year period of nearly $17,000,000,000.

Urges Decreasing Expenses.

Speaking of groups again, he said: "We are all familiar with the energies they show both in direct pressures upon Congress and the administration and the propaganda which they carry on in the country to induce citizens to exert their individual influence in the massing up of pressures.

"This is a time when they should emulate the American Legion in standing with what is the wish of the administration and the great majority of representatives and senators—that is, not to increase, but to decrease, the expenditures of the Federal Government."

The President, who addressed the American Legion in Detroit last Monday on the same subject, said many resolutions recommending expenditures already had reached his office. His statement in full follows:

"The American Legion has set an example to other voluntary bodies in the country in its determination to make no requests of the next Congress.

Groups Exert Pressure.

A very large part of the pressure for increase in expenditures of the Federal Government arises from the action of voluntary associations, whether they be group interests, sectional interests, business, or a thousand other activities in the country.

"This office is already the recipient of many resolutions recommending expenditures and undertakings by the Government at the next session. I have no doubt that members of Congress are receiving them also.

"Every one in Washington is familiar with the process by which such bodies, often with meritorious projects, instruct their representatives in Washington to promote these activities to the administration and Congress. We are all familiar with the energies they show both in direct pressures upon Congress and the administration and the propaganda which they carry on in the country to induce citizens to exert their individual influence in the massing up of pressures.

Should Emulate Legion.

"This is a time when they should emulate the American Legion in standing with what is the wish of

Mrs. Wimbley No. 3 Tells Of Marriage Last April

Worked in Census Bureau and Gave Her Pay Envelope to Husband, Washington Detective Is Told at Woman's Home in Missouri.

The story of a 22-year-old country girl who yielded to the ardent wooing of a former soldier, now charged with murder, was recounted yesterday by Detective Sergeant Robert J. Barrett when he returned from Cassville, Mo., after having interviewed Ida May Graves Wimbley.

She is the third wife of Harry C. Wimbley, alleged murderer of a previous wife, Elizabeth T. Wimbley, and her 3-year-old daughter, Wilma, who were drowned September 17, when their canoe capsized in the C. & O. Canal.

Miss Graves—or Mrs. Wimbley—told how she met her future husband at a Walter Reed Hospital dance last February. He was introduced to her as Mr. Wimbley, she said, but he later confided that he had discarded that name for Dickerson, after receiving a dishonorable discharge from the Marine Corps.

The courtship continued until April, when the young Missouri woman said, Wimbley insisted that they get married. She assented and the ceremony was performed in Rockville, Md.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Wimbley, their union unknown to the wife now dead, rented an apartment at 301 C street northwest and there they lived quite happily, Miss Graves said, with her husband staying home to do the housework while she held her position at the Census Bureau.

During the time they were together he worked only two days, when he sold radio accessories on commission. Miss Graves declared that she turned over her pay envelopes to her husband.

It was on the Monday prior to the double drowning, Sergt. Barrett was told, that she left Washington for Cassville to visit her family after Wimbley had borrowed $200 from an unknown source for her railroad fare.

WAGE CUTS DECRIED BY HOOVER AID CHIEF

Gifford Says Scale Should Be Upheld, if Possible; Relief Planned.

(Associated Press.)

In the face of wage slashes by large steel corporations, the president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., yesterday reaffirmed his position that industry should strive to maintain existing pay levels.

Walter S. Gifford now serving as national relief director, reiterated that "we ought to make every effort to maintain the wage scale."

Shortly afterward it was learned the administration has no intention of reviving the war-time Council of National Defense to rule industry in the present economic depression.

The American Legion convention at Detroit urged this step as proposed by Howard Coffin former member of the council. President Hoover feels, however, the Gifford organization is amply able to coordinate relief activities without resorting to more drastic measures.

The President is not of the opinion the country will reach the situation experienced at the time the council was created. He feels action, not advice, is needed and is being provided by the Gifford organization.

Cuts Still Objectionable.

Meanwhile, the chairman of the Republican national committee gave further credence to the belief that wage reductions still were objectionable to the administration.

In Springfield, Mass., Senator Fess, of Ohio, the national chairman, deplored recent pay actions of some industrial corporations and said he feared the downward movement may have no limit.

Only a few hours earlier Secretary Doak broke the silence of President Hoover's Cabinet on wages by describing the pay cuts as "deplorable." The Labor Department chief added that apparently they "could not be avoided."

Mr. Gifford declined to elaborate on his wage statement of last April. In advocating maintenance of wage scales then he pointed out "the present scale would be equivalent to a large increase if commodity prices and the cost of living should stay down."

Washington officials, scrutinizing the growing number of pay-cut corporations, found two new companies added to the list. Ten per cent reductions were ordered by the Atlantic City & Shore Railroad Co., New Jersey, and the Nicholson File Co., of Providence, R. I.

Relief Measures Planned.

Agitation in some congressional circles for decreasing the salaries of members and Federal workers received a setback in the opposition of Senator Reed, Pennsylvania, a high-ranking Republican on the finance committee. He said such action would "eliminate the poor man from public office."

Meanwhile another major committee of the President's relief organization planned methods for effecting its share of the winter's unemployment relief problem. Under the leadership of Eliot Wadsworth, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, it will endeavor to unify into community committees the many separate organizations now handling relief work.

Mr. Gifford addressed the committee informally in a small room at his headquarters near the White House.

Agree on Neighborhood Basis.

After a two-hour session, Mr. Wadsworth's committee called upon the President and was photographed with him on the White House lawn.

"Everybody agreed the relief problem must be met on a neighborhood basis," Mr. Wadsworth said, after the meeting. "The problem can be solved locally.

"We will get behind the organization of community committees and endeavor to bring every available force into an effective unit. We don't want various organizations to set up separate committees within a community but rather to join in a central group."

Mr. Wadsworth smiled as he said: "Everybody thinks these are bad days. Well, we wouldn't want to trade them for 1918. It's not a patch on the war."

Senator Harris (Democrat), of Georgia, said he regretted to see the "steel trust and others reducing wages."

"While they are reducing wages and not reducing the prices of their products," Senator Harris said, "a representative of the Steel Institute is urging the President to repeal the antitrust laws."

Woman Is Thought 'Bluebeard' Victim

Relatives Unworried by Theory Mrs. Baldwin Slain by Powers.

South Haven, Mich., Sept. 25 (A.P.). Relatives of Mrs. Anna Baldwin, of near Hartford, Mich., who is being sought by West Virginia authorities who fear she may have been a victim of Harry F. Powers, Clarksburg (W. Va.) slayer, said tonight that they were not worrying.

Mrs. Baldwin left her farm home eight weeks ago. John Kuhn, a cousin of Mrs. Baldwin, said he received a letter from her last Saturday. He did not say where the letter was postmarked, but said it apparently had been written September 7.

Reports that Mrs. Baldwin had drawn $500 from her account in a South Haven bank before leaving home could not be verified immediately.

Statement on Manchuria By Japanese Government

Following is the complete text of the statement issued by the Japanese government concerning the Manchurian incident:

1. The Japanese government has constantly been exercising honest endeavors in pursuance of its settled policy to foster friendly relations between Japan and China and to promote the common prosperity and well-being of the two countries. Unfortunately, the conduct of officials and individuals of China, for some years past, has been such that our national sentiment has frequently been irritated. In particular, unpleasant incidents have taken place one after another in regions of Manchuria and Mongolia in which Japan is interested in especial degree until an impression has gained strength in the minds of the Japanese people that Japan's fair and friendly attitude is not being reciprocated by China in like spirit. Amidst the atmosphere of perturbation and anxiety thus created a detachment of Chinese troops destroyed tracks of the South Manchurian Railway in the vicinity of Mukden and attacked our railway guards at midnight of September 18. A clash between Japanese and Chinese troops then took place.

2. The situation became critical as the number of Japanese guards stationed along the entire railway did not then exceed 10,400 while there were in juxtaposition some 220,000 Chinese soldiers. Moreover, hundreds of thousands of Japanese residents were placed in jeopardy. In order to forestall imminent disaster the Japanese army had to act swiftly. The Chinese soldiers, garrisoned in neighboring localities, were disarmed and the duty of maintaining peace and order was left in the hands of the local Chinese organizations under the supervision of the Japanese troops.

3. These measures having been taken, our soldiers were mostly withdrawn within the railway zone. There still remain some detachments in Mukden and Kirin and a small number of men in a few other places. But nowhere does a state of military occupation as such exist. Reports that Japanese authorities have seized the customs or salt gabelle office at Yingkou, or that they have taken control of Chinese railways between Supinkai and Chengchiatun, or between Mukden and Sinmintun, are entirely untrue, nor has the story of our troops having ever been sent north of Chengchun or into Cientao any foundation in fact.

4. The Japanese government, at a special cabinet meeting, September 19, took decision that all possible efforts should be made to prevent aggravation of the situation and instructions to that effect were given to the commander of the Manchurian garrison. It is true that a detachment was dispatched from Changchun to Kirin September 21, but it was not with a view to military occupation, but only for the purpose of removing the menace to the South Manchurian Railway on flank. As soon as that object has been attained, the bulk of our detachment will be withdrawn. It may be added that while a mixed brigade of 4,000 men was sent from Korea to join the Manchurian garrison, the total number of men in the garrison at present still remains within the limit set by the treaty and that fact can not therefore be regarded as having in any way added to the seriousness of the international situation.

5. It may be superfluous to repeat that the Japanese government harbors no territorial designs in Manchuria. What we desire is that Japanese subjects shall be enabled to safely engage in various peaceful pursuits and be given an opportunity for participating in the development of that land by means of capital and labor. It is the proper duty of a government to protect the rights and interests legitimately enjoyed by the nation or individuals. The endeavors of the Japanese government to guard the South Manchurian Railway against wanton attacks would be viewed in no other light. The Japanese government, true to established policy, is prepared to cooperate with the Chinese government in order to prevent the present incident from developing into a disastrous situation between the two countries and to work out such constructive plans as will once for all eradicate causes for future friction. The Japanese government would be more than gratified if the present difficulty could be brought to a solution which will give a new turn to mutual relations of the two countries.

PLEA OF CHINESE FOR INQUIRY IS TURNED DOWN BY LEAGUE

declaring "it is superfluous to repeat that Japan has no territorial designs in Manchuria" and that she desires only to protect Japanese lives and interests. The note said Japan must guard the South Manchuria Railroad against "the wanton attacks" of Chinese, and concluded that Japan would be prepared to cooperate with China and would be grateful if the matter could be solved in a way that would benefit Sino-Japanese relations.

Alejandro Lerroux, Spanish foreign minister and president of the council, expressed the satisfaction of the council with the note, which said that Japanese troops, for the most part, had been withdrawn to points within the railroad zone.

It was generally admitted, however, that the Japanese attitude had dealt a serious blow to the efforts of the council to solve the conflict without further hostilities. Japan's demand for direct negotiations and her flat refusal of league intervention were held to be entirely unacceptable to China.

Fighting Is Resumed.

The Chinese have worked for three years to win membership in the council for the primary purpose of using that membership in efforts to settle their long-standing disputes with Japan.

Tokyo, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Sporadic guerrilla fighting took place in Manchuria today as Japanese troops held positions within the South Manchurian Railway zone seized Saturday after clashes with Chinese soldiery.

Fighting occurred an Fenghwangcheg between Japanese troops and 300 convicts who escaped from the Manchurian prison there, 80 miles from the Korean border, said dispatches to the Rengo News Agency.

A Japanese battalion was reported dispatched to Taonan to protect Japanese residents, who appealed for aid against Chinese troops they asserted had looted the town. The Chinese fled before the Japanese soldiers reached Taonan.

Harbin Declared Terrified.

Harbin, metropolis of Manchuria, said Rengo dispatches, was thrown into confusion and its inhabitants terrified by the dynamiting of the Japanese Residents Association and the Cultural Association. Little damage was done.

The Japanese government announced yesterday it had no territorial ambitions in Manchuria and simply wished to protect its subjects and their interests, including the South Manchurian Railway.

In pursuance of this policy Japanese troops were reported withdrawn into the railway zone. It was an attack upon railway bridge guards near Mukden by Chinese troops, the Japanese asserted, which precipitated the occupation of numerous towns in the zone by Japanese troops.

Peiping, China, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Chang Hsueh-Liang, governor of Manchuria, today ordered temporary removal of the government headquarters from Mukden to Chinchow, 150 miles to the south, and appointed Chang Tso Hsiang, governor of Kirin Province, to take charge of the Manchurian troops beyond the great wall.

Peiping Remains Quiet.

An official Chinese communique today said Japanese airplanes were bombing Manchurian towns, including Tungliao, northwest of Mukden, and the Peiping-Mukden Railway as far south as Kaopangtze. The communique denied a report that Gen. Honjo, commanding the Japanese forces in Manchuria, had sent a delegate to Peiping inviting the Manchurian governor to return to Mukden.

Peiping remains quiet despite continued student agitation urging a war against Japan.

Moscow, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Japanese Ambassador Hirota visited the foreign commissariat today and conversed with Maxim Litvinoff, the commissar for foreign affairs.

Hongking, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—Chinese mobs attacked Japanese citizens and shops today as a result of intense nationalistic protests against occupation of Manchuria.

Police riot squads were called out repeatedly to protect the Japanese, and it was unsafe for them to appear on the streets. Previously large placards had been posted through the city urging Chinese to attack Japanese. Two British subjects aiding a Japanese marine captain were severely injured.

(United Press.)

A defense of Japan's course of action in Manchuria was presented to the State Department yesterday by Ambassador Katsuji Debuchi on behalf of his government. It came after Secretary Stimson had appealed to Japan and China to preserve the peace.

The high point of the Japanese memorandum was a declaration that it had no territorial designs in Manchuria.

Undersecretary of State William R. Castle said he viewed it as a sincere statement of the Japanese situation. It appealed to him as an indication that Japan desires to conciliate its dispute with China.

Meanwhile, the State Department received from the League of Nations a note thanking the department for its note expressing sympathy with league efforts to placate Japan and China. The league promised to keep the United States informed of future developments and made a reciprocal request for information.

AMTORG HEAD BASES TRADE ON CREDIT AID

Soviet Agent Says Products Must Be Admitted to This Country.

New York, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Just back from Moscow, Peter A. Bogdanov, head of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, said today that Russia would continue to buy goods in this country only if the Soviet was allowed to markets here and if better credit was provided.

The man who does all the buying in this country for the Soviet gave a glowing account of conditions in Russia, and only laughed when told of the black verbal pictures of his country painted recently by some returning tourists.

"The carrying out of the five-year plan in four years is now assured," he asserted. "Intensive preparations already are under way for the drafting of a second five-year plan, which will carry further the building up of Soviet national economy and the improvement of the cultural and living conditions of the people.

"The campaign directed against the admission of Soviet products into the United States, based on the wholly unfounded grounds of dumping and employment of forced labor, must stop," he said, "if America wants to have a continued interest in Soviet business."

"What we would like from America," he said, "is a credit guarantee of $100,000,000 or $150,000,000. If the Government will not put it up, some group of bankers ought to. Germany, in spite of her financial problems, has provided such a guarantee because she knows the value of business from the Soviet.

"Then we would like a credit arrangement whereby we had 22 to 30 months after delivery to pay, with no cash during the first year."

He pointed to orders of $113,000,000 placed in Germany during the first half of 1931, a 95 per cent increase over the same period last year, and said they were a direct result of the favorable credit terms accorded to the Soviet.

He was told many travelers had returned from Russia, with stories of how the average family there had no meat, butter, milk and such food.

"It is not because we are exporting great quantities of such goods, in spite of reports to that effect," Mr. Bogdanov said. "Our exports of dairy products now are only 10 to 15 per cent of what they were before the revolution.

"Then only the upper classes had such food. Now we are trying to give it to all. In another two years we hope to increase our production of such foodstuff 50 per cent. Eventually there will be meat and butter and milk for all."

He said the second five-year plan would be followed by a third and the Soviet would always have a plan of some sort.

Salt Lake City, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Legislation barring immigration of Communists and protecting American industry from competition with Russian goods was advocated here tonight by Senator Reed Smoot.

Speaking at a chamber of commerce banquet, Senator Smoot declared Communist groups in the United States are taking advantage of the present unemployment to spread their doctrines of opposition to the Government.

False Shot Report Nets Race Layout

Police Seeking Gun Victim Find Elaborate Gaming Equipment.

Responding to a report of a shooting at 908 D street northwest last night, police of the First Precinct found an elaborate bookmaking establishment after gaining the rear entrance by means of a ladder. A glass door with a black paint covering in the front of the building led to a large iron door which balked entrance in the front.

On entering the building all the paraphernalia necessary to carry on extensive bookmaking was found. Telephone connections to the track and numerous scratch sheets were discovered by police.

The report of a shooting was apparently false, as no one was found on the premises. Numerous exits were discovered by police, some leading to the basement, others leading to an old theater stage the entrance of which faces on Pennsylvania avenue. The instruments found on the premises were confiscated by police and the reported shooting will be further investigated.

the administration and the great majority of representatives and senators—that is, not to increase but to decrease the expenditures of the Federal Government.

"I have before me a review from the Bureau of the Budget of 271 bills introduced into the last Congress asking for increased Federal expenditures which were referred to the executive agencies for report. These fall into two categories—those in which the total obligation is expressed in the bill, and those which would result in a continued annual obligation.

"After eliminating all duplicates the bills which were reported adversely by the administration during the Seventy-first Congress amounted to $4,900,000,000 of the first category and an annual expenditure in the second category of $1,200,000,000. Taking only a ten-year period, this latter category would amount to an expenditure of some $12,000,000,000, or a total of nearly $17,000,000,000.

"The main interest in this table is the fact that it discloses how largely these bills arise from pressures of group and sectional interests. Unless there is a general recognition that this is no time for such activities these same pressures will again arise.

"It is important that there should be a great effort on the part of organizations of our country to express their disapproval of such expenditures now even though the projects may be the most meritorious. They should be withheld until the country is in better condition."

Gas Company Employ Hurt.

Robert I. Jillson, 26-year-old employe of the Washington Gas Light Co., suffered injuries to the hip and ankle yesterday when he fell between two steel plates while working at Twelfth and M streets southeast. His condition was said to be satisfactory at Providence Hospital. Mr. Jillson lives at 407 Eleventh street southeast.

Kin of Lady Astor Sues C. H. Huston

Payment Sought for Damage to Home Leased to Former G.O.P. Chief.

New York, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Claudius H. Huston, former chairman of the national Republican committee, is being sued by Mrs Carey Langhorne, wife of a cousin of Lady Astor, for alleged damages to the furnishings of a house rented in Washington.

The suit was revealed today when Supreme Court Justice Irwin Untermyer signed an order permitting papers in the case to be served on a substitute for Mr. Huston Counsel informed the court efforts to serve Mr. Huston had been unsuccessful.

The damages which Mrs. Langhorne alleges concerned her home at 1520 Twentieth street northwest, Washington, which she said was rented furnished to Mr. Huston in 1929 and 1930. The papers as filed did not specify the damages. Mrs. Langhorne is the former Zaidee F. Gaff.

PIRACY DEATH TALE HEARD BY CORONER

Widow on Stand; No Progress Toward Solution Is Seen by Attorney.

New York, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—A pale young widow, who nearly collapsed under the strain, today told publicly for the first time the strange story of the Long Island "pirate murder" of her husband, Benjamin F. Collings, Stamford, Conn., yachtsman, on the night of September 9.

The only witness of the day in a continued inquest before Coroner William B. Gibson, of Suffolk County at Huntington, Long Island, Mrs. Collings was on the stand for 2 hours 15 minutes before her slain husband's father asked for an adjournment because she appeared exhausted. The hearing was continued until tomorrow.

Tonight District Attorney Alexander G. Blue said the day's session had developed little new information.

"I am no nearer a solution of this perplexing mystery than ever," he said.

A small courtroom crowded with villagers, mostly women, heard from Mrs. Collings virtually the entire story she had related many times before to authorities. By agreement, however, she did not tell of an attack she has attributed to the elder of two men accused of throwing her husband from their cruiser and abducting her.

After adjournment of the inquest it was said Mrs. Collings would not be recalled for several days.

"I do not intend to present any portion of this case to the grand jury next week," said Blue. "When I shall present it depends upon future developments.

"Tomorrow we shall call Dr. Otto H. Schultze, who performed the autopsy on Collings. We still lack any intimation of what analysis of Collings' vital organs showed. Although I have been quoted otherwise, I have not yet been informed if he died on board the Penguin from blows of his assailants or by drowning when thrown into Long Island Sound."

Stepping down from the stand, Mrs. Collings was escorted by her attorney, William A. Kelly, to the office of Assistant District Attorney Fred G. Munder, where a long conference was held. No announcement was made afterward.

Mrs. Collings disclosed in her testimony that little Barbara, their 5-year-old daughter, saw and heard much of the tragedy and pleaded with the two men who boarded the Collings' cruiser, the Penguin, to "Leave my pap alone!" as Collings was bound and struck with a milk bottle.

"The men were strangers," Mrs. Collings said. "I am sure of that, because one of them asked my husband where he lived."

Mrs. Collings, under questioning, said she deliberately permitted the two men to abduct her in a canoe, leaving Barbara alone on the drifting Penguin, believing that by so doing she might save her husband and child.

Liquor Buyers Hit By Sheppard Plan

Father of Dry Law to Revive Bill Sharpening Amendment Teeth.

Omaha, Nebr., Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Senator Morris Sheppard, of Texas, author of the eighteenth amendment, today announced plans to resurrect in the December Congress his bills making the purchaser of liquor equally guilty with the seller, and also clarifying the Volstead act so it will not tolerate liquor-making in the home.

At the same time he expressed belief that an overwhelming majority of both the Senate and the House will be against the submission of prohibition to voters, adding that the action of the American Legion convention in favoring a prohibition referendum will not sway congressional opinion away from the amendment.

"I do not think adoption of a resolution for referendum by the American Legion convention will have any effect on the situation," Senator Sheppard said. "I was proud that Nebraska and Texas voted unanimously 'No' on the resolution."

COLOMBIA LAUNCHES RIGID GOLD CONTROL

Standard Is Maintained, but Committee Will Restrict Exchange Deals.

Bogota, Colombia, Sept. 25 (A.P.). Drastic control of foreign exchange to protect Colombia's gold preserves was proclaimed today by President Enrique Olaya Herrera.

At the same time the Bank of the Republic announced it was continuing redemption of notes under the gold exchange standard and at an exchange rate within the gold points.

The president's announcement said that temporary control of international exchanges and transfer of funds abroad was established under a committee of three members, which would have full power to restrict or prohibit the purchase and sale of gold, coin or bullion and all foreign currencies or drafts, except Bank of the Republic transactions.

The committee may permit all transactions it believes necessary to commerce and industry; it may prohibit all exchange transactions not warranted by normal economic and financial activities and all transactions considered speculative.

Redemption of notes by the Bank of the Republic is to be effected under the committee's authorization in sight drafts on New York at an exchange rate within the gold points.

The committee must sanction transfers of funds by branches or agencies of banks or business houses to their head offices or other agencies abroad.

The statement defines foreign exchange to include foreign credits in favor of persons residing in Colombia.

Paraguayan-Bolivia Pact Here May Be Delayed

Asuncion, Paraguay, Sept. 25 (U.P.). Reports tonight said the Paraguayan government had recommended that the Washington conference for drawing up a nonaggression pact between Paraguay and Bolivia be postponed until November so there will be sufficient time to prepare discussions.

It was reported unofficially that Charge d'Affaires Ynsfran in Washington will represent Paraguay at the conference.

DISCUSSION OF TAX INCREASE IS GROWING

Capper termed it, after calling Secretary Mellon sponsor of the idea.

Senator Reed, surrounded by newspapermen in the lobby of the executive offices yesterday afternoon, counted off on his fingers a summary of the Nation's financial situation:

First, new funds are absolutely necessary to offset a probable deficit of $1,500,000,000. Second, such a deficit could best be fended off by new taxes, preferably a sales tax.

"I favor following Great Britain's example of facing the music," he said. "Further tax legislation is necessary. We have been borrowing long enough."

Hoover Reaction Withheld.

The Pennsylvanian said only a part of his conversation with the President had been devoted to readvocating to him the sales tax plan. How Mr. Hoover reacted, Senator Reed did not disclose.

Nor would he predict how his proposed measure would fare in the coming Congress.

At the Capitol, Senator Glenn (Republican), Illinois, said that although he had not made a final decision, he was inclined to favor increases in the higher income tax brackets and inheritance taxes.

"Then," he said, "if the sales tax is necesary, I would want to see it limited to luxuries."

Representative Britten, also an Illinois Republican, said the administration must consider raising funds to meet a deficit in the budget, and "it appears to me that a general sales tax, a gift tax and an increase in the inheritance tax will be logical directions for relief."

Capper Aims at Wealthy.

Representative McDuffie (Democrat), Alabama, said that if a tax revision were necesary, he believed the income tax in the higher brackets should be increased and a gift tax levied.

McDuffie opposed the Reed sales tax proposal.

Addressing the fair in Kansas, Senator Capper agreed a sales tax would get revenue, but said "it takes it from the mouths and off the backs of those barely able to make a living under good conditions."

He favors placing the tax burden on persons of large incomes.

Senator Reed headed for the Treasury from the White House, being with the Secretary there for nearly an hour. They talked taxes and also about banking conditions in Pittsburgh. On leaving Senator Reed said the banks of that city were in good shape.

Here's the way the senator argues:

Cigarette Levy Cited.

"The sales tax has proved its efficiency in Canada and in France. People in this country are now paying a considerable sales tax on cigarettes without any great objection.

"Why, with a one-half of 1 per cent sales tax, a man with an income of $2,000 a year would pay only about $10 in such taxes throughout the year if he spent every cent he made on taxable articles.

"All people must contribute to the conduct of their Government."

Asked if he thought such a tax as he proposed would decrease buying, he replied that this had not been experienced in Canada or France.

A tax such as proposed by Senator Reed might be collected by the Government in a number of ways. The usual manner, however, is to have the manufacturer or the retailer pay it. In either case it would be passed on to the ultimate consumer.

dozen persons were injured in hand-to-hand fighting.

The mob used sticks and other weapons against the policemen, who charged, swinging their batons. Most of the injuries were due to the stampedes which followed the police charges. Many shop windows were smashed as the mounted police cleared the center of the city. The crowd reformed in the outskirts, however, and it was again necessary to intervene.

About 24 persons were arrested. On Wednesday night demonstrators paraded in Glasgow and other cities, burning copies of a prominent Labor Party newspaper.

The stock exchange committee announced that all dealings must be in cash in the future and that dealings could not be continued from day to day, thus eliminating all speculative trading. No dealings on margin will be possible. The exchange was less firm, with the pound sterling declining.

It was learned that the Prince of Wales discussed the political situation today with Sir Josiah Stamp, director of the Bank of England.

Lloyd George, who is convalescing in the country, was reported to be preparing a manifesto bitterly attacking the present coalition government. All the Liberal members of the government with two exceptions were prepared to resign, as well as Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, and Lord Sankey, lord chancellor.

The Daily Mail says the Conservatives have decided on a general election regardless of whether MacDonald should lead the new government. The election would bring a new alignment of parties. It adds, with the Conservatives, "National Liberals," and such Laborites as favored the tariff on one side, and the regular Laborites and Lloyd George Liberals on the other.

The Daily Express says the national government forces would adopt a platform demanding tariffs and a new industrial policy. The Conservatives are agreed, the Express added, that MacDonald should retain his premiership, and said it was likely that Snowden would get a seat in the House of Lords.

YOUNG CASTIGATES CRITICS OF LEGION

Radio Announcer Tells 5,000 at Capital Show About Detroit Session.

Taking violent exception to statements published referring to the American Legion convention at Detroit as a "drunken orgy," John S. Young, radio broadcast announcer, and Martha Atwood, opera star and legion soloist, last night electrified audiences at the Washington Radio Show by vigorous statements from the Auditorium stage.

Mr. Young was present throughout the convention meetings as announcer for the National Broadcasting Company, and he labeled recent reports as "deliberate propogandic lies." He continued by asking how a group of men who were declared to be "reeling drunks" when they passed resolutions favoring a modification of the Volstead act, could within the next half hour soberly discuss and reject a measure calling for immediate payment of balances due on adjusted compensation certificates. For this latter action they have been lauded as self-sacrificing patriots of exceptional character and judgment.

Miss Atwood echoed the remarks of Mr. Young when she appeared on the platform, and added that she had never seen a more earnest and deliberate gathering. Both referred to the previous American Legion convention in Boston, where a number of disorders took place which were at first blamed upon the legion, but afterwards proved to be the actions of hoodlums attracted to the convention city by the measure of increased liberty usually allowed on such occasions. They said that the same circumstances were present at Detroit and that what rollicking and drunkenness may have been witnessed was undoubtedly due to a similar element.

The statements came as a complete surprise to all associated with the radio show, but they were received with tremendous applause by an audience of approximately 5,000 men and women at the Auditorium.

Gen. Johnston, then commissioner, is shown in white. Also in the picture are former Chief F. J. Wagner, retired; C. E. Schrom, holding flag, captain of the company and now deputy chief; Mr. McIntosh, driver of the truck, now retired; Lieut. Bernhart, since resigned; Lieut. J. H. Davison, now of No. 5 Engine Co.; A. H. Hight, now battalion chief, and a Mr. Curtis, since retired.

The reader will note the horse-drawn hook and ladder wagon.

The fire station itself is worthy of some note. The front entrance is rather unusual in design and insignia of the Fire Department has been worked into the masonry of the walls.

DRYS ASSAIL LEGION WETS

didly admitted that there was considerable drinking. But they insisted there is also a lot of drinking at conventions of the Republican and Democratic parties.

Col. Frederick M. Alger, president of the Legion Convention Corporation, said that if Dr. Wilson had seen 90,000 men entirely sober, marching down the streets on Tuesday, he could never have made his "staggering drunks" statement.

Dr. Wilson stated in one interview in St. Joseph, Mo., and in another at Kansas City, Mo., that he was here in Detroit for two days and nights while the convention was on. Otherwise, he said, he would never have made such a statement.

The Rev. R. N. Holsaple, superintendent of the Michigan Antisaloon League, the local dry leader, who characterized the legion's resolution as "puerile and meaningless," also had something to say about the conduct of the legionnaires.

Individuals' Weighing Sought.

"It would be interetsing," said Holsaple, "to know just how many of the 1,008 delegates voting for the resolution have been contributing to the violation of the law by patronizing bootleggers. How many of them drink liquor and how many of them drank liquor during the convention?

"If the action of American Legion was taken by that minority group, which swaggered about Detroit streets for several days past, yelling and hunting for beer, and which destroyed hotel and other property and threw water out of hotel windows, drenching passersby and ruining their clothes in some instances, and otherwise bringing the more respectable element of the American Legion humiliation — if that was the case, then one need not wonder."

The Rev. Mr. Holsaple contended that the legion does not actually represent sentiment among the World War veterans, inasmuch as only about 25 per cent of the veterans are in the organization.

Clancy Makes Reply.

Representative Robert H. Clancy, wet Republican, of this city, made the following reply to the Rev. Mr. Holsaple's statement:

"Unlike most resolutions, this one has its teeth in the preamble, not in the resolution proper. The legion expressed its conviction when it declared, 'the eighteenth amendment has created a condition endangering respect for law and the security of American institutions.'

"The proposal that the Congress submit the repeal or modification of the prohibition laws to the several States with a request that each State submit the question to is voters is simply a plan for bringing to public attention the overwhelming wet sentiment of the country.

"It would simplify the issue and compel legislative action to bring back liquor."

As was reported in The Post yesterday, Representative Clancy believes that the stand of the legion, together with that of the American Federation of Labor, the American Bar Association, the American Medical Association and other national organizations, will result in a wet House in 1932.

Representative Clarence J. McLeod (wet Republican), of Michigan, believes that the legion resolution was 100 per cent wet.

So, too, does C. W. Browning, the District of Columbia delegate, who was a leader in the fight for an anti-prohibition resolution.

"The preamable of that resolution," said Mr. Browning before his departure, "must not be overlooked. It states in clean-cut language that the eighteenth amendment is a menace to American life. It means something for an organization like the American Legion to ratify such a statement by such an overwhelming vote.

"I have the original copy of the resolution in my possession. I am going to keep it. I think that some day it may be considered an historical treasure. Our action in putting the American Legion on record against prohibition may be the very push needed to put over the campaign to repeal prohibition."

While the wets and drys were quarreling today over the legion's stand, the City of Detroit, hard hit by the depression and the dole, was congratulating itself on having had the legionnaires here.

It was estimated that the veterans left $10,000,000 behind them in Detroit.

O'Neill Flies to Defense.

The retiring national commander, Ralph T. O'Neill, of Kansas, issued a statement in which he said that the statements of Dr. Wilson and Mr. Holsaple were "un-Christian-like." His statement follows in part:

"I can say with pride that not one drunk attended the sessions of our convention, either as a delegate or as a visitor. I have never witnessed a gathering where the questions were more sincerely and honestly discussed, and the sober, gentlemanly and sportsmanlike assembly of delegates is something that will long be remembered by our Detroit friends and visitors of the convention.

"We have received thousands of congratulatory messages and letters.

"I would like to quote a letter I have just received from Frank E. Fisher, secretary of the Masonic Temple Association, where our convention was held:

"'The Masonic fraternity is delighted our temple was selected as headquarters for the legion, and we bear testimony that the members of your organization, their ladies and friends, occuping our structure, were courteous and considerate. No damage was done to our building; the legion, a fine body of men, treated our property with the same consideration as their own homes.'"

Druggists Given Right To Advertise Liquor

(United Press.)

Drug stores holding permits to sell medicinal liquor were yesterday authorized by the Government to advertise that fact.

One of two signs may be displayed by druggists: "Holder of permit to fill prescriptions under the national prohibition act" or "Authorized by permit to fill prescriptions under the national prohibition act."

The new order was issued by Dr. James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol. He believed display of the signs would be a convenience to the public and would encourage druggists to obey the law. Retailers whose permits were revoked would lose a valuable advertising asset, Doran pointed out.

Beer, Being Fattening, Harmful for Farmers

—By JOHN J. DALY—

IT is known now that Secretary Hyde, of the Department of Agriculture, has started an inquiry to learn the effect of legal brewing on the farmer.

Off hand, there are many possibilities in a return of the brewing industry.

About 750,000 men and women now engaged in making ice cream and near-beer in the old discarded breweries would be thrown out of work.

The brewers' big horses would block traffic on Main street.

About sixteen great national organizations would fold up and close if beer ever came back. Typewriter manufacturers would lose business, clerks and stenographers would be a drug on the market, unable to buy bread and the farmer would lose that demand for wheat.

* * * *

THERE is more to this business than meets the eye. It is not inconceivable that the farmer himself might cultivate the habit of beer drinking—and if he does what would become of the farm? The demand for the return of the amber fluid is based on a possibility of selling more wheat and oats, more barley and malt; but a beer-laden farmer, staggering behind a plow, is not going to produce a superabundance of crops.

As most of the farming is done in the warm weather, when beer is at the height of its popularity, a good long spell of dryness is apt to drive the farmer and his hands to the nearest shade where an iced keg of beer, awaiting the onslaught, would turn the farm into a picnic grounds.

If anything, the farmer ought to be protected against beer. It is, to begin with, fattening, and a fat farmer is no farmer at all. Everything else on the farm can be fat—horses and hogs and housewives—but not the farmer. The streamline model is always in style down on the farm.

All these facts will undoubtedly be laid on Secretary Hyde's desk. Aside from the investigation started by the Department of Agriculture there are about 20,000,000 or 30,000,000 people in the country who have conducted their own investigations, and they know what beer will do to the farm.

* * * *

THE Germans are a beer-drinking people, and see what happened there. It is believed in certain quarters that the World War would never have been started had it not been for the vicious habit of foam blowing, a vulgar display that got on everybody's nerves. It bred the spirit of braggadoccio.

For some years past the world, and especially the United States, has been free of beer and its accompaniments—free lunch, sawdust on the floor, and a constant clinking of steins.

The farmer ought to be the last man in the world to advocate free lunch, which always takes its stand beside a beer keg. If people get food free they certainly are not going to buy farm products; and if they don't buy farm products, how can the farmer afford to plant malt, which is the basis of beer? It's a vicious circle, and as soon as Secretary Hyde sees this he will, undoubtedly, condemn the attempt to force beer on the unsuspecting farmer. The investigation will probably show that the way to keep the world safe for democracy is to let the breweries continue filling ice cream cones instead of beer.

LEGION VOTE ROUSES WET-DRY ACTIVITIES

Leaders in Congress Admit Tremendous Political Effect to Come.

(Associated Press.)

Repercussions from the American Legion convention and elsewhere yesterday shoved the prohibition question forward to the center of the political stage from which it had been crowded recently by economic problems.

Representative Britten (Republican), Illinois, said the legion's vote sounded the "death-knell" to the prohibition laws. He added if the service organization and the American Federation of Labor would use "their tremendous persuasive power" they could bring about repeal of the Volstead law during the next session of Congress.

Senator Glenn, another Illinois Republican, said he was ready to vote for resubmission of the eighteenth amendment as recommended by the legion, or for beer if the opportunity should be presented.

Effect on Congress Admitted.

Dry leaders in Congress declined to comment on the legion's vote, but some of them said privately it would have a tremendous political effect. Among those who would not comment was Senator Watson, Republican leader of the Senate, who has previously advocated a referendum.

Ernest H. Cherrington, general secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism, said repeated statements by wet newspapers that President Hoover would continue to support prohibition for political reasons was tacit confession "that the majority of the voters of this country are dry."

Bulkley and Shouse Confer.

Meanwhile Senator Bulkley, of Ohio, discussed his plan for committing the Democratic party to resubmission of the prohibition amendment with Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee.

After the conference Bulkley said Shouse approved his plan under which Democratic members of Congress would be pledged to vote for submitting a repeal amendment to the States, but would be free to oppose its adoption. Several Democratic leaders said privately it would be impossible for the convention platform to commit members of Congress.

On the administrative side, Commissioner Doran, of the Industrial Alcohol Bureau, said he was taking steps to prevent legal prescriptions for liquor from being filled with bootleg whisky. Pointing out that a New York druggist was recently indicted for filling prescriptions with illicit liquor.

Wilson Remarks Scored.

The statement Thursday night by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, that "numbers of staggering drunks disgraced the uniform and yelled for beer" at Detroit brought a rejoinder yesteday from the League for Modification of the Volstead Act.

"I would suggest that Dr. Wilson put his own house in order and confine his criticisms to those of his organization who vote dry and drink wet," said former Senator Hansbrough, of North Dakota, national chairman of the league.

"His cowardly attack upon the American Legion convention for refusing to listen to him while he was lobbying against the inevitable at Detroit speaks for itself. I do not wonder, however, that he is embittered at seeing an overwhelming majority of the convention throw overboard all of the absurd dry propaganda he and his associates have been responsible for."

F. Scott McBride, Antisaloon League superintendent, issued a statement describing the legion's resolution as "confusing."

"No definite change in the law was recommended," he said, "and the method of referendum desired was also left deeply obscure in view of the specific methods by which the Constitution may be amended. * * *

"As for a prohibition referendum, for which the legion seems to be groping, the Antisaloon League will be ready at any time to meet the issue of repeal."

RESCUED FLYING TRIO ARRIVE IN NEW YORK

to see the stars, ice crippled some of their instruments. Then something went amiss with the motor and it began devouring fuel furiously, until they could no longer calculate the supply.

They circled the liner Pennland, 400 miles off Halifax, but went forward because, as Rody expressed it, "We didn't want to stop. We are Germans. We'd try the same flight again tomorrow."

A little farther on the motor stopped for lack of gas and the plane came down in an angry sea which began to pick it to pieces. Almost instantly their supplies were swept away, leaving 10 ounces of chocolate and 2 gallons of filthy water used to cool the engine.

"It was about 6:30 in the evening," Johanssen said. "We agreed to ration the water and chocolate, a few sips and a small bite or two each day. When picked up we had very little left. We might have lived a few days more, but we would have been too weak to signal."

While waves ate away the plane they rigged seats high in the cabin, set a tiny distress flag and struggled to hold on, while the rolling sea sent fear into their hearts. Hope rose on the sixth day as a freighter hove into view, but she passed without seeing them and they were almost in despair when the Belmoira picked them up the next day.

"We're glad to get here, if not by plane, at least by ship," said Johanssen, as reporters and officials crowded around him to tell of an official city welcome coming next week.

"The memory of this will go down in history as proof of the heroism of which man is capable," said Dr. Paul Schwarz, acting German consul.

Allen and Moyle Forced Down on Tacoma Flight

Fairbanks, Alaska, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—A heavy downpour of rain forced Cecil Allen and Don Moyle, California aviators, to land here at 4:35 p. m. (P. S. T.) (7:35 p. m., E. S. T.) five hours and twenty minutes after they hopped off from Solomon Beach, near Nome, on a projected nonstop flight to Tacoma, Wash.

DEMOCRATS SPREAD FEAR, LUCAS SAYS

G. O. P. Director Charges Nation Is Paralyzed by False Propaganda.

Springfield, Mass., Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Responsibility for what he termed a nationwide fear of destitution during the coming winter was attributed today to "destructive Democratic propaganda" by Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee.

"We are suffering with a paralyzing anemia brought on by a stifling deluge of destructive Democratic propaganda—a campaign of exaggeration, misrepresentation, and manufactured lies that has not only had its political effect, but has so alarmed the people that the spending of money by those who have it has been reduced to a point actually below the necessities of life," Mr. Lucas told a rally of New England Republicans at the New England States Exposition.

From the same rostrum, Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, National Republican chairman, suggested that times of stress "not infrequently serve as periods for finding the way for new wealth," and said: "We have evidence that such results will flow from this depression." He deplored wage cuts.

Mrs. Yost Lauds Hoover.

Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, director of the woman's division of the Republican national committee, said the organized Republican women were still behind the administration of President Hoover in the belief that "he possesses the rare qualities of statesmanship that fit him for leadership in these difficult and troublous times."

"If," said Mr. Lucas, "the great Republican army of this country will but get itself into battle formation—meet this fight standing up, and hitting out from the shoulder, dispel this maze of gloomy propaganda, the conscious fear of destitution and starvation will be lifted from the minds of the people, and the buying power of this vast country will open the gates to those who seek employment."

He voiced a caution that "unless the Republican party immediately assumes its full responsibility as the dominant party, a Democratic administration will likely demonstrate what hard times really are."

Fess Proposes Remedy.

Senator Fess said he would guarantee a great recovery from the world economic crisis by keeping open the opportunity of private and corporate investment, free of socialistic and paternalistic government interference.

"We must not be led into deadening socialistic theories which will dry up the reservoirs of new inventions and discoveries," he said.

"Our chief concern is and should be to so guide the Nation through this period so rife with all sorts of half-baked theories of production and distribution that when we are through with it the Nation is not hamstrung by unsound temporary nostrums which will become permanent law to the hurt of a nation whose progress of the people has been the wonder of the world."

Lancashire Cheers And Boos Mahatma

Curious Crowds of Textile Workers Assemble to Greet Gandhi.

Darwen, Lancashire, England, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Mingled boos and cheers greeted Mahatma Gandhi tonight when he came to the heart of the Lancashire country which lays its economic distress to the boycott he led on British cotton goods in India.

At every station along the way, even those at which the train did not halt, crowds waited for a glimpse of the little shawl-clad man who, as the leader of India's independence movement, has come to England to assist in working out a scheme for a federated India.

Shouts of "Good old Gandhi" were heard along with cries such as "Pull his eyes out." The prevailing spirit was one of curiosity, however, and villagers and city folk alike stood around and stared at the little man in his odd attire.

MRS. WIMBLEY NO. 3 TELLS OF MARRIAGE

They agreed to reunite later either in Springfield or Cassville.

Miss Graves said that she heard nothing from or about her husband from the day she left the Capital until last Sunday when she was taken in custody by local officers for questioning in connection with the two deaths. Nor was it until then, she said, that her mother knew of the marriage.

Sergt. Barrett learned from the object of his long trip that the accused man of many wives and aliases, who, with John M. Crowder, is in the District Jail awaiting action of the grand jury, took out a $1,000 life insurance policy for Miss Graves, having himself made the beneficiary. She said that, on arriving home, she struck off his name as beneficiary and substituted her mother's.

The young woman is not in custody, nor will any charges be placed against her. She said that she is willing to testify, if asked.

LEXINGTON UNVEILS M'CORMICK STATUE

Centennial of Invention of Reaper Celebrated at University Fete.

Lexington, Va., Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Tribute was paid to Cyrus Hall McCormick—the inventor, the benefactor, the churchman—in exercises here today commemorating the centennial anniversary of his invention of the reaper.

The program was opened on the Washington and Lee University campus with the unveiling of a statue of McCormick, who was a benefactor and trustee of the university while Robert E. Lee was president.

After a luncheon for distinguished guests, the program moved to Mount Carmel Church near here, where McCormick was a charter member. The exercises were closed with presentation of a pageant portraying evolution of the reaper, staged at Walnut Grove Farm, near the old McCormick home at Steele Tavern.

Dr. John Finley, of New York, in the statue dedication address, called McCormick "the liberator of the farmer." At the luncheon John Temple Graves, Birmingham journalist, said a "spirit of romance" was the secret of McCormick's greatness. In the Mount Carmel exercises President Benjamin Lacy, of the Richmond Theological Seminary, said McCormick was a man of two visions, one being "mankind toiling in a field," and the other was the "harvest of souls."

President Francis Pendleton Gaines of Washington and Lee University presided over the exercises.

Among guests were Gov. Pollard, members of the McCormick family and Representative Harry St. George Tucker.

The statue was accepted for Washington and Lee by George C. Peery, of Tazewell, instead of John W. Davis, who was called to New York from here last night.

Dr. Finley, in his dedicatory speech, said McCormick had so efficiently relieved the world of its food worries that a century later America has more grain than it can market.

Gov. Pollard introduced Dr. Finley to the thousands of spectators gathered on the campus of Washington and Lee University to witness the unveiling. The statue was unveiled by Nancy Blaine, 12-year-old great-granddaughter of McCormick.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick, sr., Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Harold McCormick and Mr. and Mrs. Fowler McCormick were other representatives of the family.

Clarendon Speaker Scores Ballot Rule

Hagan Says Marking Off Names Complicates Voting Method.

Speaking at a Republican rally last night in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon, J. Foster Hagan, candidate for the House of Delegates, opposing Hugh Reid, incumbent Democratic candidate, advocated a change in the method of marking ballots. He pointed out that under the present law, it is necessary to strike out the names of all candidates except those being voted for.

"If my information is correct," he said, "the voter will find no less than 83 names on his ballot. The title of county board will carry names of 51 candidates, with five to be elected. If a voter leaves more than twelve names of candidates not scratched out his ballot will not be counted for the office where he did not scratch out the correct number of names."

Other speakers were B. M. Hedrick, candidate for trial justice; Fred A. Gosnell, Louis C. Carl, W. W. Wright and C. S. Rauth, candidates for the county board, and C. R. Ahalt, candidate for Commonwealth's attorney.

VALUATION OF GAS COMPANIES ORDERED BY UTILITIES BODY

subsequent additions and betterments at cost, as reported by the companies. These expenditures brought the Washington figure up to $17,462,000 and the Georgetown figure up to $1,981,000 as of last December 31. These figures, however, do not take into consideration depreciation and other factors, nor do they allow anything for so-called going concern value which always is claimed by public utilities fighting for high valuations to serve as a basis for fixing rates charged consumers.

In the 1926 proceedings the Washington company claimed much higher value, some of its witnesses claiming a value as high as $30,000,000. At that time commission experts reported the total cost of the companies' properties was only $12,896,000.

Testimony Added to Record.

Examination of witnesses in the ownership inquiry yesterday added further to the story William A. Roberts, assistant corporation counsel, is having written into the record in an effort to show that the Central Public Service Corporation, $400,000,000 Chicago utilities holding corporation, is the illegal owner of the local gas companies.

William H. Wildes, vice president of the corporation and several of its subsidiaries; R. A. Gallagher, controller of the corporation, and Donald McClure, operating vice president of the corporation, identified letters and reports which showed that the corporation was maintaining a close and exacting control over the management of the local company.

Throughout correspondence there recurred such phrases as "our companies" in references by corporation officials to the local companies; their testimony was replete with "we" in explaining decisions affecting the local companies.

Despite their efforts to show how they merely acted in an advisory capacity, leaving decisions to Mr. Wood, it was developed in the course of examination of Mr. McClure that Alfred Hurlburt, an engineer the corporation had sent here, had worked out a plan for materially reducing the working force of the company. Mr. Hurlburt estimated the operating expenses of the company could be cut by $400,000 a year. This report was made to Chicago and was not shown to Mr. Wood.

Mr. Gallagher identified a letter he had written to Mr. Wood saying he and another would come to the gas company offices in Washington to confer with him but would not make their identity known. This was a suggestion by Mr. Wildes, the letter said. Mr. Gallagher explained that it was thought wise to conceal the fact that they were from the Central Public Service Corporation at that time, which was before the close tie-up with the corporation was generally known.

Another letter, referring to the employment of E. L. Callahan by the local company, urged that there be no publicity about Mr. Callahan's connection with the corporation. Mr. Roberts inquired about another communication from Chicago ordering that the local company pay a portion of Mr. Callahan's salary before he came here to work. Mr. McClure said something about a vacation and Mr. Roberts asked if Mr. Callahan had started to work for the local gas company by taking a vacation.

Wood to Be Recalled.

Another order from Chicago was that Mr. Wood was to buy up outstanding minority stock if he could get it cheap. Mr. Wildes told Mr. Roberts he would have to ask Mr. Wood why he had not bought the stock.

Mr. Wood is to be recalled to the witness chair when the hearing is resumed Monday afternoon.

On Monday morning the utilities commission is to meet with those interested in finding a terminal in the downtown section for the trolley line running to Alexandria.

EPISCOPAL DEPUTIES VOTE FREER DIVORCE

Bishop Freeman Given Two Ballots for Office; Dry Report Indefinite.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 26 (A.P.).—The House of Deputies of the Episcopal Church today approved a proposed canon by which a divorced person may retain communicant rights, while the House of Bishops adopted a commission report which made no definite prohibition recommendation.

The prohibition report, contained in the long-awaited recommendation of the committee of 21, failed to recommend concerted action on the ground the issues involved are "highly controversial and closely related to partisan politics."

A slight majority of the deputies approved the proposed new marriage laws. The vote was 86½ to 42½. The balloting of the clerical and lay delegations is separate and each vote must show a majority on any question. While the total vote was not close the concurrent majority showed a difference of only two votes.

Bishops Must Approve.

Divorced persons, under terms of the approved measure, may apply to diocese ecclesiastical courts for recognition. If recognition is given communicant rights are restored automatically. The House of Bishops has yet to consider the proposal.

High churchmen tonight claimed a victory in the action of the house of deputies, which adopted a resolution prohibiting the use of portions of the book of common prayer, with the authority of the church, in any other book of worship.

The resolution disposed of the controversial question concerning use of the American missal, a mass book, so far as the deputies are concerned. The proposal now goes to the house of bishops. The resolution failed to set forth a provision defining the book of common prayer as the only authorized book of worship of the church.

Liquor, Crime Recognized.

Copies of the American Missal, privately printed and distributed among churchmen, and in use in certain parishes, contain a certification from the custodian of the Book of Common Prayer, Lucian Moore Robinson, that portions of the prayer book, used in the Missal, are authentic.

The committee of twenty-one, whose report was adopted by the house of bishops, was appointed to consider industrial dislocation, world peace, lawlessness and prohibition.

The Right Rev. James De Wolf Perry, Bishop of Rhode Island, was reelected presiding bishop of the church by the house of bishops. The election later was confirmed by the House of Deputies. Bishop Perry received 86 votes; Bishop Edward L. Parsons, California, 13, and Bishop James Freeman, Washington, D. C., 2.

Episcopalians Ask Hoover To Name 2 Prayer Days

President Hoover is asked to designate November 7 and 8 as a time for prayer for all people in a report presented yesterday to the Episcopal convention by Bishop James Freeman, of Washington. Bishop Freeman is chairman of the joint committee of 21 on national and world problems, and acted in this capacity in offering the report, which was adopted.

The statement, preparation of which he supervised calls for the church itself to set aside the Sunday before Armistice Day for prayer and penitence, "that the Nation may be restored to the wholesome ways of peace and happiness, of sobriety and Christian practice, and obedience to God's will."

On Monday and Tuesday nights there will be popular meetings in Mt. Vernon Place Church on the theme "Successful Methods in Evangelism." At these various local congregations will tell about the best plans which have been in operation successfully in their respective parishes. Michaelmas, or the Feast of St. Michael and All Angels, was for many hundreds of years a common season for the election of municipal officers and other local officials in England. It was also an almost universal custom to eat goose, so that the Michaelmas goose was as familiar to the English as Christmas turkey is to Americans. The St. Michael honored on this day is St. Michael the Archangel.

THE TARIFF ISSUE.

In an address delivered yesterday at the Massachusetts State Fair at Springfield, Senator Fess, chairman of the Republican national committee, accepted the Democratic challenge of the tariff as an issue. He believes that the Government can and should encourage and protect American industry, as a fundamental principle.

No man ever stated this principle in a few words better than William McKinley, as quoted by Senator Fess:

> Goods sent into America, though they are given away without price, if they displace American labor, they are too high.

Senator Fess insisted that Republicans, by their votes in Congress, proved their faith in general protection, including all competitive articles, no matter in what part of the United States they are produced; but that Democrats, by their votes, revealed that they wanted special protection, excluding all articles not produced in their own States.

According to Senator Fess, Republicans will resist the threat of Democrats to effect a revision of the present tariff law. If changes should be made, it can be done, he contends, under the flexible provision of the law, without throwing the country's business into the uncertainty that would be caused by an attempt at general revision. Senator Fess added that the American manufacturer who has gone abroad to build plants to take advantage of cheap labor is entitled to no more consideration than if his goods were made from foreign capital.

Senator Fess notes that over two-thirds of all American imports are duty free, and that the falling off of our trade with Canada is greater on the articles on the free list than on the dutiable list, indicating that the depression in Canada, as is the case in other countries, has more influence on the purchase of American goods than the tariff law.

BELGIAN RACE PROBLEMS.

Belgian's economic stability amid the general world depression, has made her, in recent months, the most prosperous country in Europe. She is not, however, without difficulties, for the race and language struggle within her boundaries, which is ever present, asserts itself even more vigorously in good times. The desire for Flemish independence is constantly agitated to disturb the harmony of a united Belgium.

The origin of language differences dates back to the first century B. C. when Caesar conquered the country and it became strongly Romanized. The construction of a highway across Belgium by Roman engineers made this road, which was well fortified by blockhouses, the main line of defense. Frequent German invasions from the north were repelled at this point. By the fifth century the Salic Francs had colonized the northern section of the country while the south, protected by the road, was developing under the Gallo-Romanic influence. It is for this reason that the Flemings in the north are of a different racial and linguistic strain.

The revolution of 1830 which gained Belgian independence from Holland, was led by the Walloon provinces and inspired by French ideology. The seat of government was, therefore, established in Wallonia and French became the official language. Years of struggle finally won equality throughout Belgium for the Flemish language prior to the World War. Bitterness, however, increased rather than diminished in Flanders. As the Germans invaded Wallonia some weeks before Flanders, mobilization in Wallonia was never completed as it was in the north. The result was that there were proportionately more Flemish in the army than Walloons. Also, the industrialism of the south made the Walloons more suitable than the Flemish for work in the munition plants and other factories. The Flemish considered this pure partiality which greatly lessened the morale of these soldiers and accounted for the many cases of mutiny and desertions.

At the end of the war King Albert promised the Flemings free ethnic development of Flanders and a Flemish university at Ghent. These promises were considered by some to have been made in order to avert a possible revolution. They were, nevertheless, made in good faith, but the pressure of the more urgent problem of rebuilding a nation devastated by war, delayed their fulfillment. The University of Ghent, now completely Flemish, did not materialize until 1930. Politically the Flemings have made great strides. The supremacy of French has been lost in the law which requires members of the central administration to know Flemish. This has put the Walloons at a decided disadvantage. Not content with this, the Flemings have made their new objective a complete duplication of all central administration.

The method in which these advances have been won has done little to placate the Flemish. They feel that they have gained every concession by fighting for it and that it was grudgingly given. No figure has emerged in Belgian politics with the vision, as well as an understanding of both sides, to enable him to propose a program which would satisfy the ethnical rights of both Flemings and Walloons.

AMERICANS ALL.

It was a fine thought that came from the pen of the new legion commander as he took over the forces of the former doughboys and artillerymen, the engineers and airmen. Said Henry L. Stevens, jr., commander of the American Legion: "With an abiding faith in our people and institutions it will be our purpose to render to America, economically and otherwise, the same fine service so characteristic of its sons in time of war."

By its action in Detroit, conforming to the wishes of President Hoover declining to burden the country at a time when sacrifice is demanded of all, the American Legion won the respect of the Nation. There was then evinced the spirit that carried the boys on in the days of war.

The United States Government has seen to it that no veteran physically disabled need want for anything. All the veterans' organizations, the Legion and the Disabled Veterans, cooperating with the agencies set up by the National Government, are here in Washington to see that every need is administered to, every want filled, for those who came home wounded from the fray.

Sound and able-bodied men wear the emblem of the American Legion, and if they follow the leadership of their new commander, as they undoubtedly will, the Nation can face the future with the certainty that stalwart support will be given to the Government.

There are 11,000 posts of the American Legion in the United States. They are made up of men who proved their Americanism in war, and who now prove it in the rigors of national economic distress.

NOBODY KNOWS.

At a time when the average man is confronted with more problems than were ever intended to be man's lot, when the nations are having financial and social troubles never dreamed of in other ages, "experts" are at a great disadvantage. All their theories are exploded as soon as uttered. One man's guess is as good as another's when all are wrong.

Usually the professors of economics are quick to put their fingers on the world's pulse, but this time they have failed miserably in diagnosing the world malady. Now comes one of their number, Col. George B. McClellan, who, aside from his theories, had the practical experience of once being Mayor of New York, and he says:

> I was professor of economic history at Columbia University for twenty years, and we evolved a science of political economy which has been completely blown up by the war. Today no one knows less about conditions than an economist.

There is consolation in this. It is well for economists to admit they are baffled. Blaming their predicament on the war is one way out, of course; and it is probably as good as any other way. Certainly, since the war, all standards of evaluation have gone by the board, not only in the field of economics, but in social problems as well. It was the greatest war the world ever experienced. All previous wars had proved the axiom that it takes years for humanity to adjust itself after such cataclysms. The effects of the Civil War are still felt in some sections. More than half a century has gone by, and still the wounds of that conflict have not been entirely healed.

The world has many problems left on its doorstep by the war and they seem to have all come to a head at the same time, for there is no spot on earth, seemingly, that is not affected. Even the mohair growers of Texas find no market for the product they abstract from their goats; and this is only one of the minor problems that may soon engage the attention of the Farm Board.

Prof. McClellan, in making his confession, hit the nail on the head: No one knows less about conditions than an economist.

GERMAN FINANCIAL DECREES.

An effort to prevent the recurrence of a German financial crisis such as that of last July has been made by the Bruening government through the passage of two regulatory measures. One of the emergency decrees deals with the banks and the other with corporations. A board of five members is to govern the banks of the country. The head of this board will be the president of the Reischbank, ex officio, and will include a member of the Reichsbank board of directors, the chief permanent official of the ministries of trade and finance and a Reich commissioner for the banking system. The commissioner will designate the banks to be subject to supervision.

The right to participate in the meetings of the directors and stockholders, as well as access to the books of banks, will give the commissioner opportunity to know the status of all the banking institutions. Banks already under Reich supervision will, of course, not be affected by the decree. Full responsibility in the discharge of their functions will continue to be borne by the banks, as the new law is designed to avoid interference in operation.

The law governing corporations provides for regular examination of their books, the extension of rights of the minority stockholders, a limitation of the number of directorates an individual may hold and restrictions on the purchase of its own securities in the open market by any company. The examination of corporations under the regulation has brought into being a new profession known as "business examiners." Two hundred of these examiners are reported to have offered their services to the government already.

It is hoped that the strict new rulings will prevent flagrant corporation mismanagement such as led to the failure of the notorious Nordwolle Co. The failure of this corporation was charged with precipitating the German financial collapse last July. The added security and stability gained through the decrees will, it is expected, result in a stronger financial system throughout the German republic.

JAPAN'S AIR LAWS.

Aeronautical officials in Japan are at last stirred to action in behalf of a change in the aviation law which has caused so much bitterness abroad as a result of the manner in which it has been enforced. The law forbids flying over Japanese territory by foreigners without permission of the government. The course to be followed is prescribed by the government, and all landings and departures from air fields are designated by national authorities. The fortifications which Japan has sought to protect from observation by these stringent regulations are so ubiquitous that it is virtually impossible to fly over the country without passing forbidden territory. The result has been a long series of unintentional infringements, culminating in the recent Herndon-Pangborn case.

Last year the Italian aviator Lombardi, accompanied by a mechanic, made a flight from Rome by way of India to Japan. He came down in Yokosuka Harbor, one of Japan's important naval bases. Because of fog over southern Japan, Lombardi was forced off his course. He was detained overnight and questioned, but was allowed to proceed the next day. A few days later, while giving an exhibition flight prior to presenting his plane to the Japanese Student Aviators Association, he was signaled to come down. The Italian Ambassador is said to have been so incensed that he left without awaiting the ceremony, where he was to deliver an address. Lombardi was suspected of flying low over certain fortified areas. To prevent a delay in departure, the ambassador issued diplomatic passports to the fliers, and they returned immediately to Italy.

In March of this year Burtin and Moench, French aviators, arriving at Seoul, Korea, were detained three days, but were finally released after apologies from the French Ambassador.

No other foreign fliers have been subjected by Japanese authorities to such treatment as was meeted out to Herndon and Pangborn. The emergency permit which the fliers considered valid was held by the authorities to be good only for a forced landing. This was the reason for the fine of 2,000 yen in addition to 50 yen each for photographing fortified territory. Yet even after paying these fines the aviators were detained for weeks. It is to be hoped that the Japanese government will make certain that obviously innocent air visitors may not be subjected to heavy penalties for unintentional infraction of the law.

REDS IN CHINA

From the London Times.

It is recognized by all those who have recently sojourned in the middle and upper Yangtze that the Communist peril has never been more menacing in the interior of China. According to documents of the Soviet military council recently seized at Kianfu, Kiangsi, the Red forces have been reorganized in seven armies, having a strength of 300,000, with 120,000 rifles, and consisting of sixteen divisions of infantry and five independent regiments.

In addition there are two divisions of Red guards and an independent division directly under the control of the military council. There are also auxiliary forces such as the Red militia, composed of men and women, and the youths' corps, composed of boys and girls from 10 to 15 years old, who act as scouts, and the vanguard of youth, young men of 16 to 18, who specialize in bayonet charges. Women are admitted to all those organizations on a footing of equality.

The provinces which have suffered most from Red depredations during the last three years are Kiangsi, Hunan and Hupeh. According to statistics published by the Nanking government, in Kiangsi alone 186,000 innocent persons have been ruthlessly massacred, while 2,000,000 others have been obliged to take refuge in neighboring provinces. More than 100,000 houses have been burned down; the destruction of property is estimated at many thousands of dollars and, in addition, the peasants have lost more than 1,500,000 tons of rice and corn. Though the inhabitants of Hunan are reported to have suffered less than those of Kiangsi, yet, according to official figures, the massacred numbered 72,000 and the houses burned or destroyed 120,000. The people assert that the Reds despoiled them of more than $300,000,000 in money and merchandise.

Last year of the 81 districts in Kiangsi 11 were infested with bandits, 25 were partly held by them, and 31 suffered frequent invasion, and in Hupeh many districts were cruelly devastated by the "Reds." According to a recent report from Gen. Ho Yinching, vice commander in chief of the forces combating the "Reds," in Hunan, Hupeh and Kiangsi, the Third International had during the last four years continuously sent agents into these provinces and also into Kwangtung and Fukien to carry out a reign of terror.

Among the results of their activities were the Communist rising in Canton in 1927, the disturbances in Nanchang in August, 1927, the sanguinary incidents in Changsha in July, 1930, and the massacres at Kien in October of the same year. During this frightful period persons of both sexes and of all ages were slaughtered and many hundreds of houses pillaged and burned. At Changsha the foreign consulates were among the buildings burned; missions, particularly the Protestant, suffering greatly. In Fukien the "Reds" have organized risings and massacres as well as at Haifong and Lukfong, in Kwantung.

After taking a town the "Reds" establish committees pending the formation of a Soviet. Among these are the notorious committees for the extirpation of reactionaries and of finance. The victims of the first committee are the educated, the well-to-do, merchants and officials of the government. To the tender mercies of the second are handed over the citizens of the captured town, who are made to pay to the last penny, and those who can not pay are put to death on the spot.

POST HASTE.

The war must be over when the legion boys pick a second looey for highest honors.

A combined Harvard and Cornell "attack on the problem of shooting stars" brought offers from militant volunteers before it was understood that it was a celestial inquiry and had no designs on gang leaders.

The Department of Agriculture will make an inquiry to determine the effect of legal brewing on the farmer. The first result would be the scrapping of several million home brew plants and their muddy product.

Some wet optimists think three-fourths of all the voters in the United States would vote wet, but that three-fourths of the States never will. The legion convention vote was 1,008 wet to 394 dry, missing a three-fourths majority by 43, while the vote by States showed an exact majority wet, 36 to 12. Does that mean anything?

"The legion delegates were a cross section of American voters." At least there were some cross individuals when the bonus demand failed.

"It is the proper duty of a government to protect rights and interests legitimately enjoyed by its nationals or individuals" says the Japanese cabinet. But Japan has very few nationals in Nicaragua.

The Philippine legislature petitions Congress for immediate and complete independence. And who would be most concerned if there were any danger of that demand being taken seriously and literally? The Philippine Legislature.

Following the demonstration of efficiency of that Geneva body in stopping the Sino-Jap conflict we propose a new theme song: "Half a League, half a League—backward."

Some other industries have followed U. S. Steel's wage reduction policy—the copy cuts.

"British gold action may restore bimetalism." Further perusal of the interesting item under this heading shows that the news did not emanate from London, but, curiously, from Tonopah, Nev., home town of Senator Pittman.

Senator Moses says a New England senatorial bloc could silence an "impudent minority" who "yammer at the gates of Congress to have the Government do things that individuals should do themselves." This is mild castigation from the senator, but evidently he is waiting to call real names face to face.

Where is this going to end? The Texas-Oklahoma idea has spread to Iowa where the militia is restraining irate farmers while their cows are vaccinated. Suppose bootlegger activity should be thus restrained.

Walter Gifford is a director on the U. S. Steel board, but his own American Tel. & Tel., with assets of over five billions, nearly twice as great as those of Steel, hasn't cut wages. SOS calls may sustain toll totals.

Since Secretary Stimson dispatched identical notes to Japan and China they must have been asked impartially to stop fighting, retreating and appealing.

Silver and bimetalism panaceas will be urged as usual as long as the depression lasts and forgotten as soon as it is over.

The Swope plan will be argued and modified, but stabilization of both output and jobs is coming just as sure as good times will return.

Nanking appeals to Canton to forget civil difference and come help put a little ginger in the fight against the invaders.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY Dear Louise: You have been raised in the simple faith that money is merely a convenience, to be used sensibly, and not a measure of social worth.

You have been spared contact with snobs. You would enjoy a rattle-trap, strip-down Ford more than a Rolls. And I am quite sure that an income of millions wouldn't make you stuck-up, any more than poverty would make you ashamed.

But you are a little materialist, just the same, and too much of your happiness depends on pretty frocks and the trimmings that go with them.

That is the nature of your age and sex, and probably doesn't indicate anything seriously wrong; but still there is a possibility of danger and I want to give you a word of warning.

The materialist is always in danger. He may go broke at any time, and the most miserable creature alive is a materialist who has run out of material.

Do you know why people kill themselves when they lose their money? Doesn't it seem idiotic to sacrifice life and all the joys it has to offer merely because a little money has been lost?

The people who do it are materialists. Money is the one thing they have to make life worth while. It is the foundation of their pride—the only source of their self-respect. And when they lose it, they have nothing to fall back on—nothing to hold their chins up.

They are the most unfortunate of people—no matter how much money they have.

The chief trouble with the American people today is that they depended too much on material prosperity for their happiness, and hard times found them without any spiritual resources to stiffen their backbones and keep them smiling in time of trouble.

No wiser advice ever was given than that to lay up treasure where moths and rust do not corrupt nor thieves break through and steal.

Money is a blessing if you don't become a slave to it, but it's a cure to those who love it for its own sake.

Your best chance to be happy is to train yourself to enjoy the things that have no price tag. Those who understand values could enjoy life just as well if the world contained no money.

The richest rewards are for those who enjoy doing things and being things instead of having things. Love, DAD.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Even Politicians Can't Guess.

Atlanta Constitution.

A year from now the presidential campaign will be catching its stride and the routes of the national spellbinders will have been assigned to them. The microphones will be in full action, and a large part of the Nation will be listening in to the "reasons why" they should and they shouldn't on the fateful 7th of November.

There has not been in the Nation for more than half a century a political situation like the present one. Many of its aspects may be greatly affected and changed by the time the national conventions act next June-July, for there is to intervene a full session of a new and unusually mixed Congress. World events that will have vital repercussions in this country are threatening to happen in the meanwhile. Consequently, it is impossible for even the most practiced politician to guess now how political lines will eventually be drawn for the national battle.

War Among Cronies.

Chicago Tribune.

Senator Watson's chance to even the score against Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, would seem to lie in the Indiana Legislature. Senator Moses procured the specification of New Hampshire granite for the George Rogers Clark memorial at Vincennes and Mr. Watson's reputation in the Bedford stone district is that of a gentleman who has walked home from a ride. Mr. Moses, finding it so easy, may take a camp table, three walnut half shells, and a handful of dried peas to Washington with him in December for the entertainment of the other conscript fathers. But if Mr. Watson is as mad as he should be he can have his State legislature pass an act prohibiting the use of New Hampshire products in all Indiana public works. Senator Fess, of Ohio, chairman of the Clark memorial commission, must have helped Senator Moses in the granite racket. Mr. Watson might include Ohio products in the prohibition.

Brookhart's Relief Program.

Houston Post-Dispatch.

Always an extremist, Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, runs true to form in making his demands for relief of farmers and the unemployed. That he voices the views of a certain number of the people in those demands is doubtless true, but that does not make his program any the more practical in nature.

Up toward the top of his list of demands is one that Congress, meeting in extraordinary session, appropriate $1,500,000,000 to be used as a revolving fund by the Federal Farm Board in "relieving agriculture." Looking back upon the utter failure of the Farm Board, with its revolving fund of $500,000,000, the Brookhart call for further appropriations three times that large, will strike most people as ludicrous. In all probability, the Farm Board will be lucky if it isn't abolished outright, when the new Congress meets. It is almost certain that no large appropriation will be granted it.

And added to the $1,500,000,000 that the senator would give the Farm Board would be $3,000,000,000 for construction of public works, to aid the unemployed. That would mean a total appropriation for these two purposes of $4,500,000,000. The Government at the end of the fiscal year will have a deficit of $2,000,000,000 or more, including last year's.

How to Dodge Taxes.

Topeka Capital.

"With so capable a Secretary of the Treasury on the job as A. W. Mellon," modestly remarks Senator Jim Watson, "the Nation can manage to get along without increasing taxes." And with two so capable statesmen as Mellon and Jim it ought to be almost possible to get along with no taxes at all.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Disabled Veteran Pays Tribute to President Hoover.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Disabled Veterans, and the Legion of Honor are closely bound together politically. There may be between three and four million former soldiers who are not members of any of these organizations, and each soldier has some friend, wife or sweetheart whose vote he could influence. All of these men are bound together by common interest, and, standing together as they do, they constitute one of the greatest forces in America today. It took a courageous man to veto a plan favorable to their common interest and come out boldly and work against that plan; but it also took a bold man to face these men at their convention and speak against the further working of that plan.

When I say courageous, I mean politically; for no body of men would show the President of the United States greater respect than the former soldiers. Yet I say, "All honor to President Hoover for the stand he took at Detroit." His courage, his statesmanship, his comradely greeting of "our boys," coupled with his wonderful ability to compose so marvelous a speech upon such short notice, places him within the front rank of American Presidents.

His trip to Detroit has won him millions of friends, and I hope he may run again that we may prove this true.

Streets Should Be Cleared of Fake Beggars and Panhandlers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The letter on your editorial page today relative to street beggars and panhandlers in Washington should not be passed over lightly. Lately these mendicants have been appearing in larger numbers, and unless steps are taken now to check the influx, Washington for the next twelve months will be the Mecca of every professional beggar in the country.

It was my fortune to be in Philadelphia in 1926 when the Sesquicentennial Exposition was held and I will remember the flock of panhandlers and street beggars that overran the city.

The people who attend the George Washington bicentennial should be protected from these impostors and fakers, any one of whom probably has a better income than the persons who pour money into their wagging cups and hats. Unless the ban is raised now, next year will see them here from every part of the country and giving the impression that the National Capital is mostly an aggregation of mendicants and panhandlers. Who Gets the Money When Wages Are Cut Down? Miss Bolen Asks a Pertinent Question.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: According to newspaper articles, a number of the largest corporations and companies in the United States have announced their intentions of making "wage cuts," effective October 1. For example, it is reported that the United States Steel Co. will make a 10 per cent cut, which will affect over 200,000 employes. Other companies will make similar cuts affecting from 10,000 to 50,000 employes for each company. The reductions in salaries are supposed to save millions of dollars, but who gets the money? The employes lose. The purchasing power of hundreds of thousands of people will be reduced. Who gains?

ITALY RAISES DUTY TO REDUCE DEFICIT

15 Per Cent Increase Hampers U. S. and England Most.

Rome, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—A new superduty of 15 per cent, sharply affecting American exporters, was imposed today by the Italian government to balance a budget that has been running a deficit of $14,000,000 monthly, and thereby strengthening the position of the lira.

In addition to the superduty, the government increased the sales tax on gasoline and petroleum to a point where the tariff is approximately doubled. A 10 per cent duty was imposed on coal.

The new superduty, effective today, applied only to a small proportion of Italy's import trade, much of which is covered by "most-favored-nation" trade treaties.

U. S. and England Hit.

The United States and England, which have no such treaties with Italay, will be most affected by the superduty and it was thought to have been imposed as a result of the fall of the pound sterling, in order to prevent an influx of British goods.

At the same time, a new classification of duties on radios went into effect, increasing tariffs to five and six times their previous figures.

The duty on radio receiving sets up to five tubes in size is raised from 880 lire (about $45) per quintal (220 pounds) to 4,500 lire (about $230) and on sets of more than five tubes from 880 lire to 5,500 lire (about $280). The same ratio applies to sound recording and projecting apparatus.

Gasoline, under the new taxes, will be taxed about 16 cents a gallon, oil a little more than 2 cents and mineral oils slightly less than 5 cents.

Cereals Not Affected.

Exceptions to the new superduty are wheat and other cereals, on which the duty recently was increased; animal and vegetable fats, metallic minerals, certain chemicals and precious metals in bars or coin.

The United States is affected particularly by the new tariffs on oil products, radios, automobiles, aluminum, farm machinery and typesetting machines.

Figures of the Department of Commerce at Washington for the calendar year of 1930 showed that of the $133,450,000 of American exports to Italy, $21,000,000 represented petroleum and mineral oils coming under the new tax and $13,000,000 was coal. Exports of automobiles to Italy were valued at nearly $3,000,000.

Since that time exports of automobiles and many other manufactures have declined considerably, the department reported.

Anastasia Enters Bavarian Shelter

Newspaper Reports Woman Claiming Czar as Father Has Left U. S.

New York, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—The Brooklyn Eagle said today it learned Mme. Anastasia Tschaikovsky, who claims to be a grand duchess, only surviving daughter of the late Czar Nicholas, of Russia, has returned to Europe and entered a sanitarium in Bavaria.

The paper quoted Wilton Lloyd-Smith, chief of her legal staff, as saying she left a sanitarium at Katonah, N. Y., three weeks ago, but said the attorney would not reveal her exact place of residence in Bavaria.

The claimant to the vast fortune of the Romanoffs, the paper said, returned to Europe because of frequent quarrels with her American benefactress, Miss Annie Burr Jennings. Miss Jennings was said to be continuing to furnish Mme. Tschaikovsky's expenses, however.

Delaware Victory For G.O.P. Is Seen

Capital Republican Body Hears Assistant U. S. District Attorney.

Speaking before the membership committee of the National Capital Republican Club at its regular weekly luncheon yesterday, James R. Kirkland, assistant U. S. district attorney, predicted unqualified victory for the Republican party in his home State of Delaware in 1932.

Mr. Kirkland, introduced by Chairman Renah F. Camalier as "one of the most active younger Republicans in the United States," ascribed Delaware's swing to the Republican column for the past 20 years to intensive organization work, and in recent years to the efforts of young Republican units.

The luncheon was attended by members of the membership committee and guests. Ajney E. Chaffee, reading clerk of the House and secretary of the club, described the improvement of the new clubhouse at Sixteenth street and Scott Circle.

Bust to Former Chief Justice Will Be Presented at Frederick Ceremonies.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 26 (A.P.).—Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes will be the principal speaker at the unveiling of a memorial to Roger Brooke Taney, one of his predecessors as head of the United States Supreme Court, here tomorrow.

The memorial, a bust of Justice Taney, is the work of Joseph W. Urner. The sculptor's father, Judge Hammond Urner, of the Court of Appeals, will present Justice Hughes. Gov. Ritchie will accept the tribute on behalf of the State and Judge Arthur D. Willard, of the Sixth Judicial Circuit, on behalf of Frederick County. The exercises are to be sponsored by the Roger Brooke Taney Memorial Association.

A reception for Justice and Mrs. Hughes and other guests has been arranged for Saturday morning, to be followed by a visit to the Taney home, and a luncheon will be held at the hotel by the Frederick Bench and Bar.

The unveiling ceremonies will begin at 2:30 p. m. in the Courthouse Park. Joseph D. Baker, known as the "first citizen" of Frederick, will preside. The invocation will be delivered by the Right Rev. John M. McNamara, Auxiliary Bishop of the Catholic Archdiocese of Baltimore.

HOOVER'S INVITATION ACCEPTED BY LAVAL

French Cabinet Gives Permit for Premier's Visit to Washington.

Paris, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—The amenities in connection with Premier Laval's forthcoming visit to President Hoover in Washington were officially taken care of today. The Cabinet gave its unanimous consent, and the invitation was formally extended by American Ambassador Walter E. Edge and formally accepted by M. Laval.

The exact date of the premier's departure has not been set, but he probably will sail October 16 on the Ile de France and will remain in the United States six days.

An official communique issued after the cabinet session stated the ministers were "unanimous in voicing appreciation of the profound significance of the invitation, to which the premier will reply favorably."

While discussing the visit with M. Laval, Mr. Edge presented to him and several of his colleagues beautiful silver inkstands as souvenirs of the negotiations in which they participated last July, when the Hoover war debt moratorium proposal was at issue.

The gifts came from both Mr. Edge and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. In addition to M. Laval, the recipients were Foreign Minister Briand, Finance Minister Flandin and Budget Minister Pietri.

In his presentation speech, Mr. Edge said that every time he approached one of the French negotiators his mission invariably received ready and sympathetic consideration. He forecast similar courtesy awaiting M. Laval in Washington.

Bikle Succeeds Esch as Head of Practitioners' Group at Session Here.

Henry Wolf Bikle, of Philadelphia, was elected president of the Association of Practitioners before the Interstate Commerce Commission at the closing session of the annual convention in the Hotel Mayflower yesterday. He succeeds John J. Esch, formerly a member of the I. C. C. and coauthor of the Cummins-Esch transportation act during his service in Congress as a Wisconsin representative.

Regional vice presidents named were Ernest S. Ballard, Chicago; Allan P. Matthew, San Francisco, and Joseph P. Ryan, High Point, N. C. Other officers chosen were Paul M. Ripley, New York City, chairman of the executive committee; W. H. Chandler, New York City, secretary, and Clarence A. Miller, Washington, treasurer.

The association at its closed meeting in the Mayflower voted to launch a joint survey with the Interstate Commerce Commission relating to the growing number of commercial educational institutions that profess to qualify persons for practice before the I. C. C.

The association, which was formed two years ago, now has a membership of approximately 1,800 lawyers, traffic men and analysts making regular appearance before the Federal regulatory transportation body.

Visit Woodland Beach tomorrow and see for yourself why this Washington Post summer home development has grown into one of the most popular resort colonies in this section of the country, all within the short space of a few months.

Out on the South River in Maryland there is a spot which will appeal to everyone. Already it has become so popular that hundreds of Capital residents are numbered among lot owners there and scores have erected cottages on the beach property. Still others have plans completed for erection of summer homes early next year and you will want to be among these.

Take a run out to Woodland Beach tomorrow and look the place over. It is only 32 miles away and easily accessible over excellent roads. Take the Defense highway as far as Camp Parole, turning right there on Maryland State highway No. 1 across South River and then left on Mayo road which leads to the community clubhouse on the beach property.

You may become a lot owner at the Beach through the simple process of paying $9, together with a subscription to The Washington Post. The remainder may be paid at the rate of $3.50 a month until the $99 price on lots has been cleared.

Pick out a choice location for your cottage and be prepared to hold year around outings and vacations in comfort and peace at this delightful spot.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"LIBRA."

IF September 26 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:15 a. m. to 10:35 a. m., from 1:35 p. m. to 3:40 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. The danger hours are from 11 a. m. to 12:50 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 6:15 p. m.

The astrological signs of September 26 denote an unsettled condition during the morning, and financial matters are liable to be adversely affected. After noon the influences undergo a marked betterment, especially insofar as social and individual activities are concerned. They will also favor the romantic side of life.

Children born on this September 26 will develop into normal citizens, neither spectacularly brilliant nor unutterably dull. Their passions will be deep-seated and their anger, although difficult to arouse, will blaze when it is called into action. They will be conventional and set a high value on duty and all that it implies.

You, if born on September 26, are somewhat erratic, and not altogether dependable. Your disposition is kaleidoscopic, while your nature is extremely variable. Without settled convictions, without a charted course, you "wobble" and flounder. No one knows where you are "heading." You do not even know yourself. Time after time you will change your occupation, and in the last found one you will always display transitory enthusiasm, which will endure only till such time as another calling is embraced.

This phase will continue until early middle age. At that time something will induce you to take stock of yourself, and you will realize that the inventory value is much less than it should be. You will then take a tumble to yourself and, benefiting by your versatile and varied experience, settle down and, at last, build a permanent future on a safe and sure foundation.

You are inclined to be reckless with your health. You are not adverse to risking, quite unnecessarily, your life. You will, undoubtedly, travel far and wide, and the advantages of this educational course will not be apparent until later in life. During such times as your nomadic cycle is in force, you should not marry, unless you can find one for whom you care, and who has similar tastes to your own.

Successful people born on September 26:

Edmund Gwenn, actor.
Ebenezer Fitch, educator.
William S. Holman, congressman.
Irving Batcheller, author.
Albert E. Woolf, chemist and inventor.
William H. Millburn, the blind preacher.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE semiannual upheaval in chain broadcasting due to the adherence of New York City and other cities to daylight saving time is upon us once more, beginning tomorrow morning. In all but a few instances programs, including "Amos 'n' Andy," will be heard one hour later than usual on the summer schedule. It has been necessary to change the time and even the day for some features, but both WRC and WMAL have tried to avoid confusion by making as few switches as possible.

No doubt the rap which Dr. Charles F. Marvin, chief of the Weather Bureau, has given daylight saving time will delight the radio listeners thus inconvenienced twice yearly.

Says Dr. Marvin:

"Daylight saving is a nuisance and ought to be abolished. There is no excuse for trying to fool ourselves by tinkering with the clock."

With which statement we heartily agree.

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes of the United States Supreme Court will deliver a 45-minute address when he participates in a memorial to Roger Brooke Taney, noted Chief Justice of Abolition days, this afternoon (WRC, 2:30 p. m.).

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland will speak also for ten minutes, accepting a bust of Taney on behalf of the State.

"THE line waiting to get into the television studio at the Madison Square Garden was frequently three and four blocks long, forming a queue, four abreast, that extended from the Eighth avenue end of the Garden down to the Crystal studios and back again to the television studios," Arthur Freed, a radio pioneer, observed.

"The line never seemed to grow shorter and when 'lights out' was the order of the day * * * it was found necessary at times to keep the television section of the radio fair going for at least another half an hour, to satisfy those attending."

The ninth successive season of discussing "The Political Situation in Washington Tonight" will be inaugurated by Frederic William Wile tonight (WMAL, 6:15 p. m.).

It is only a press agent story, but if the experiment doesn't work out as expected, it suggests how long distance business matters may be expedited in the days to come.

"Eddie Cantor will be in the microphone booth at the New York Radio Show today," the press agent yarn reads. "Samuel Goldwyn will be in Los Angeles. The two will discuss terms over the telephone. At the conclusion, if both reach an agreement, Mr. Goldwyn will say, 'I accept this contract. Samuel Goldwyn.'

"These sound waves will be changed into a series of up and down lines, which will be photographed and used as the legal signature. As each man's photographed voice has characteristics as individual as his handwriting, detection of forgery would be simple. Eddie Cantor predicts that a majority of long distance contracts will be treated this way in the future.

The newest announcer at WRC, James Wilkinson, is now heard regularly over the air as a barytone soloist. He will be on the air tonight at 7 o'clock.

THE first commercial network program to originate in Washington will be etherized next week when the Southern Dairies Orchestra opens a new series. The program will be offered every Tuesday and Friday, from 7:15 to 7:30 p. m., and will be broadcast by WRC and the Southeastern network of the NBC.

Herluf Provensen will make a brief talk each time, describing points of interest in the South.

"If it were up to me to vote for the best individual program on the air today," a long time reader of this column writes, "I wouldn't hesitate a second in handing the bay leaves to Cities Service. With its splendid variety—a wonderful orchestra, an equally good soloists (Jessica Dragonette), and a first class quartet, all in one hour—Cities Service has set a mark for every other program to shoot at.

"The only think about Cities Service that doesn't rate 100 per cent is Ford Bond. His delivery is nearer to that of a bleating sheep than any human I ever heard."

Unconsciously hitting Washington, where there are no restrictions on the sale of firearms, Dean Gleason L. Archer, of the Suffolk Law School, in his weekly talk over the radio recently, declared that "the real cause of the crime wave, the thing we must attack if we are to suppress it, is the free and unrestricted sale of lethal weapons." He added, "any half-wit who can raise the modest price may go to a gun store or send to a mail order house and procure firearms of the most deadly nature."

The comparatively few artists who are paid for appearing over local stations usually receive at the most $15 per performance.

MORE sensitive than any other receiving set in the world, Radio Division officials claim, the new Government radio monitoring station at Grand Island, Nebr., will prove an effective agency in locating outlaw radio transmitters, bootleggers, propagandists, smugglers and crooks of all descriptions, who from time to time attempt to operate radio stations without licenses and in violation of the law.

It is estimated there have been as high as several hundred in the country, but according to W. D. Terrell, director of the Federal Radio Division, when the new monitoring station centrally located in Nebraska gets into its stride, it will make short work of all such offenders.

"At its present stage of development, it is sensitive enough to apprehend every radio station operating illegally in the United States," Mr. Terrell declared. "The monitoring station detects outlaw operators by keeping a vigilant watch over the wave channels, allocated to various stations by the commission. When a signal is picked up, its frequency is noted, and if this frequency is not allocated to the definite station sending the signal, it is assumed that some station is operating without a license. The penalty for this is a heavy one."

The main station at Grand Island is assisted in looking for outlaw broadcasters by smaller stations in various districts, at Boston, Baltimore, Atlanta, New Orleans, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Detroit, Chicago and Portland, Oreg. These stations, in turn, are supplemented by division radio-test cars, automobiles on which a mobile type frequency monitoring station is installed. On these test cars are also carired field-strength measuring equipment which are used to determine how great an area is covered by signals of a broadcasting station."

Early Capital Papers On Display at Library

The newspapers came high in the early years of the last century, and nearly all the subscriber received was advertisements. The National Intelligencer and Washington Advertiser, published by Samuel Harrison Smith in 1805, asked $5 for a year's subscription, specifying that it should be paid in advance. By 1829 the Daily National Intelligencer, published by Gales & Seaton, was discouraging short term subscriptions by asking $10 a year and $6 for six months.

These are among old Washington newspapers now on display at the Washingtoniana division in the second-floor lobby of the central building of the Public Library at Eighth and K streets. The papers are a part of a gift to the Public Library by the Association of Oldest Inhabitants.

Jane Interprets the Mode

The smart Autumn bag is the velvet one. (States Dahray).

New York, Sept. 25.

AND now comes the velvet bag again, as a relief from suede and suede and suede, I guess. And what a relief!!

For there is an elegance to velvet, whether it be in hat, gown or bag, that can not be denied. And as to bags, at least, velvet is far, far more practical, for all its seeming fragility, than any other material except leather.

But, and here's a warning. Your new velvet bag is a far more elegant affair than the velvet pouch of a few years ago! Not now can you gather a pouch of velvet into a bunch, and call it a bag! Ah, no, this season's velvet bags are elegance themselves—tailored and cut and fashioned just as though the velvet were antelope or suede. Very few gathers, for there are few gathers on any bags of any material.

Don't be misled by reading that "ruffles" are the latest thing on bags. They are—but these ruffles are cut "en forme" as the French say, and not gathered to the bag. The two bags illustrated for you today show these chic little so-called ruffles, but they are sewn flat to the bag, and the thing that makes them ruffle is the way they are cut at the edge.

As to the practicability of velvet, it puts the cat with nine lives to shame. For no matter what happens to it, it can be held over the steaming spout of the tea kettle, brushed lovingly with a soft brush and revived. Especially is this true of black velvet—and black is the smartest color for the new velvet bags, even those for evening wear.

How many old bag tops have you—or bags the tops of which are all that remain of their former glory? Well, while you are hunting them, or new bag tops in the stores, have your stamped, self-addressed envelope on its way to the Dare department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet which tell you how to make the new velvet bags. This little bag isn't easy to make, without instructions, but with instructions, not hard. And so-o-o-o-o-o, chic! Better send for this leaflet without fail, because you can make this bag in other materials if not velvet, and you can keep the pattern for bag making for Christmas gifts, remember. But I know that when you get the leaflet you are going to be simply crazy about it, and make yourself a whole family of new and expensive velvet bags, for the price of one.

* * * *

A Happy Housewife's Hints.

Here is a hint from Sister Dionne. She writes: "Rusty steel and a raw, cut onion can be brought together with marvelous results! Simply cut the onion, rub it hard on the rusty steel, leave it on for a day, wash the steel off—and away goes your rust!"

* * * *

Last call—last call! If you don't send your stamped, self-addressed envelope right off, this very minute, to the Dare department of The Washington Post you'll be too late for your copy of Dare's leaflet telling the way to make an exact copy of her lovely, ever-so-expensive corset that she bought in Paris!

Au revoir!

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

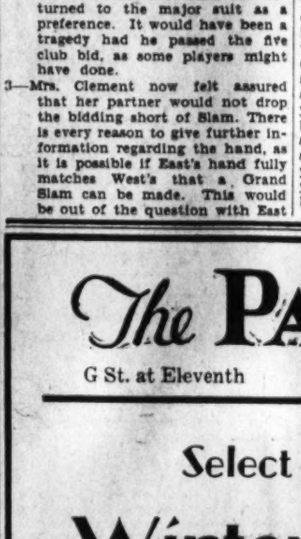
INHIBITING AN ADVERSE LEAD.

IN WARFARE, no sooner is a new and dangerous weapon devised than the experts in the art of war proceed to develop means of counteracting the new menace. In Contract, because of the requirement that in order to score a game you must bid it, information as to honor holdings and frequently also as to distribution becomes the common property of all the players at the table. This frequently points out to the defending players the vulnerable spot of the enemy's lines and when the bidding is ended a heavy barrage is laid down there which quite frequently results in defeat for the Declarer. In order to remedy this situation, many expert Contract players nowadays seek to bewilder their opponents by announcing the possession of strength where they are weak. This type of bidding has proved quite effective particularly in Slam contracts.

Recently, in the Masters' Pair contest for the possession of the von Zedtwitz gold cup, Mrs. Emory P. Clement, of New York, used it effectively, and assured the making of a Slam which would unquestionably have been defeated but for that bid.

North and South vulnerable; East and West not vulnerable.
East, Dealer.



The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

East	South	West	North
1NT	Pass	3♡	Pass
4♡	Pass	5♠(1)	Pass
5♡(2)	Pass	5♠(3)	Pass
6♠(4)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A brilliantly conceived bid. West has already determined that if possible the hand shall be played at a Slam. With her holding the club Opening offers the most dangers. How dangerous that lead would have been only the sequel shows.

2—East, of course, is unaware of the fact that clubs are not equally strong in the West hand, but he was sure that Mrs. Clement held at least as many hearts as clubs, as shown by that suit having been first bid. Forced to a choice between the two suits he returned to the major suit as a preference. It would have been a tragedy had he passed the five club bid, as some players might have done.

3—Mrs. Clement now felt assured that her partner would not drop the bidding short of Slam. There is every reason to give further information regarding the hand, as it is possible if East's hand fully matches West's that a Grand Slam can be made. This would be out of the question with East uninformed as to West's holding in spades.

4—East correctly assumed that West's spade suit was only four cards in length, if the bid was actually intended to show distribution, and being prepared to play six notrump, bridged the decision as to the proper ultimate declaration by bidding six spades. Misled by Mrs. Clement's bidding, East probably figures the West hand to contain five hearts, four spades and four clubs, although there was a possibility that the club bid might be "psychic," resigned to mislead the opponents in the Opening.

North, whose best lead unquestionably is the singleton club, was completely mystified and influenced by West's bid of the club suit opened his fourth best diamond. This, of course, West won with the Ace, drew the trumps and discovered that everything was exactly as she could wish. The four hearts adversely held were divided 2-2 and the only loser was a club trick.

Such bids as these are dangerous and in the vocabulary of the average Contract player should be marked "T.N.T." When they work, the results are all that could be desired. When they fall either through a misunderstanding partner or because an adversary refuses to be misled, the ruse designed to assure success may point the certain way to disaster.

TODAY'S POINTERS.

Passing with good hands to lie in wait for reckless adversaries and double them at a higher range of bidding, generally results in the adversaries playing the hand at a low contract and either making a part-score on the game or scoring an insignificant loss. The best way to trap your adversaries is by bidding boldly, but dexterously. To pass with a strong hand is justified only by considerations of higher strategy when you are reasonably sure that either your adversaries or your partner will bid again.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

THE FOOLISH AGE.

DEAR FRANCES McDONALD:

What is your opinion of a woman of 40 who, having reared a boy and girl to adulthood, could have gained so little perspective as to now be ready to elope?

She says she has always been "heavenly happy" in her home and with her husband. Yet she is really considering the question whether she shall leave all this for the sake of a man eight years her junior, who is very casual about divorce and sees no reason why marriage shouldn't be broken "when love has flown."

Is it possible that she is so upset that she can not see how this idea of his regarding divorce is liable to be boomeranging back at her 10 years from now? She will be 50 then while that gorgeous new husband of hers will be even more gorgeous at the still young age of 42. Can she fail to see that there will be other and younger arms for him? And most likely that idea of casual divorce will be as useful to him then as now.

This woman really doesn't know much about men, which explains to me why she is so absurdly serious about their little love dances. She is not a "modern" type, and has never learned to enjoy the antics of the male. If she had she would now have sympathized with this man's "broken heart" and all that, but never think of deserting her own man and his children. At best she would only get, in return for her trouble, another husband, another warm and well feathered nest. But the chances are against the best. There's that difference in ages, that casual divorce idea, and other things, not to mention her own conscience, which will most certainly trouble her after a while.

I'm not so much interested in the silly woman. It's the plight of the unsuspecting husband and children that worries me. Can't you make her see herself? What a silly thing!

MODERN FORTY.

The number of women who at the silly age plan some such giddy escapade as eloping with whoever happens along, grows daily. About the time the first gray hair appears, certain women seem to feel impelled to prove that they are still capable of inspiring love—or at least a few boxes of orchids. Foolish and senseless. And quite unnecessary. We all know woman's power. And know it does not cease at the coming of the first gray hair. Nor that it is proven by the subjection of some poor lost Lochinvar whose barber has just spoken to him quite seriously about that baldness on top.

It is a fact that it is the "old-fashioned" type that suddenly bursts forth with a "problem" when she ought to be figuring how to get her daughter to college without using force. The more modern type has laughed off several country club attachments, a few college boy crushes, and knows that there does not walk, the man who could make her happy apart from those who are her life. The woman of 40 with children who considers leaving them and a husband who has kept her happy for 20 years is not in love with a new man but in a panic over a new gray hair. She is at the silly age. Silly because it does not know its own power. Does not know that now at last poise and security and position are won and sure. Silly 40. That's all.

ANSWER TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell whether this is a good time to cut a begonia back. My plant flowered beautifully for almost a year. Now all the leaves have fallen and I know it must need to be cut back, but I have always done this in the spring. I do not want to kill my plant.

MRS. THOMAS B.

You may cut back a begonia at any season.

I have a forsythia which has completely outgrown its bounds. If I prune it now will I have to sacrifice next spring's flowers.

MISS HANNAH K.

Yes, the forsythia flowers on wood made the previous season, so if you cut it back at this time you will have few, if any, flowers next year.

How can I prevent caterpillars from ruining my linden tree?

CHARLES D. T.

Remove and destroy all egg clusters now or whenever you see them and spray, when foliage matures in the spring, with arsenate of lead, using three pounds to fifty gallons of water.

I have a wisteria that is fifty years old. Last year it bloomed beautifully. This season it had only six blooms. It is very thick close to the ground. How and when shall I cut it off?

ALICE H. T.

This might just be an off year for flowers or again a late frost may have injured the buds. Pruning should be done after the vine is through flowering, reducing the plant in keeping with its support.

Please tell me how to propagate a Chinese balloon flower?

ELSIE F. P.

The most successful method is by seeds. The root stalk is fleshy and thick and a great deal of care must be exercised in dividing it.

When shall I lift and divide pyrethrum?

MRS. THOMAS F.

Better do this work in very early spring.

When shall I transplant Matilija poppy?

AN AMATEUR.

Spring is the best time to transplant this particular variety of poppy.

Is it true that phloxes need a great amount of moisture?

A NEW GARDENER.

Yes. It is even well, aside from a daily drink, to mulch the plants with lawn clippings during July and August.

PRIZE RECIPES MAKE GOOD SCRAPBOOKS

Collections Are Being Made by Housewives of Awards Printed in Post.

The food editor's mail contains many requests from returning housewives to continue the Saturday Food Page along the same lines it has been run for some months. These letters often have kindly expressions of interest in the aim of The Post to assist the housewives who read its columns in their task of providing appetizing menus at low cost for their families. From Mrs. Helen Loomis who has been a faithful contributor to the contest since it started, comes this letter—in part:

"I inclose two recipes as my contribution to the weekly recipe contest which I enjoy immensely, as, aside from the stimulus of prize winning opportunities, one gets so many new ideas from others. The Post certainly provides a fine medium of exchange.

"I am anticipating a wonderful cooking scrapbook in which the prize recipes figure."

From another contestant, Miss Hazel Batten, comes a like expression: "I enjoy the food page so much and have collected some fine recipes from it."

The food editor takes pride in presenting the following special entries, all of which won either book prizes or honorable mentions.

EGGPLANT WITH BEEF HEART.
(Awarded Book Prize.)

1 large eggplant (smooth and well-rounded)
2 large or 3 small beef or calf hearts (Piggly Wiggly)
1 onion
1 tablespoon butter
Salt to taste
Dash of pepper

Hollow out the eggplant carefully to preserve the shell intact. Cook the portion hollowed out in a little salt water with the chopped onion until tender. Add the butter and pepper.

Boil the hearts until tender. Grind in the food chopper, adding enough of the fat in them to season well. Mix with the cooked eggplant and the onion. Stuff the shell and bake in a roaster in a moderate oven, adding a little water to keep from sticking. Bake until outside of the eggplant is done. Serves six.

¼ cup boiling water.
2 cups sugar (granulated).
1 cup evaporated milk (Asco).
Pinch salt.
Grated rind of 2 oranges.
1 cup nut meats (Frazier's).

Add boiling water to caramelized sugar and boil until sugar is dissolved. Add 2 cups sugar, milk, salt and boil to soft ball stage (235 degrees Fahrenheit if a candy thermometer is used). Just before the candy is done add orange rind. Remove from the fire, add nuts, cool and beat. Drop from a teaspoon on to oiled paper.

This candy also makes a delicious icing for plain spice cake.

WATERMELON MARMALADE.
(Honorable Mention.)

Get a nice, ripe, firm watermelon, sugar and lemons from the Sanitary or Piggly Wiggly Stores.

Cut the red part up in small cubes, removing all the seeds and every bit of the white part. Weigh and add to every pound of the melon a pound of sugar, and to every 3 pounds of fruit the juice and grated rind of a lemon. Place in a large kettle and simmer slowly until quite thick. At first it will become watery, but as soon as it begins to thicken up stir constantly or often enough to keep from burning. When it has become the thickness of marmalade fill jars and seal.

Stale Bread Cake Recipe Wins for Mrs. Scanlon

of 1010 Twenty-second street northwest, whose recipe on how to make stale bread cake wins the $5 prize this week. The recipe is printed in full in the accompanying article.

Ingredients Are Few and Baking Done With Little Trouble.

The Post $5 recipe prize goes to Mrs. B. Scanlon, of 1010 Twenty-second street northwest, this week for her directions on making stale bread cake. The ingredients are few, comparatively, and most of them probably are in your pantry now.

Mrs. Scanlon's directions are clear and it seems as if this cake can be baked with a minimum of trouble. It is tasty and wholesome.

Mrs. Scanlon's recipe follows:

½ loaf sliced bread—Schneider's.
1 pint milk
2 eggs
1 cup raisins
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 small bottle cherries
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon nutmeg

Place a layer of bread in a bread pan, a layer of raisins and cherries which have been cut in halves. Cream sugar and eggs together, add nutmeg and cinnamon to this and then add all together with milk and vanilla. Pour this mixture over the bread. Cook until dry.

Slice and serve with cream or lemon sauce. MRS. B. SCANLON.
1010 Twenty-second street northwest.

Plain Pastry.

4 cups pastry flour
2 teaspoons salt
1 cup fat
1-3 cup evaporated milk and 1-3 cup water, mixed.

All ingredients should be cold. Sift flour, then measure. Resift with salt. Work fat into flour. The pastry will be flakier if fat and flour are not thoroughly blended. Add only sufficient diluted milk to make dough soft enough to roll out.

Maple Float.

3 egg yolks
6 tablespoons maple sirup
Few grains salt
¾ cup cold evaporated milk
1¼ cups ice water
½ cup evaporated milk, chilled and whipped
Few gratings nutmeg

Beat yolks, add sirup, salt, milk and water. Combine thoroughly, either by beating with an egg beater or shaking in a fruit jar. Pour into tall glasses and top with whipped evaporated milk and a few gratings of nutmeg. Yield: Four servings.

Creamed Sardines.

2 cups evaporated milk
½ cup soft bread crumbs
Salt and pepper
Cayenne
1 can sardines (1 cup)
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Toast
Paprika

Cook milk, crumbs and seasonings over boiling water until crumbs are quite soft. Skin and bone the sardines. There should be 1 cup. Add lemon juice and when ready to serve stir into hot sauce. Pour over hot buttered toast or chili and use as a sandwich filling. Yield: Six servings.

Take along a generous supply of nourishing sandwiches made with Schindler's Peanut Butter on your next fishing trip.

SUNSHINE VITAMIN IS FOUND IN BREAD

White Flour Produces Same Effect as Living Out of Doors.

That people can figuratively "eat sunshine" through the perfection of a new process to incorporate the sunshine vitamin D in ordinary white bread, is the latest scientific news.

"Vitamin" is a familiar term these days of modern dietetics and general understanding of the close relationship between the daily food and the health and physical well being of the individual.

Vitamin is a term that is supposed to indicate certain invisible health-giving and disease-preventing elements which exist in many foods.

The Six Vitamins—Today the scientific world knows of six distinct vitamins, each having distinct benefits: A, B-1 (or F), B-2 (or G), C, D and E. Certain foods have no vitamins; others contain an insufficient amount of one or another, but no single natural food contains them all in sufficient quantity to make up the daily amount required by the average person. While foodstuffs supply practically all the vitamins except D, there has hitherto been no ordinary food to provide enough of this "sunshine" vitamin, until the recent announcement that ordinary white bread can now be supplied with vitamin D, incorporated according to a process developed in the Nutritional Research Laboratories of the Paediatric Research Foundation of Toronto.

The incorporation of vitamins in bread has been under investigation during the past year. As over 85 per cent of all bread consumed in North America is white bread, it was decided by scientists working on the problem that this type of bread must be utilized as a vitamin-carrier if the added vitamins were to reach the majority of the population. Bread is consumed in large amounts by the wage-earning class.

The process by which ordinary white bread will now supply vitamin D was developed by the Paediatric Research Foundation of Toronto, which is composed of a group of university scientists working on nutritional problems. The vitamin D will be incorporated in the bread under the Steenbock patents. There is no change in the taste or appearance of a loaf and no increase in price is involved.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

CARE OF THE DIABETIC.

JOSLIN estimates that there are 1,000,000 people in the United States who have diabetes. This is nearly 1 per cent of the entire population, including those who are too young to have the disease. Of these, more than a quarter of a million either have or are due to have gangrene of the feet. Of these, 30,000 will lose their lives from diabetic gangrene unless they take better care of themselves and are given better surgical care than now prevails. So much by way of proof that the subject is of importance.

The disease has four levels, on all of which there is room for improvement. Many otherwise doomed to diabetes could spare themselves by habitually eating less. The foods which should be especially limited are those which contain sugar or starch. Of these, sugar is most harmful.

Of those who have diabetes, a large proportion take poor care of themselves.

At the next level, diabetics can prevent gangrene of the feet in most instances. The presence of excess sugar in the blood is quite harmful to the blood vessels in which it is contained. Therefore every person who has had diabetes for any considerable time, or who has neglected himself, can be certain that his blood vessels are in poor condition.

He is liable to have one break in his brain, causing apoplexy. If he neglects his feet and legs he is quite likely to develop gangrene. Most of this danger can be avoided by washing the feet daily, by extra caution in trimming the nails and cutting corns and calluses, and by protecting the skin against blistering and rubbing. Care should be exercised against freezing, or even severely chilling the feet.

If gangrene should unfortunately develop, there is still a chance to escape serious consequences. It is generally agreed that radical surgery in gangrene of the feet due to diabetes, and also that due to frostbite, Raynaud's disease, and Buerger's disease, is wrong. It is very much better to do no surgery at all unless it is especially indicated and, even then, to trim rather than to amputate.

Dr. Samuel Barbash says the use of diathermy is of service in gangrene of the feet and legs in diabetes. Using it will limit the amount of tissue lost and will greatly decrease the need of amputation. Others think the use of hot water will serve somewhat the same purpose. This applies to the gangrene of frozen feet, Raynaud's and Buerger's diseases as well.

YOU HAVE DROPSY.

C. J. K. writes:

1. I have had swollen legs for over a year. I can hardly get my shoes on in the morning. Also, my body gets swollen up around the stomach. Is this dropsy?

2. I can hardly breathe. I get all blue in my face and feel as if somebody is choking me. Is that the same disease?

3. Is Epsom salts any good for it to draw the water out?

4. I would also like a know what causes so many sleepless nights.

REPLY.

1. You have dropsy, probably as the result of heart disease, kidney disease, or both.
2. It is.
3. No.
4. Probably difficult breathing due to heart disease. You should be under the care of a good physician.

"THE SQUAW MAN." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the stage play by Edwin Milton Royle, with added dialogue by Elsie Janis, featuring Warner Baxter, Lupe Velez and Eleanor Boardman, supported by Roland Young, Charles Bickford, Paul Cavanagh, Raymond Hatton, Julia Faye, J. Farrell MacDonald, T. DeWitt Jennings, Master Dickie Moore and scores more. Directed by Cecil B. De Mille. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

It is an elaborated and slightly altered articulate version of this famous old melodrama that Cecil B. De Mille brings us now, seventeen years after his first silent filming of the Edwin Milton Royle story of the titled Englishman who assumed a cousin's guilt, buried himself in Buzzards Pass, Ariz., and tried to forget the English gentlewoman he loved by marrying an adoring Indian maiden who bore him a son. From every consideration of material investiture and photography, the piece, of course, has been vastly improved; in the final effect of its tragic denouement it has, it seems to me, been made a little more lugubrious than I remember ever having seen it before.

"The Squaw Man" presents an unusual blending of the fashionable life of British aristocracy and the primitive mode of living that prevailed in the isolated cow country of our own Far West a quarter of a century ago. New scenes have been added in both divisions of the play's action and such modern touches as bootlegging and dope running over the Mexican border injected to lend a strictly modern touch. Even so, the play still seems to be predicated largely upon the assumption that telegraph, radio, automobiles and airplanes have not, to a great extent, removed distance and obliterated time. Jim Carston would have a tough time these days hiding out for seven years the way he did back in 1907.

However, this is mere carping over the comparative nonessentials of a film that is handsomely produced and splendidly acted by a surprisingly long list of distinguished principals. Warner Baxter, in the role created on the stage by William Faversham, plays with perhaps a little more repression than usual, but, nevertheless, offers a consistent and a compelling performance, matching toughness and bravado with Cash Hawkins, the bad man, when occasion demands. This is the role William S. Hart had in the original cast, now played by Charles Bickford, one mean hombre!

Feminine honors are divided between Lupe Velez and Eleanor Boardman, with Senorita Velez, in the role of the Indian wife, who can not fathom the white man's view of life, rather topping Miss Boardman, as Diana, the part in which Julie Opp appeared with her husband on the stage. Mr. De Mille's new treatment of the drama endows the little Indian girl with a tremendously sympathetic appeal.

The large supporting ensemble reveals no weakness of moment, being led, as it is, by Roland Young, Paul Cavanagh, as the renegade cousin; Raymond Hatton, Julia Faye, T. DeWitt, Jennings, J. Farrell MacDonald, Mitchell Lewis and little Dickie Moore, a precocious and wholly charming Hal, small son of the squaw man and his Indian bride.

On the stage, Helen Kane, who has added a squeal and a tiny scream or two to her repertoire of boo-poo-pa-doops, runs away with the "Karnival Kapers" revue, even after every one else in the cast has had a shot at it. Miss Kane was at her best yesterday afternoon in a group of typical baby-talk numbers and a final encore in which she proceeded to take Jack Sidney, singing master of ceremonies, apart.

"Karnival Kapers" abounds in dancing. Adeline Seaman out-twirls a whirling dervish; Jean Spence does a toe tap dance and Mona Dobson executes a contortionistic number that is a marvel. Then there are the four Gaits Brothers, singly and en masse, who will fairly dance your eye out. Nancy, the wonder horse, is good for many a laugh.

The Hearst Movietone News, the Palace Syncopators and Charles Gaige at the organ complete a substantial entertainment.

FOX

"THE MAGNIFICENT LIE." Fox picturization of the stage play by Vincent Lawrence and Samson Raphaelson from Leonard Merrick's novel, "Laurels and the Lady," starring Ruth Chatterton, supported by Ralph Bellamy, Stuart Erwin and Sam Hardy. Directed by Berthold Viertel. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

A new Chatterton, a Chatterton to laugh with this time. As a tough, little, wise-cracking songster in a somewhat questionable New Orleans cafe, she is a constant delight. There is drama, too, and almost a tear, though, wonder upon wonders for a Chatterton film, there is only one bona fide sob and that is in a moment of "Camille."

Just imagine the word, cute, and the name, Chatterton! Yet, this time they go deliciously together.

Perhaps you are tired of young war victims suddenly losing their sight and presto, a blow on the head, and back it comes, but so interesting is this story, so engaging is Ralph Bellamy, as the young blind soldier, so repentant is Ruth Chatterton for her part in the mix-up that you'll probably be glad such things do happen.

Bill is injured and terrifically shell-shocked in the war. During a raid on his hospital, he meets the famous actress, Rosa Duchain. Eleven years later in New Orleans, he is still struggling with bad eyesight and is still in love with the actress' memory. At a performance of her "Camille," he goes blind.

A singing girl in a nearby cabaret is persuaded to impersonate Duchain as a joke on the blinded boy, but the joke goes a bit further than she intended.

This impersonating business is far from easy, but Ruth Chatterton juggles voices and manners about expertly, creating a rather splendid character study that steps out in turn and mimics one already established by Duchain.

Ralph Bellamy, new to this reviewer, is emphatically one for the books. As Bill, he is most appealing and very, very good. And as we have expected for oh, so long, Stuart Erwin shows us that comedy is far from being his limit. A fine job, especially his drunken bit.

Save for one or two platitudinous slips, the dialogue is swift and sure, or perhaps it's the way they say it. Direction of a somewhat involved story needs to be definite and clear and this is.

The "Carnival" on the stage is notable for the costuming and cleverness of the chorus numbers skillfully danced, somersaulted, twisted and turned by the Carla Torney dancers, and for the ingratiating dancing of Raynor Lehr. "Teddy," the bear is a swell, shimmery-coated beast and he reaches out after his victims in a businesslike way, but the human share of his act is not so good. The Andresens balance and climb poles, and Cropley and Violet have new tricks with the same old ropes.

Al Mitchell leads hits from Earl Carroll's new review-panned revue and the newsreel completes the bill.

"SMART WOMAN." RKO-Radio picturization of the play, "Nancy's Private Affair," by Myron C. Fagan, adapted to the screen by Salisbury Field, featuring Mary Astor and Robert Ames, supported by Edward Everett Horton, Noel Francis and John Halliday. Directed by George LeCava. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Omitting some port' :s, and changing others of the stage play, "Smart Woman" turns out to be quite as charming and delightful a bit of farce as was the living production of "Nancy's Private Affair," which will be recalled as having been done a season or so back by the National Theater Players.

Returning from Europe still completely in love with her husband, Nancy Gibson finds that during her absence friend hubby has fallen for a gold-digging blonde. So, to win Don back, she stages a week-end party and invites Peggy, the would-be new wife, and Sir Guy, with whom a bogus "affair" is staged. After money, regardless of where it may be found Peggy soon deserts Don for Sir Guy and Nancy gets back her man.

Simple, isn't it? Yet there are here involved all the elements of good fun, and not entirely without a bit of necessary drama.

Mary Astor, as Nancy, does a fine job, depicting her difficult dual character adroitly and, aided by cleverly written lines, convincing the audience that she is a smart woman and her private affair is completely successful. Robert Ames, as the husband caught between two fires, is all that could be desired and his sincerity at the reconciliation is exceptionally well simulated.

As the brother-in-law, just plain disgusted at Mr. Ames' fickleness, Edward Everett Horton gives another of his customarily polished performances, of an excellence quite out of proportion to the requirements of the part. In the roles of the gold-digging daughter, and the equally proficient metallurgical mother are Noel Francis and Gladys Gale, who render fine accounts of themselves. John Halliday is a fine excuse for an "affair" and in a grand manner submerges his own desires to enter into the situations for Nancy's benefit.

Heading the list of subsidiary attractions are Bobby Clark and Paul McCullough in "False Roomers," a rather plotless farce, but one of the sort they can do so well. In "Floating Fun," one of the "Sportlight" series, Grantland Rice seems to miss the target, this pictorial essay of yachting and sailboating falling short of the standard of earlier releases. "The Utmost Isle," a Vagabond adventure, depicts life in Ceylon.

A froggy Aesop Fable, "Love in a Pool," and a release of the Pathe News rounds out the bill.

METROPOLITAN

"ALEXANDER HAMILTON." Warner Brothers picturization of the stage play by George Arliss and Mary Hamlin, adapted to the screen by Julian Josephson and Maude Howell, starring George Arliss, supported by Doris Kenyon, Montague Love, Dudley Digges, Alan Mowbray, Ralf Harolde, June Collyer, Lionel Belmore and John Larkin. Directed by John Adolfi. Reviewed (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

Following a stroke of genius in popularizing him through the medium of "The Millionaire," the Warner brothers bring George Arliss back in another costume drama. The delineation of the trials and tribulations of the first Secretary of the Treasury during the formative period of the Nation's early growth offers Mr. Arliss another opportunity to emphasize his craftsmanship. And the character as he draws it at least approaches the standard set in "Disraeli" and "Old English"—a charming personality, combining grim determination, dry humor and homely kindliness.

Lies, deceit and even blackmail, engendered by the petty, scheming politicians of the day, add to this biographical narrative a note of satire whose philosophy might well be taken to heart in this year A. D. 1931.

Out of all the vicissitudes, the unswerving integrity and patriotism of Alexander Hamilton emerge victorious.

Paramount's release of "Screen Souvenir," a potpourri of camera shots of 20 years ago, embellished with a synchronized description that makes the melodramas and newsshots delightful comedies, heads the list of short subjects. Issues of Robert Ripley's "Believe It Or Not," the Paramount Pictorial and the Universal News complete the program.

COLUMBIA

"STREET SCENE." United Artists picturization of Elmer Rice's play, adapted to the screen by the author, featuring Sylvia Sidney and William Collier, jr., supported by David Landau, Estelle Taylor and Beulah Bondi. Directed by King Vidor. Reviewed (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

The screen version of Elmer Rice's Pulitzer prize play, depicting life as it is lived in the less fashionable district of a great city, continues for another week. And well it might, for seldom has the starkness of human existence been so forcefully depicted. With little in the way of comedy relief, "Street Scene" follows its dramatic, even tragic, course with a genuine appeal. Too heavy, but without being ponderous, this drama can hardly be classed as amusement—if by that term is meant something light, frothy and relaxing, requiring little, if any, mental effort.

As with the tenement house which it portrays, the picture has no characters that might be called pivotal. Sylvia Sidney and William Collier, jr., the featured players, who furnish the love interest; Beulah Bondi, as the garrulous housekeeper, and David Landau, the philosophizing socialist, are those whose performances can be ranked highest, even in a cast otherwise uniformly meritorious.

If, as has been proposed, the really great art consists in depicting life in all its stark realism, "Street Scene" is a great and artistic triumph—for Elmer Rice, for King Vidor and for the acting company.

The short subjects include "Volley and Smash," the third and last of the tennis lessons by William T. Tilden 2d; "Catch as Catch Can," a hilarious rassling travesty, with ZaSu Pitts, Thelma Todd and Gwinn Williams; a celluloid organlogue by Lew White and a new release of the Paramount Sound News.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

AND here comes a job in the movies that you probably have never even heard of. It is owned by a sort of hard-looking bozo by the name of Fred Gilroy. Fred's official title is "inside rags" expert.

Now housewives probably wouldn't call them that, but to Mr. Gilroy any fabric used for interior decoration—carpets, tablecloths, laces, bedspreads, tapestries, curtains—are inside rags.

This man's appearance and his occupation seem to be just a little incongruous. Fred is a pleasant young man who wears a soiled cap pulled over one ear—I forget which one—and chews tobacco. Also, he doesn't like to shave. Those who know him, though, will tell you that he is an artist, even if he doesn't look like one. As Mr. Hubbard Keavy, king-stinger of this column's West Coast eye-to-the-keyhole department, sagely observes, there are also a lot of people in Hollywood who look like artists and aren't, so probably everything is all even.

There is more to this "inside rags" experting than at first meets the eye. I am led to believe that, contrary to general impression, when a rich effect is desired, rich materials of precisely the right textures and colors must be used. How to achieve the effect nearest that sought within the budget allowed for this particular item in the picture's embellishment frequently presents a pretty problem. In such cases Fred Gilroy is the doctor—or maybe I mean the court of last resort.

There is only one job I have ever heard of in which Fred was a failure. That was an "outside rag" job, so he may be excusable. I mean the time they commissioned him to create the whale for use in "The Sea Beast," adapted from "Moby Dick." That mechanical whale, with its steel frame, trick innards, to give the appearance of living motion, and all the rest of its gadgets is said to have cost in the neighborhood of $50,000 to bring to the point of practical test. Gilroy worked for months, stitching and fitting and painting. Then the whale was taken to the sea and laid on the placid bosom of the Pacific.

It sank without a struggle and never was recovered!

A press of office duties prevented my being among those present yesterday to greet her, but it may be of interest to you to know that Fifi D'Orsay, here for a week of personal appearances at the Earle, beginning today, arrived at the Washington-Hoover Airport quite a bit behind the hour of 2:40 p. m. set for her landing.

It seems that her pet terrier was taken sick in Philadelphia, and the plane bearing her to Washington was consequently delayed something over a quarter of an hour in taking off.

The dog's name, I believe, is Koko, but I do not understand that that is where his pain was.

There should be no dearth of chanteusing at the Shoreham this week, by the way. Both Mlle. D'Orsay and Helen Kane, playing in the same block on Thirteenth street—Miss Kane is poo-poo-pa-dooing them right out of their seats at the Palace—are stopping there.

There is an interesting engagement beginning tonight out on the Rockville pike, too.

Mildred Harris Chaplin, former wife of the famous comedian, who first appeared locally on the stage of the Metropolitan, in conjunction with the world premiere of a Louis B. Mayer production, directed by John M. Stahl, "The Woman in His House," and later headlined several times at B. F. Keith's, is Mischa Guterson's stellar attraction at the Chateau Lido for the ensuing week.

Years ago, Mr. Guterson coached Mildred Harris for her first stage appearance at Sid Grauman's Million Dollar Theater in Los Angeles. At that time he taught her to sing a song bearing the title of "Beautiful Lady," That is the song she is going to revive and feature this coming week at the Chateau.

Mildred Harris Chaplin, you may recall, was one of the entertainers aboard that week-end showboat from which the millionaire Japanese importer so mysteriously disappeared.

Yoo-hoo, Mabelle! Not ginger ale; White Rock, dearie.

In case you hadn't noticed, John Larkin, the colored actor who does such a swell job of butling for Alexander Hamilton in George Arliss' picture of that name at the Metropolitan, is the same clever player who had the role of the aged trainer in "Sporting Blood"—considered by many the star bit of the picture.

Well, I see those police brutality cases are coming out just the way you thought they would!

RICE'S ERROR PAVES WAY AS NATS BOW TO YANKS, 8-3;

3 GAMES TODAY USHER IN CAPITAL'S FOOTBALL SEASON

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

GENE TUNNEY'S first literary effort is appearing in a popular magazine and the press release says that Gene has fooled everybody again.

Recent reports that Tunney was doing some serious writing led fight fans to expect a series of articles on boxing, according to the editor, but the article has nothing to do with boxing. It is an account of his travels in Russia.

But Gene didn't fool this column. I remember when he was the honor guest at the last Georgetown University "G" dinner and hundreds of us were waiting with bated breath for the retired undefeated heavyweight champion of the world to tell us something of his two bouts with Dempsey. He did refer to himself as a professional athlete and then launched into a long discourse on international relationship, which he fumbled from start to finish, with nary a word about fights and fighting.

Tunney has put his boxing career behind him with studied aversion to the subject.

The notice of Tunney's article says that Gene found real privacy in Russia. Nobody remembered that he was the heavyweight champion. Nobody cared.

Reminds us of his farewell fight with Tom Heeney when Tunney found a lot of privacy in Yankee Stadium. The fight fans, still bemoaning the "long count" at Chicago, might have remembered that Tunney was still the heavyweight champion. But they didn't care to the extent of paying to see him fight. It was the most notable financial flop of Tex Rickard's promotorial career.

Mate's defeat by the filly Tambour at Havre de Grace the other day is not so surprising.

Mate apparently can't run his best race unless Twenty Grand, the 3-year-old champion, is entered with him. Three times he has led Twenty Grand to the finish line.

Al Wittmer, the former Princeton back field star, who this year succeeds Bill Roper as coach of the Tiger varsity, has eliminated between-the-halves pep talks in favor of calm, deliberate discussions of the players' errors and shortcomings, a new departure in football.

Wittmer couldn't work for Tom Mills, Georgetown's coach. Mills, a master at inspirational discourses, would as soon omit his pep talks between the halves as send his team on the field minus two tackles and an end. No football player is 100 per cent efficient unless he is aroused to a fighting pitch, Mills contends. And so did Rockne.

The football season proper opens today with the flyweights matched against the heavyweights as the big institutions take on "breathers" for harder games to come.

But the Sunday morning scores always bear testimony of the uncertainty of football. Remember what little Ripon did to Chicago two years ago? It is in these early season games that the small colleges are best able to score an upset. It is then that the big schools are still in an experimental stage with their squads of more than a hundred candidates, while the little college and its limited talent is already working with a cohesive team. Watch tomorrow morning's paper.

Tom Mills at Georgetown, Knute Rockne's closest counterpart among the football coaches, who looks like Rockne and acts like Rockne, does not have the same flair for publicity that characterized Rockne. Mills is unconcerned with the pregame notices of the Georgetown team.

As he put it recently: "The Sunday morning publicity is all that worries me. That's the only day I'm particular." And, come to think of it, he said a lot.

N. B. A. Invites Nine Matmen to Meet Lewis

Chicago, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—The National Boxing Association will make another attempt to do something toward establishing the identity of the heavyweight wrestling champion.

Maj. Gen. John V. Clinnin, president of the N. B. A. and chairman of the Illinois State Athletic Commission, has invited nine grunt and groaners to meet Ed (Strangler) Lewis, for the title in a charity bout, the winner to be recognized as champion. Those invited to tug and haul with Lewis are Jim Londos, Wladek Zbysko, Kola Kwariana, Gus Sonnenberg, John Pesek, Don George, Henri de Glane, George Calza and Joe Stecher.

Lebanon Seen Easy Test For G. U.

Maryland to Oppose Washington Again in Debut.

Shenandoah Is Foe of G. W.; Boston College Host to C. U.

By JACK ESPEY.

DISDAINFUL of baseball's closing dramas, fistiana's furore over the Sharkey-Carnera thing, and racing's big stakes, King Football parades onto the sports stage today with hundreds of bloated cowhides being kicked, passed and carried by sinewy young men of our colleges.

Locally, the new entertainment consists of three games, all starting at 2:30 o'clock, with Georgtown meeting Lebanon Valley in Griffith Stadium, George Washington engaging Shenandoah in Central Stadium, and Maryland opposing Washington College at College Park.

Just how well sports lovers will greet the collegians is a matter of conjecture, for only a few days ago John J. Public was battling the heat, little anticipating a game that thrives in cool weather.

Collegiate Setting Assured.

At any rate, the rah rah lads and the coeds will be there with their bands, streamers and typical collegiate hulabaloo, and if the curious nonpartisan is seeking diversion he will find it in the stands, if not on the field.

It will be opening-game football, which means lack of finesse and coordination, if the coaches are correct in their predictions. But from a local viewpoint the proceedings should be on the whole gratifying since in each instance the home team figures to win the decision handily.

At a late hour last night Coach Tommy Mills of Georgetown had not announced his starting line-up. So many of his athletes have been showing up impressively that he couldn't decide which eleven deserve first-string rating.

It is probable, however, that at game-time Mills will select a combination of sophomores and veterans, for during the past three weeks' practice he has been mixing his material indiscriminately.

Lebanon's Hopes In Air.

From all reports Lebanon Valley will cause Georgetown little trouble unless the Hilltop's defense against forward passes disintegrates into something like a sieve. The Annville, Pa., team is expected to go to the air in an attempt to score a surprise.

A veteran team will take the field for Maryland against Washington College, which once more looms as easy meat for the Old Line although it should improve over its 6-60 showing of 1930.

Ten of the eleven Maryland players are letter men and nine of them were regulars last year. Only Bill Evans, quarter back, and Bill Fisher, tackle, are missing from last year's team.

In order to get a more accurate line on his reserves, who may hold the key to success this year, Coach Curley Byrd will remove the veterans from the game at the earliest possible moment.

George Washington stands head and shoulders above Shenandoah in point of ability and will disappoint its followers if it does not win by a margin

C. U. Coach to Start Jankowski at Boston

Special to The Washington Post.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 25. — Bright, snappy weather, ideally suited to football, greeted Catholic University's Cardinals this afternoon as they romped through their final practice here. Tomorrow Coach Arthur Bergman's huskies will tackle Boston College at Fenway Park.

Not only are Bostonians anticipating a lively contest but Catholic University's alumni—firmly entrenched locally—is evidencing unusual interest in the impending spectacle.

A last-minute revision was made in Catholic University's starting line-up today. Because his lame shoulder has mended and his blocking is badly needed, John Jankowski is to supplant Carl De Mello at right half back. With De Mello missing from the starting order, Acting Capt. Lester (Bus) Shleary will be given complete charge of the punting. Kicking against the wind this afternoon he more than made good, averaging from 40 to 45 yards per effort.

Ohio U. and Indiana Battle In Midwest Feature Today

CHICAGO, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Football's big parade for 1931 starts over the Middle West tomorrow with most of the championship-contending teams falling in line with warm-up games.

Out of the more than 50 battles scheduled for the first blowoff of the year, the tussle between Indiana and Ohio U. at Bloomington, and the start of Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg's fortieth consecutive Chicago football team against Cornell College of Iowa and Hilladale of Chicago, in a double-header were the outstanding features.

Notre Dame attracted considerable attention down at South Bend, Ind., with a Knute Rockne Memorial game between the varsity and the reserves. While the competitive angle was missing, the mix-up promised to give Rockne's successor, Coach Heartly ("Hunk") Anderson and the football world in general a fairly good inventory of what kind of a team the Ramblers have this year.

Indiana, led by a new coach in E. C. Hayes, faced a stiff foe in Ohio U. Four sophomores of great promise were expected to make their debut for Indiana, apparently a much stronger team than a year ago.

Chicago wasn't expected to have much trouble against Cornell and no worries at all against Hilladale, but a large crowd for a preliminary game was expected to see Coach Stagg's fortieth team take the field. Coach Stagg, at 70 years, was enthusiastic despite the inroads of ineligibility which robbed him of two fine prospects.

Minnesota, one of the darkest horses of the Big Ten championship race this year, also had a double-header for its opening football dish, meeting the North Dakota Aggies and

McNair, Small Town Boy, May Be "Big Timer" for Macks in Coming Series

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Boob McNair, who is likely to play himself some odd lots of baseball in Connie Macks infield during the World series, is a country boy from a suburb of Meridian, Miss., which is partly big enough to make a suburb for East Whiffletree, Vt. Explorers who have penetrated to Boob McNair's suburb state that the natives there still look upon the bicycle as a devilish mechanism on the ground that had Providence wished mankind to go tearing along at 20 miles an hour people would be born with wheels instead of legs.

They still regard Pearl White as the world's greatest moving picture actress, and when the news of Bob Lee's surrender gets around to them the consternation will be unconfined. The Athletics called this young man Boob because of his not quite bright expression, but in his first year in the majors, and with the world champion club at that, he has played everything

Sharkey Resumes Work; Mails $5,000 Forfeit

Boston, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Jack Sharkey today announced that he had mailed the New York Boxing Commission a certified check for $5,000 as a forfeit for his battle with Primo Carnera, now postponed until October 12.

Sharkey had his injured hand baked today and noted such an improvement that he decided to resume heavy training here on Monday.

New York, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Negotiations for a heavyweight bout October 1 between Primo Carnera and Tommy Loughran today were abandoned.

Glenna Vare, Helen Hicks In Finals

U. S. Champion Beats Miss Van Wie, 2 Up in National.

Miss Hicks Triumphs Over Enid Wilson, England, 2 and 1.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Helen Hicks, youthful star from Long Island, today made safe for the United States its national women's golf title by defeating Enid Wilson, the British champion, 2 up and 1 to play, in a semifinal match of the thirty-fifth annual tournament.

By her victory over the methodical Briton, 20-year-old Helen won the right to meet Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, of Philadelphia, five times the champion and present defender, in the final match tomorrow. Mrs. Vare became a finalist for the sixth time in a close-fought match with Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, which she won two up on the eighteenth green. Miss Van Wie was her final opponent in 1928 and last year.

Almost Perfect Golf Shown By Miss Hicks.

Miss Hicks turned in one of the greatest exhibitions of her six years of golf in defeating Miss Wilson, doing the seventeen holes they played in 74 strokes, two under women's par for the distance and three strokes less than her British rival.

Helen, who lost to Mrs. Vare in the semifinals at Los Angeles last year, played almost perfect golf to defeat her towering opponent. Miss Hicks consistently outdrove the English girl on the last eight holes and used her added yardage to advantage in playing safely for the green while Miss Wilson was forced into taking chances which proved costly.

Mrs. Vare found Miss Van Wie a more formidable opponent than she was last year in the finals, the Chicago girl carrying the peerless Glenna to the last green to decide their match, and leading her at two stages of the first nine.

Mrs. Vare started out erratically finding traps on the first hole, which Virginia won with a par 5, but Glenna strung together three straight birdies to win the second, third and fourth holes, the last one with a 25-foot putt. Her putting touch then deserted her and Virginia took the next two holes to square the match and went ahead at the seventh, where she chipped within 4 feet of the pin and sank her putt while Glenna was taking 2. The eighth was halved. Glenna won the ninth to square the match as Miss Van Wie three-putted.

Mrs. Vare Never Down After Ninth Hole.

The champion started strongly, winning the tenth and eleventh to take a lead she never relinquished. Three of the next five holes were halved, and each girl won one. Dormie 2 going to the seventeenth tee, Virginia matched the champion stroke to the green and then laid a dead stymie. Mrs. Vare tried valiantly to overcome the hazard but hit Virginia's ball and then needed two more putts to get down, losing the hole to be only 1 up.

Glenna got one of those breaks that mean the difference between triumph and disaster on the eighteenth, when her ball, apparently headed out of bounds, struck a spectator and bounced back on the fairway. Virginia was in the rough and then went into a trap with her third, while Glenna was 12 feet from the pin. Virginia missed a 25-footer and ran across to Glenna, her hand outstretched.

Miss Hicks' Victory Also Nets Lucky Piece

Buffalo Country Club, Williamsville, N. Y., Sept. 25 (A.P.).—When Helen Hicks, of Hewlett, defeated Enid Wilson, the British champion, in the semifinal round of the women's national golf championship today, the foreign titleholder handed her conqueror a gold sovereign.

"This was given to me by a friend in England who told me to present it to the first woman who beat me in the United States," said Miss Wilson. "Good luck."

TECH ELEVEN WINS, 14-0, IN OPENER

Sachs and Gormley Star as Baltimore Poly Bows.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 25.—McKinley Tech, of Washington, was too far advanced into its football for Baltimore Polytechnic's eleven today at the stadium, the result being that the visitors slapped a 14-to-0 defeat into the record of the Engineers.

McKinley started its second team and held to that plan until in the second half of the game. Sachs, captain of the invaders, came into the fray for a while, just long enough to do his bit in the way of making a touchdown, and then went to the side lines again.

Both teams played on practically even terms for the first half. There was no fancy stuff tried out, both elevens being content to work along with straight football.

Tech Starts Bearing Down In Second Half.

In the third period the visitors began to bear down. After a series of exchanges via the punting route, it was McKinley's ball in the center of the field. Two line plays carried it to Poly's 34-yard marker. Edwards then tossed to McKinley for 24 yards. Five more were gained through the line and then Gormley went over for the first touchdown, and Rhoades kicked the extra point.

In the last quarter, McKinley, after the ball had been worked up and down the field, began to get through the Tech defense. Sachs came into the contest and finally carried the ball over and Rhoades toed the additional point.

'Beer for Five,' Kicks Five Off Princeton Grid Squad

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 25 (A.P.). "Beer for five" has brought woe to that many members of the Princeton varsity football squad, a jolt to the team's prospects, regret and slight discomfiture to the university at large.

It seems that last Saturday night, at the close of a warm and muggy day, the five pigskin warriors whose names have not been revealed, journeyed away from the old Nassau campus to a quiet retreat in Trenton, N. J., where refreshments not in accordance with the Volstead law are obtainable.

"Beer for five" they ordered, settling down to forget the discomforts of early season practice under a steaming sun.

But it also seems that Al Wittmer had laid down definite rules as to recovering that way from the ardors of practice. Wittmer is head coach at Princeton for the first time, succeeding Bill Roper. There isn't much material on his squad. By agreement with Yale the training season did not start until September 15. To help matters along he asked all his football candidates to keep in strict training.

But the five boys were thirsty, the beer was cold, and the opening game with Amherst October 3 seemed far away. Unexpectedly another Princeton man entered the place. It was Big Ed McMillan, All-America center for Princeton in 1925, now a member of Wittmer's coaching staff.

The five football players, still unidentified, withdrew in confusion from their beer and McMillan wended his way sorrowfully back to the Princeton campus to report to Wittmer. The code of ethics is strict. There was no choice either for McMillan or Wittmer. On Monday, after admitting their guilt, the boys were suspended,

Four New York Homers, Two by Ruth, Overcome Early 3-1 Lead of Nats

"SAD SAM" RICE

Now Top Yanks by ½ Game After 6-Run Rally in 8th.

Crowder Relieved by Marberry; Kuhel Hits Homer.

By RICHARDS VIDMER
(Baseball Writer, New York Herald Tribune.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Sam Rice, the old reliable, almost let second place slip right through his fingers at the Yankee Stadium this afternoon; almost, but not quite. The Nats still hold a slender grasp of half a game on the runner-up position, but Sammy didn't hold Lazzeri's fly at all and so the Yanks took the second game of the series for second place 8 to 3.

The Nats were leading all along the line until Rice dropped that fly. A honor run by Kuhel, after Harris had singled, gave them a two-run margin in the second inning and, despite two home runs by Babe Ruth, each with the bases empty as a box car on a siding, they still hadn't been headed with two out in the eighth.

Crowder Is Pounded Off Of Mound.

Ruth's second home run had brought the Yankees up on even terms and when Chapman walked and Dickey singled with one out, Alvin Crowder, who had been holding the hill in a very military manner, was relieved by Fred Marberry.

Marberry did all he could to keep the Nats on even terms, forcing Lary to lift a short fly to West for the second out and Lazerri to pop another into Rice's hands for what should have been the third. To all outward appearances the teams were going to go into the ninth all tied and tangled up. There was nothing difficult about that fly; it didn't do any loops or tailspins, it wasn't specially high and it wasn't specially far.

Rice took a couple of steps forward, planted his feet and waited for it to come down in his most blase manner. His teammates started coming in for their turn at bat as the ball descended. Chapman and Dickey, who were on the bases, came tearing around, but it was a hopeless gesture they were making. They knew as well as anybody else that the ball would be caught.

But it wasn't.

Five Alien Runs Follow Error By Rice.

It landed in Rice's glove, trickled over the finger tips and dropped with a disheartening plunk to the ground. Two runs pattered over the platter and three more followed before the inning ended, Combs hitting a home run to drive in the last handful.

So the Nationals, instead of increasing their lead to a point where even Jim Londos couldn't break their hold on second place, slipped back and found the Yankees trodding on their heels, just a half game behind, with two games to play tomorrow.

Kuhel's homer started the scoring. After Harris has singled, with one out in the second, the Nat first-sacker met one of Pennock's slow ones squarely on the nose and propelled it into the sun god parlor in right.

It was another homer, which accounted for the next scoring. Pennock, the veteran pitcher, surprising himself as well as the fans by opening round 3 with a four-base blow to right.

In the fourth the Nats added another run to their total, becoming 2 up. Singles by Bluege and Spencer and Crowder's infield out were used in the making of this marker, which,

QUARTER DECK OUTRUNS NEGOPOLI IN FEATURE AT GRAW

Choice Victor By Neck In Drive

Aldershot Wins Third as Voltagreen Runs Far Back.

Jackstaff Graduates Easily in Opener for Maidens.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

HAVRE DE GRACE RACE TRACK, Sept. 25.—Vice President Charles Curtis was among the 8,000 spectators who saw Morton L. Schwartz's Quarter Deck, 4-year-old brown son of Man o' War and Trace, race a mile and one-sixteenth in 1:45 4-5 to win the fourth race, looked upon as the top number of today's featureless card.

Quarter Deck was held back of the pace for a half mile, but when let down was quickly joined by Negopoli and they raced as a team from there to the pay-off line, with Quarter Deck getting the decision by a neck.

Hold, one that made the early pace on sufferance, easily bested the other four starters for third money.

While the field was at the post, Quarter Deck lashed out his heels and struck E. S. (Long Taw) Welter on the head, inflicting a deep gash. Welter was saved from serious injury by a heavy felt hat which he wore low on his head.

The colors of A. M. Herkness, of Philadelphia, were carried to victory by Jackstaff in the day's five-and-one-half-furlong opener. Away with the first flight, Jackstaff rushed around his field at the first turn to easily hold his eleven opponents safe the rest of the way home. Sylvester W. Labrot's Tinge, one that had a rough journey, got up in time to take the place. The Middleburg Stable's White Flyer came from back the last half to be third.

Elmer Trueman, who trained Jackstaff, tried to make it a double in the second with Altmark, but, after the colt set the pace to the sixteenth pole, along came W. R. Coe's Ha Ha to win, with Altmark outlasting Jambalaya, who was coupled with Ha Ha in the wagering, for the place money.

Aldershot, four-year-old chestnut gelded son of Man o' War and Cornish, racing for A. E. Griffith, of Rochester, N. Y., stepped six furlongs in 1:12 2-5, to account for the third.

Aldershot followed Sir James' pace for a half-mile where he went around the pacemaker to win as his rider desired. Golden Prince and Inferno Lad both closed gamely in the stretch to take the place and show money, respectively.

Margaret Mc Wins Fifth By a Head.

Volta Green, the odds-on favorite, although under whip all through the last quarter mile, failed to rouse a respectable gallop.

Another rousing finish occurred in the mile and one-sixteenth of the fifth when J. C. Cremen's Margaret Mc came from behind in the stretch to win by a head from the Sagamore Stable's Snappy Snub. The pair hooked up on the back lane and fought it out around the turn and down to the wire with Margaret Mc shoving her head in front right at the wire. Third money went to Clipsetta, one that was left at the post by the ragged start.

Mrs. H. Pyne's 6-year-old brown gelding, Strongheart, favorite in the betting, rewarded his backers in the seventh, although they were given quite a scare in the early part of the race. Strongheart, away slowly, was unable to get up with the leaders until the back stretch.

Once in command, however, he managed to last out, although Jockey P. Remillard had to work on him vigorously to keep him ahead of Workless, who was finishing fastest at the end and was beaten by only a head.

COMMERCE DEFEATS G. P. O., 3-0, TO TIE PLAY-OFF SERIES

Printers' Hits Scattered by Kearney

Departmental Club Clinches Game in Third Frame.

Deciding Game Monday for Week-Day League's Crown.

COMMERCE DEPARTMENT'S nine came back with a vengeance in the second game yesterday to score a 3-to-0 victory over Government Printing Office on the Ellipse, thus deadlocking the play-off series for the championship of the Week-Day Leagues. Whereas on Thursday Government Printing Office had gotten the better pitching, Commerce yesterday boasted this all-important power, with John Kearney mystifying the Typo batters while turning in his eighth victory.

Kearney let his foes down with five hits in the seven innings of the game, while his mates, though not emulating fence busters, collected six timely blows off Bob Lyons, who toiled in the box for G. P. O.

A two-run attack in the third inning won the game for Commerce to all intents and purposes, the deadly stickwork being contributed by Shapiro and Hessler after two were out.

Shapiro, Hessler Insert Timely Hits.

Kearney drew a pass to start the inning and was sacrificed to second by Gichner, but Povich popped to short and Lyons seemed to be getting out of trouble. Shapiro, however, injected a single, scoring Kearney, and took second on the throw-in, while Hessler followed with another one-baser to propel Shapiro over the plate.

An extra run was manufactured by Commerce in the fifth when Singman tripled to left center and tallied as Lyons threw badly to A. Schneider at the plate on Gichner's squeeze bunt.

Another Commerce uprising was halted by darkness in the seventh.

The series will be concluded on Monday when the third game is scheduled. G. P. O. won the first engagement by a score of 5 to 1.

Eastern Opens Season At Episcopal Today

Eastern High will open its grid season today in Alexandria, when it tackles Episcopal High, rated the best team in this section last year. The odds are heavy in favor of the Virginians, who boast of a good return of 1930 veterans.

Eastern will go into today's battle with four 1930 regulars in the lineup, Capt. Mades, Campbell, Wolf and Palmer. The team is reputed to have a good line, and an untried back field.

Central Beats City College In Debut at Baltimore, 6-0

Ball in Baltimore Territory Most of Time; Lone Score Made by Kocsis on 15-Yard Drive in Third Quarter.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 25.—City College yielded to a superior team from Central High School, of Washington in the opening game of the campaign for both squads tonight at Homewood, the score being 6 to 0. Central had a fine passing offense, with Frank Cumberland, quarter back, hurling the ball to Emmett Buscher, end, for the longest gain. The visitors had the ball in City territory most of the time.

They had advanced to the 1-foot mark, second down, when the first quarter ended. The first play of the second period was a fumble which City recovered. After a punt, another recovered fumble enabled City to transfer play from its own threshold. Faulty judgment on the part of Cumberland, in failing to run the ball out of bounds near the 22-yard line, after some gains, permitted City to take the ball on downs, and the half ended soon after.

Central Loses Ball on 4-Yard Line.

In the third quarter after City kicked off and forced a punt, a return boot was blocked and recovered by Central on the City 20-yard line. In five plays Central reached the 4-yard line, fourth down, and a pass ground-ed in the end zone. City put the ball in play on the 20-yard line after this touchback, waited until fourth down to kick and lost the ball when the pass from Center was high and Yeager had no chance to get the punt away.

The ball reverted to Central on the 15-yard line and Frank Kocsis made 8 through the center of the line, and added another 4 yards for first down on the 3-yard mark. The bucking back then carried the ball over for the touchdown. Cumberland's place kick for the extra point was low.

K. O. VICTORY PREDICTED BY WINE

Ohioan Hopes to Stop Barry in 3 Rounds at Ft. Wash.

FRANKIE WINE, the gift of Barberton, Ohio, to boxing, has predicted he will knock out Reds Barry, Washington's ambitious heavyweight, in Fort Washington's feature bout Monday night. The Ohioan, through his manager, J. R. Basco, sent word to Fort athletic officials yesterday that he expects to stop the Southeast Redhead within three rounds. The bout is listed for eight rounds.

Wine is scheduled to arrive here tomorrow for a final workout. He will do his stuff in the Terminal gymnasium some time during the afternoon.

Barry, who has been in five bouts at the Fort this summer, finishes his training today. His efforts in the past week have been directed to putting more power in his punches.

Sager-Smith Bout Added To Card.

The card for Monday night was completed yesterday with the signing of Soldier Sager and Soldier Smith for a four-rounder. Sager was stopped cold by Fred Shaefer in a terrific slugging match last Monday but did not lose any of his enthusaism for the game.

Much interest centers in the Henry Irving-Jack Pollock semifinal. Irving will be out to avenge the only beating he has suffered since turning professional. Pollock won a decision the last time they met. Irving hopes to win by a knockout.

THREE COLLEGE GRID GAMES HERE TODAY

of three or four touchdowns. The Colonials this year are more nearly identified with the roseate outlook their supporters held for them in 1930

Coach Jim Pixlee, surrounded by the largest staff of assistants any chief mentor in the District can boast, has selected a team composed of holdover regulars and newcomers with which he still is experimenting. He will use every man on his squad unless Shenandoah proves strong enough to keep the best G. W. talent in action.

One other Capital eleven, Catholic University, will open its campaign on foreign soil, the Cardinals being matched with the powerful Boston College Team in the Massachusetts metropolis. On paper Coach Dutch Bergman's combination looks like the only loser among local teams competing today. However, Boston College far outranks any of the opposing teams. Bergman's hope is that Catholic will hold the Eagles to a low score.

Gallaudet College and American University will make their bows next Saturday.

ordered to turn in their suits, and steps were taken to have the matter forgotten immediately.

Other boys going to school at Princeton, who help pay their expenses by acting as correspondents for papers outside of Princeton, were called into conference. They were asked not to write about the incident. They promised not to.

But the news leaked out today and the facts were substantiated by Head Coach Wittmer. There still seems to be a question as to whether the boys, none of them outstanding varsity candidates, would be disqualified for the season or merely suspended for a week.

Hitting —The— Head Pin

ROLLING three consecutive more-than-600 games, the Temple five hit a new high for the young and tender bowling season last night at Lucky Strike, when it nosed out an almost equally brilliant Lucky Strike team in three straight games, 601 to 596, 636 to 557 and 604 to 602.

The scintillating line-up of Megaw, Honey, Wolstenholme, Blackney and Pacini bowled with more than championship form to stow away the excellent combination of Weidman, Daly, McPhilomy, Clarke and Campbell.

Reds Megaw, whose card read 128, 129, 132—389 took individual honors for the night, no mean feat in a field studded with individual stars. Earl McPhilomy, of the losers, looked good with 133, 117, 132—382. Ollie Pacini's 134 game was high.

Daly's unaccountable 93 in his last game cost Luckies their chance to beat the Temps in the third roll. Howard Campbell and Earl McPhilomy rolled 132 apiece and Astor Clarke was little behind with 129, but all of Temple's men were comfortably, but not spectacularly, above 100, and consistency won, by two pins.

The District League will have to go some to produce a better match this year.

Just a shade less spectacular was the National Capital League's evening of maple mashing, also at Lucky Strike. Young & Simon eked out two wins over King's Palace, although beating by 78 pins in the second game. Phillips' game of 151 and Laake's 148 were the highlights.

The 26-team Chesapeake & Potomac Girls League opened last night with generally good scores prevailing. And the old six team Navy Yard loop was among the circuits which pried the lid off during the evening.

Tonight, the 38 teams of the B. Y. P. U. roll for the first time this year. At Lucky Strike.

In another District League match, at King Pin, Hecht Company took it on the nose from King Pin. The teams divided the first two games but in the third King Pin, by virtue of the work of Moore, McGolrick and Logan (104, 105 and 109) eked out a victory, 513 to 504.

Maxie Rosenberg's poor showing, 91, 118, 99, spelled defeat for his Hecht team.

PLAYGROUND NET MATCH IS TIED

Chevy Chase, Rosedale Draw; Junior Title at Stake Today.

DUPLICATING the draw which Burroughs and Georgetown battled to the day before, Chevy Chase and Rosedale yesterday tied each other in their Playground Tennis League play-off on the courts at Chevy Chase grounds. The four singles matches were split, 2—2, and the lone doubles match stood deadlocked at 5—5 in the first set, when darkness intervened.

The impasse was reached in the doubles encounter, in which Stewart Robey and Sam Root, of Chevy Chase, were battling Elvin Shanks and Paul Clements. The match will be completed this morning at 9:30 o'clock.

The junior playground team championship will be decided this morning, beginning at 10:30 o'clock, at Chevy Chase. Burroughs and Georgetown, tied at 2—2 and a set apiece in doubles, will complete their match at 9 o'clock, and the winner will play the winner of the Chevy Chase-Rosedale tie.

Yesterday's feature tussle was the singles match between Paul Clements and Stewart Robey which the former boy won, 6—8, 6—2, 6—1, by virtue of his consistent chop, which eventually upset the more orthodox game of Robey.

SINGLES—Paul Clements (Rosedale), defeated Stewart Robey (Chevy Chase), 6—8, 6—2, 6—1; Sam Root (C. C.), defeated John Daley, 6—1, 6—3; Bud Cline (C. C.), defeated Myer Laskey, 6—3, 6—3; Elvin Shank (R.), defeated John Ray, 6—3, 6—1.

DOUBLES—Robey and Root tied with Shanks and Clements, 5—5 (darkness).

Training School Eleven Bows to Alexandria

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., Sept. 25—Successful in warding off the attack of a smoother team for nearly the full four quarters of the game, National Training School's gridders fell a 7-0 victim to Alexandria High's huskies here today. In the closing minutes of the game today a successful pass from Bruin to Yarter, moved the pigskin from midfield to the 9-yard line, where it was taken across in two rushes, Hudson first and Jennier finally.

Twelve hundred people saw the game. Bruin drop-kicked the extra point.

National Training had just held Alexandria's drive from midfield on their 1-yard line, before the locals uncovered their passing and line-bucking attack.

Alexandria found a dogged foe facing it in the boys from Bladensburg road, and although the ball was generally in the territory of the losing side, the manner in which the Training School line held, in the pinches, was too much for the plunging attacks of the Alexandria backs.

The Training School was held together by the all-around line play of "Whale" Sassone and by the sensational booting of "Chief" Gray. Otherwise the eventual winners excelled in all departments of the game.

Beach's 149 Tops Field In Maryland State Open

Steady Play Gains Title as Pitt and Taylor Falter After Tying for Lead in Morning Round; Most Scores High.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

RALPH BEACH, of the Suburban Club, Baltimore, and formerly connected with the Chevy Chase and Burning Tree clubs in this city, yesterday won the annual open golf tournament of the Maryland State Golf Association. The event was played on the course of the Congressional Country Club, 36 holes, medal play, and Beach's score of 74—75—149 led the field by one stroke. There were nearly 60 entrants.

At the conclusion of the morning round Harry G. Pitt, of the Manor Club and District amateur champion, and Alex Taylor, of the Fountain Head Club, Hagerstown, were in the lead with cards of 73 each. Beach had played the round in 74 and was only one stroke behind despite the fact that he had costly 6s on the fifteenth and the seventeenth holes. No one else seemed to threaten this leadership, for all the rest of the contestants were in the high 70s.

Pitt Adds Six Strokes In Afternoon.

Every one who knows anything about a medal play golf tournament, however, knows that in the final round anything may happen, and yesterday's event proved no exception to the rule. Pitt's afternoon round was 79, six holes higher than in the morning, and Taylor's card mounted to 77. In the meantime, Beach's steadiness proved his salvation. His afternoon round, 75, was only one stroke worse than his forenoon effort.

Archie Clark, assistant professional at the Congressional Club, with 76—74—150, tied for second prize with Taylor, 73—77—150, and each of them sorrowfully recalled the missed shot which kept him from landing in first position. Prize money was distributed to ten professionals, and in addition to Beach, Clark and Taylor, the following shared in the purse: George Diffenbaugh, Indian Spring; Glenn Spencer, Maryland Country Club; Cliff Spencer, Forest Park; Gene Larkin, Chevy Chase; Al Treder, Manor; Fred McLeod, Columbia, and Robert T. Barnett, Chevy Chase. Professionals with cards of 155 and over were outside the breastworks.

While Pitt did not add the title of Maryland open champion to the many which he already holds, he had the satisfaction of leading all the amateurs who competed. His score of 73—79—152 was four strokes better than the 79—77—156, which gave second prize to Thomas W. Sasscer, of the Maryland club.

Scores High Despite Good Weather.

Although the day was ideal, with comfortable temperature and little wind, the scores were generally high, a notable exception being the 71 turned in by Glenn Spencer in the afternoon, two under par. This was the best individual round of the day. Diffenbaugh's afternoon card at first also totaled 71, but when he checked it over, he found that he had been credited with a par 3 on the sixteenth green when, as a matter of fact, he had holed out in 4 with three putts. President Robert McLean, jr., Edgar A. Peppler, first vice president, and other officials of the association managed the affair successfully. The cards of the three leaders and the scores were:

"Boob" McNair, Country Boy, May Be Series Hero

but the ukulele in the Athletics' infield, and not long ago he earned his varsity letter when he hit a home run off Wes Ferrell, of the Indians, to win a game o' ball. George Earnshaw, who was pitching that game, says the Boob's home run put him over that day.

The Boob is only 20 years old, and in his first year up, only one year out of his home town, he found himself earning more income than the wealthiest aristocrats of the Meridian Social Register. Yet, although each semimonthly salary check represented the annual income of a fairly fortunate and respectable family man down home, he was coming to the pay days of every month broke.

Earnshaw, who is a kind of financial adviser to most of the Athletics, then set him down and put him on a budget. The budget eliminated bets, card games and expensive new suits, and it looks as if his world series money will go into one of those pension policies which the insurance companies are selling to the prosperous athletes these days.

McNair weighs only 150 pounds and he is full of jiggle and bounce in the field and on

STOCKS' RALLY ENDS DAY OF FLUCTUATING

Selected Issues Record Gain of 1.9 Points in Late Active Market.

New York, Sept 25 (A.P.).—Stocks flopped about in great confusion today, but finally pulled a rally out of the fire. Speculative sentiment shifted frequently, giving the market three distinct advances and two declines as professional traders changed their minds in accordance with the moving tide of rumor.

The only permanent upturn came in the last hour when it was widely reported that further action against short selling might be taken at the suggestion of banking circles. This met with denial in important banking sources, where it was reiterated that short selling is an essential to a free and open market.

The closing, a point or so under the best prices, was 1.9 points higher, according to the averages. A few issues rallied 3 to 6, but in general active stocks had to be satisfied with quotations 1 to 2 higher. Sales of 2,904,839 shares were a little smaller than yesterday's.

New Lows Forced.

Heavy selling in the morning, coincident with the rise in the Federal Reserve Bank's bill buying rate, brought new lows for a number of leading issues, including American Telephone, Bethlehem, Eastman, Allied Chemical, North American, Du Pont, Consolidated Gas and Procter & Gamble. Coca Cola had a bad break.

At the close, Allied Chemical, Consolidated Gas, General Motors, General Electric, National Biscuit, Westinghouse, Royal Dutch, Loew's and Kennecott were up 1 to 2 net, while U. S. Steel and American Can showed gains of more than 2. Telephone, gyrating in a 6 point range and down to 135 at the bottom, was up 3⅜ on the day. Atchison advanced 7¾, but fell back slightly from the top.

Norfolk & Western's rise was 6. Eastman Kodak fully recovered a break of more than 4. Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Radio and Union Carbide firmed moderately.

Legion Helps Market.

The American Legion's stand against the bonus helped give the market a more confident appearance during the first hour, but this wore off under the effects of wide variations in foreign exchanges and an unfounded report that a large Paris bank had failed.

There was a vigorous, though brief, rally early in the afternoon after the exchange issued a new regulation on short selling, requiring a daily statement on all short sales covered the day made. The market finally turned definitely higher when it was reported that a few traders had been warned against bear raids.

Sterling, feeling the absence of support, was very weak in the early dealings but rallied briskly. Opening at $3.45 it advanced to $3.79¼ and closed at $3.74 for a net loss of 8 cents. Scandinavian moneys were again soft and there was also some pressure against Holland.

Bankers' Acceptances Quiet.

The bankers' acceptance market was quiet compared with Thursday's activity. By following the price reduction made by dealers yesterday the reserve bank came to the assistance of banks and other holders and added to the credit supply. The central bank acted, however, only after all offerings had been absorbed. Since the reserve holds bills to maturity it faces no losses.

Weekly trade reviews said warm weather had retarded seasonal distribution and that the upsets in the financial markets had also adversely affected buying. It is still too early, Bradstreet's observed, to notice any actual effects of the British gold suspension, although Dun's pointed out that higher prices on some important lines of foreign goods were likely when the confusion has subsided.

Silver was strong, reflecting lively speculation. Wheat closed with small changes, mostly gains, while corn advanced ¼ to ⅞ on small receipts and large shipments. Cotton was erratic, but reduced $1 losses to a range of 30 to 65 cents net declines.

BOND PRICES LOWER IN IRREGULAR SALES

Market Is Strong and Weak in Turns With Lighter Exchange Turnover.

New York, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—The bond market was strong and weak by turns today and closed irregularly lower. Trading on the stock exchange aggregated $17,894,000, which was some $8,000,000 below yesterday's total.

United States Treasury and Liberty loans opened quiet and moved upward during the first hour, as did many other issues. Thereafter trading increased and closing prices were generally lower. Sales of these issues exceeded $3,000,000. The new Treasury 3s of 1951-55 contributed more than one-third of this total, and they closed at a new bottom price since their recent admission to trading. Some other members of this group reached new lows also.

Activity among other issues was general, but selling pressure was more noticeable in some instances than others. Among the foreign obligations Belgian 6s of 1955, French 7s of 1949, Swedish 5½s of 1954, and Milan 6½s experienced sales of more than $100,000 each and closed with losses of more than 1 to about 8 points. However, some of these and other active bonds closed higher than the day's lows.

United Kingdom 5½s were the most active issue of the foreign group and closed fractionally higher. German 5½s and 7s gained 1 point each. Japanese 6½s of 1954 were unusually active and gained 1 point. The decline was general, but not universal.

Authentic but unofficial advices from Tokyo reported that authorities of the government and the Bank of Japan had not even considered going off the gold standard as had been widely reported.

Railroad issues stiffened in the late trading, and the more representative bonds closed generally higher. Both issues of Erie refunding and improvement 5s, Baltimore & Ohio 4½s of 1960, several issues of the Missouri Pacific and St. Louis San Francisco 4½s of 1978 closed with net gains exceeding 1 point after an active turnover.

Industrial and public utility loans were generally lower, but the losses of the former were larger on the whole than the latter.

CONFERENCE ASKS SHELTON GET POST FOR ANOTHER YEAR

Action of Mt. Vernon Church Precedes Reception to Absolved Pastor.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY AND FETE ON SAME DAY

Resolution Urging Retention Sent to Bishop; Will Preach Twice Tomorrow.

A request that the Rev. Dr. William A. Shelton be returned to the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church for another year, was forwarded last night to Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon, presiding officer of the Baltimore Annual Conference, by the quarterly conference of the Mount Vernon Place Church.

Action of the conference, which also urged that the Rev. Dr. Haskell R. Deal be returned as assistant pastor, preceded by a few minutes an elaborate reception in honor of Dr. Shelton, who Thursday was acquitted by an ecclesiastical court of charges brought by Miss Carrie A. Williams, his former secretary.

Receive $140 Gift.

The occasion marked the thirty-first wedding anniversary of Dr. and Mrs. Shelton. Thomas D. Gannaway, who presided at the exercises, presented them with a purse of $140 in gold. Huge baskets of flowers were presented to Dr. and Mrs. Shelton, their children, Fred and Hadley Shelton and Mrs. Mildred Stokes, and Dr. and Mrs. Deal.

Following a program that lasted until nearly midnight, Dr. Shelton told The Post that any action that might be taken against another pastor as a result of his acquittal, will be entirely up to Bishop Mouzon.

"We will not suggest it," he said.

Dr. Shelton's counsel during his three-day trial in Alexandria, Va., the Rev. Dr. H. H. Sherman, head of religious education work for the church in Washington; the Rev. Dr. J. J. Reeves, of the Francis Asbury Church, and Attorney Raymond B. Dickey, made brief addresses.

Praying and Watching.

Dr. Sherman told members of the congregation he believed counsel had "Divine guidance" in their defense of the case. He said he believed the prayers of the congregation had much to do with the acquittal.

"It was a case of spiritual mathematics, where two times two sometimes make more than four," said Dr. Reeves. "In such cases two can put ten thousand to flight."

Mr. Dickey, civil defense counsel, who was not permitted in the courtroom, said:

"While others were praying we were watching. There were some situations over in Alexandria that needed watching. I believe in prayer, but I also believe the Lord helps those who help themselves."

Pastor Deeply Moved.

The congregation frequently during the evening burst into applause. A petition similar to the resolution adopted earlier by the quarterly conference was circulated among those present.

Following presentation of the purse, which was handed to Mrs. Shelton, Dr. Shelton made a short address, thanking the members of the congregation for their loyalty.

Faltering a little at the start, he said: "I would give anything to have the vocabulary to say what I want."

He ended by declaring there had always been "three certainties" in his life.

One Dissenting Vote.

"I never have doubted that Almighty God can forgive all sins," he said. "I never have doubted my call to the church. And I never have raised the question of whether or not I married the right woman."

He said he "willingly would lay down his life" for those who had come to his support, and declared he believed a "deeper spirituality" had come to the church because of the incident.

In the resolution forwarded to Bishop Mouzon, the quarterly conference declared progress of the church "will be endangered and much harm will be done if there is any change in the pastorate." Another year under the leadership of Dr. Shelton and Dr. Deal, it was stated, will result in "the placing of our church in the forefront of metropolitan churches."

"We believe it is the sincere desire of not less than 90 per cent of our active membership that no change should be made," read the resolution, which received only one dissenting vote.

Two Sermons Tomorrow.

Dr. Shelton will deliver two sermons tomorrow at the church.

At 11 o'clock he will speak on "The Cross," and at 7 o'clock tomorrow night he will deliver another sermon, on "All the Way."

An invitation yesterday was extended to all visitors to the city to attend services at "Southern Methodism's representative church."

The usual Sunday school classes will be held at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, and young people's services are scheduled for 7 p. m.

Youth Freed in Shooting Charged With Robbery

Charged with robbery, Harry V. Hazel, 19 years old, was arraigned in Police Court yesterday and was ordered held for the grand jury under $1,500 bond. He is alleged to have snatched the pocketbook of Mrs. Nettie Skinner, 1348 Euclid street northwest, at Fifth and Concord streets northwest August 27.

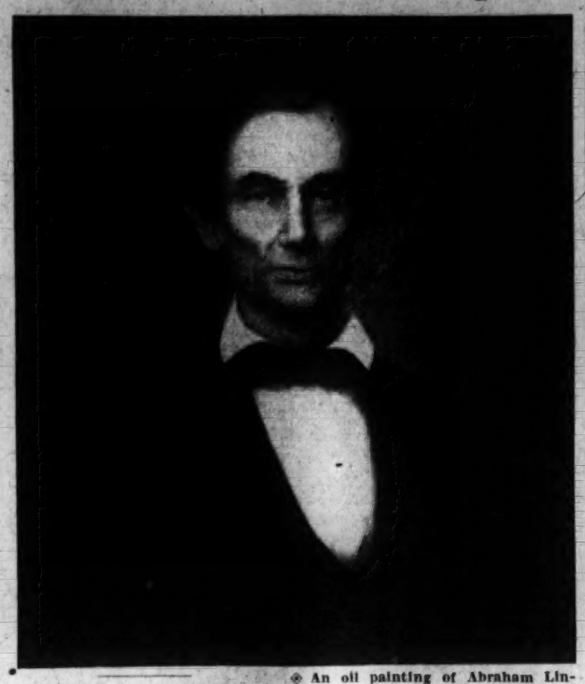
Detective Elmer Lewis, of the Thirteenth precinct, arrested the boy September 17. Police say he is the youth who shot his stepfather, Harvey Lowe, some time ago in an altercation in an apartment house on R street northwest. The grand jury refused to indict him on the ground that he was defending his mother at the time of the shooting.

Woman Is Overcome By Gas in Her Home

Mrs. Frank J. Hughes, 29, was overcome yesterday by gas escaping from a leaky valve in her home at 3010 Forty-fifth street northwest.

After receiving first-aid treatment by the rescue squad she was removed to Emergency Hospital, where her condition was said to be fair.

Portrait Chosen by Lincoln May Be Brought to Capital



An oil painting of Abraham Lincoln done by George Frederick Wright in 1860 from life. The picture was purchased by Lincoln and presented to friends. Plans are under way to bring it here.

Especially Posed Picture of Emancipator Held His Best Likeness.

An especially posed portrait in oils of Abraham Lincoln, which was so admired by the Emancipator that he purchased it himself, it being the only time that he bestowed this honor on the work of any artist, has been uncovered in Springfield, Ill., and plans are at the present time under way to bring it to Washington for an exhibition within the near future.

The picture, which is considered to be a remarkable likeness of Lincoln, was painted in 1860 by George Frederick Wright, one of the best-known portrait painters of the time. Mr. Wright was one of 20 artists who painted the President in the old legislative hall at Springfield, shortly after he had been nominated for the presidency. Due to the pressure of Government business, Lincoln could not allow each artist a private sitting, so consented to pose for all every morning while he opened his mail.

When the several works were completed they were all exhibited, and Lincoln, together with some of his friends, chose Mr. Wright's picture for presentation to the Butler family of Springfield, his intimate friends since early boyhood.

Chief among the outstanding characteristics of the portrait is the accurate reproduction of Lincoln's peculiar grey eyes. When officials of the State of Illinois saw the picture they were so enthusiastic over the likeness that they commissioned Mr. Wright to paint the portraits of thirteen governors of the State. These pictures now hang in the governor's office of the statehouse at Springfield.

The canvas is in an excellent state of preservation, never having been restored and showing no signs whatever of deterioration. The authenticity of the picture is supported by a series of affidavits and statements by members of the Butler family and other old residents of Springfield.

It is now the property of a Springfield citizen and plans to bring it to Washington for an exhibition are being undertaken by Fraser S. Gardner, of 1420 K street northwest.

LEARNED RESIGNS SCHOOL BOARD POST

Higher Pay Attracts Him to West Coast; Woman May Succeed.

In a brief letter to the justices of the District Supreme Court yesterday, Dr. Henry Barrett Learned, president of the Board of Education of the District and a member for almost eleven years, tendered his resignation, to take effect at once. The letter was addressed to the justices because it was they who appointed him, and they will have to select some one to fill the vacancy.

Dr. Learned indicated the reason for his resignation was that he had been offered a position as acting professor of history at Leland Stanford University in California. The position will occupy his time from October 1 to April of next year, and because of the shortness of time Dr. Learned had left the city before news of his pending resignation was discovered.

Appointed to the board in July, 1917, Dr. Learned served until September, 1921. He was reappointed July 1, 1925, and last June was tendered another reappointment that would have run until July 1, 1934.

Mrs. Smith May Get Job.

Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith is now the vice president of the Board of Education and will serve as the directing head until the next meeting, which is scheduled for October 7. It is possible that she will be elected president and thus become the first woman ever to head the school board.

In his letter of resignation Dr. Learned explained that the appointment to Stanford came very much as a surprise to him. He said that school board work was "in various ways stimulating and liberalizing." His departure was not known until formal school papers were delivered at his home after he had gone and Mrs. Learned notified school officials that her husband had gone to California.

In his letter of resignation Dr. Learned said:

Reason for Change.

"It is with some degree of regret that I find it necessary at this time to resign as a member of the Board of Education of the District of Columbia. In June, 1931, I was renominated to the board for a term of three years, from July 1. Very recently and unexpectedly I was asked to serve as acting professor of history at Stanford University, Calif., from October 1, 1931, to April, 1932.

"Both financial and professional reasons have made it important that I accept this position. I have accordingly done so, and am obliged to leave Washington about September 25 for a period of at least six months.

"It is only fair to the citizens of the District, and to my fellow members of the board, and to the appointing power that I now give notice of my wish to retire. For nearly eleven years, with an interval, December, 1921, to July 1, 1925, I acted as a member of the board. I surrender my place with some degree of regret, for the work has been in various ways stimulating and liberalizing."

Gambling Charge Dropped.

Frank Saffrell, arrested at 1417 Irving street northwest on a gambling charge, was released yesterday when Assistant United States Attorney Adams refused to issue papers. He said police testified no gambling was going on at the time of the raid.

SANATORIUM START URGED TO HELP IDLE

Commissioners to Be Asked to Authorize $625,000 Project Undertaken.

An immediate start on construction of the new Children's Sanatorium as a move to provide jobs for the thousands of workers who will be required to complete the $625,000 project, will be urged upon the District Commissioners today, it was decided yesterday by the medical subcommittee of the Commissioners' sanatorium committee.

Reversing previous plans calling for erection of the nurses' home as the first step in construction of the sanatorium, the medical group yesterday decided at a meeting in the District Building that the prime need is for the main hospital building, and the Commissioners will be asked to revise the building program to provide for completion of that structure at the earliest possible date.

Final plans for the sanatorium can be ready for approval by the Commissioners within a week, the committee was told by representatives of the municipal architect's office, which was requested to draw and submit the plans at once. The sum of $300,000 already has been appropriated to provide for starting construction, and the Commissioners' committee has been authorized by Congress to contract immediately for the entire $625,000 job.

Those present at yesterday's meeting included Mrs. Ernest R. Grant, president of the District Tuberculosis Association; Dr. William C. Fowler, District health officer; Dr. Joseph Murphy, chief medical inspector; George E. Wilson, superintendent of the Board of Public Welfare; Joseph Peabody, Thomas B. Kidner, of New York, consulting architect engaged by the sanatorium committee, and representatives of the municipal architect's office. The sanatorium is to be built on Defense highway, about 8 miles past the District line.

Leap From Cab Causes Fatal Injuries to Man

Chester Marshall, 49 years old, of 613 H street northwest, died in Gallinger Hospital last night from injuries received late Thursday when he leaped from a moving taxicab near his home.

For several hours he lay unidentified in the hospital, where he was taken by police after he chose to jump from a taxi rather than pay his fare. The identification was made by his wife, who went to the First Police Precinct to report his disappearance.

Foundling Wins Hearts Of Gallinger Nurses

His loss of identity is proving utterly inconsequential to "John Doe," the 5-months-old youngster who was deserted in the arms of Miss Margaret McLain, of 1111 Thirteenth street northwest, by an unknown attractive young woman in the Union Bus Terminal Thursday.

John is said by the nurses at Gallinger Municipal Hospital, where he is waiting to be claimed by his parents or adopted, to have one of the most cheerful dispositions of any baby ever brought to the institution. His blue-eyed smile, his fuzzy blond hair, and his chubby plumpness have endeared him to the entire staff, and the nurses are at a loss to understand how any mother could have brought herself to abandon so wonderful an infant.

SHERMAN BROTHERS ARE INDICTED AGAIN BY REVAMPED JURY

Action Is Pushed Through to Defeat Operation of Time Limit.

THIRD DEGREE CASES HEAD OCTOBER LISTS

Police Investigation Held at Standstill to Await Further Report.

For the second time this term the grand jury returned a special report indicting the Sherman brothers in order to beat the statute of limitation by just one day. The case may turn into a test for legality of the revamped jury, acting in reindicting persons who had previously been brought before 21 of its members.

The necessity for another bit of hasty action in the case arose through disqualification of Henry L. Johnson, a Government pensioner.

The brothers, James W. and Alpheus J. Sherman, were first indicted on four counts of embezzlement on August 26, 1931, to beat the statute of limitations on two of the counts by one day. These two counts were voided when Mr. Johnson was disqualified as a juror.

Second Check Is Basis.

The men are accused of taking two checks for $600 each from Miss Jessie Holt, employe of Children's Hospital. Miss Holt said that the men planned a world tour and that she gave them the checks, dated August 7 and September 27, 1928, to pay expenses on the trip, which never materialized. The action yesterday was operative only on the check alleged to have been written September 27, 1928.

Another indictment returned in the special report of the grand jury charged Edgar M. Smith, of Harrisonburg, Va., with nonsupport.

Employes of the United States Attorney's office were busy yesterday poring over the 179 indictments which were voided by the discovery that Mr. Johnson was drawing money from the Government. Cases in which the statute of limitations will soon apply will be presented first before the October grand jury which will attempt to undo the damage when it convenes on the 6th of the month.

The cases involving the Police Department worked up by the Department of Justice during its investigation of Washington police methods and use of the third degree here, will also be among the first to come before the new jury.

It is desired to get reindictments in these cases as soon as possible because the investigation is at a standstill until the jury takes action. J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, cannot make his special report concerning the facts his men uncovered until the cases are out of the jury's hands.

The District Commissioners are awaiting this report before taking any steps which would affect the Police Department.

Ignoramuses Also Voided.

While the indictments returned by the July grand jury were voided through the recent muddle, Leo A. Rover, United States attorney, indicated yesterday that instances in which ignoramuses were found would again be presented when the new jury is convened.

Thus, he said, the jury had ignored house breaking charges against James Henry Harker, whose accusations that First Precinct policemen beat him with a rubber hose to gain a confession started the third degree investigation. They will be brought before the new jury.

This would be no attempt to place Harker in further jeopardy, Mr. Rover said, and no particular effort would be made to bring the case up, but that in all likelihood action would be taken to rehear cases similar to his because the ignoramuses found by the July jury are just as illegal as the indictments.

PARK AND PLANNING GROUP AND GUESTS DISCUSS PROJECTS

Postpone Plane and Auto Trip Over Nearby Area to Study Topography.

COMMISSIONS SOUGHT TO COORDINATE WORK

Discussions Are Continued as Members Attend Dinner at Country Club.

Members of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, together with trustees of the George Washington Memorial Parkway and officials of Arlington and Fairfax Counties and the City of Alexandria, met informally last night at the Army and Navy Country Club to discuss ways and means to cooperate in the furtherance of the parkway project and other interlocking business.

Afternoon plans for the combined groups to go over the proposed parkway route were abandoned when it was found that many of the trustees could not be present. It was originally planned for the members of the commission to drive over the ground and then to view it from an airplane, but this idea was postponed until a later date.

Chief among the subjects discussed last night at the dinner was the means by which the Virginia localities can obtain a single and cooperated representation in the transaction of the business, especially as it relates to the Washington Memorial Parkway.

Must Match Appropriation.

Under the provisions of the law passed by Congress appropriating money for the project it is necessary for the State governments to provide an equal sum of money to that given by National Government. The program for the raising of this sum, which will approach $6,000,000, was discussed briefly.

It is hoped that the counties and Alexandria will create a commission similar to the one now operating in Maryland, which gives representation to both Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties in the handling of business of this nature. The Ball act of the Virginia Legislature, passed at its last session, was designed to help bring into existence a body to fulfill this purpose.

As the proposed trip over the Washington Memorial Parkway was not taken yesterday afternoon, the park and planning commission continued its meetings throughout the day.

Taft Bridge Action Delayed.

Action on the small plot of ground at the south end of the Taft Bridge was held over until today, when several members of the group expressed a desire to go over the property again and study it in detail.

The commission had a preliminary discussion on the use of the ground at Fort Washington. This property will eventually be turned over by the War Department for use as a southern terminal on the Maryland side of the Washington Memorial Parkway.

Four major highway changes in the District were presented by the Commissioners and approved by the park commission. As hearings were held on these last week before the Commissioners, the action taken yesterday was final and the changes will go into effect.

These changes involve an extension of Michigan avenue in Northeast through the Arboretum grounds, the rearrangement of two street projects in Northeast Washington near the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and the readjustment of the highway and street plan at Broad Branch road on the Ellicott speedway, in order to better conform with the topography.

Robbery of Home Reported.

Gene Rushing, of 1000 Rittenhouse street northwest, told police yesterday his room was entered and a $35 gold watch, a $10 chain and a knife valued at $5 were removed from a dresser drawer.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Elmer Twitchell on Reopening the Breweries.

ELMER TWITCHELL is all "het" up over the campaign to legalize the opening of breweries as an aid to economic recovery in the almost United States. "If Congress does anything about opening the breweries, I want to know what it's going to do about compensating the public for all the money it has put into home brew apparatus and gadgets during the last ten years," declared Elmer.

• • • •

"Millions of Americans have spent the last decade building up elaborate brewing plants in their own cellars, and now, just when the homes of Americans are what might be called perfectly equipped, there is talk of opening the breweries!" exclaimed Elmer. "Is that fair?"

• • • •

"THE American public's investment in crocks, kegs, barrels, firkins, jugs, bungs, bottles, corking devices, bottling apparatus, yeast, hops, recipes, corks, metal caps and what not must run into the billions," continued Mr. Twitchell. "It staggered me today when I sat down and tried to figure up what I had spent since prohibition on equipment to make my own beer. There's hardly a day that I don't drop in at some store and buy some new gadget that's supposed to be a first aid to the home brewer.

• • • •

"Would it be square to me or to millions of other Americans to throw open the breweries now and make all this equipment so much junk? Is it just to ask the average man to use his cellar merely as a place to keep coal, wood and canned fruits again?

• • • •

"And another thing—has anybody stopped to think that while the opening of breweries might give employment to millions, it would throw more millions out of employment, especially night employment? How about the crock, jug, second-hand bottle and strainer salesmen? How about all the extra clerks that have been put on since 1919 to meet the demand for yeast, funnels, cheesecloth and first aids to fermentation?

• • • •

"There's this thing Congress should remember, too. There are hundreds of thousands of unemployed people in this country who are not generally known to be unemployed. Why? Because they are down in their cellars making or tending the home brew. They've been laid off at the shop and have been using the time to make more beer.

• • • •

"IF you threw open the big breweries today these men would come swarming out of cellars from coast to coast, increasing by many millions the best Federal estimates of unemployed. It would just about flabbergast the Nation.

• • • •

"Why, home brewing is keeping a lot of fellers from even realizing that they're out of work," concluded Elmer.

• • • •

ONE WAY OF LIFTING THE DEPRESSION.

What business needs more than anything else are some salesmen and saleswomen who don't seem quite so bored when customers want a little attention.

National Anthem Published Here 117 Years Ago Today

Paper Lauded Principles and Talents of Author, Then Unknown.

By RALEIGH BUZZARD.

One hundred and seventeen years ago today the immortal poem of Francis Scott Key, which is now America's national anthem, "The Star-Spangled Banner," first appeared in a Washington newspaper. It was on September 26, 1814, that the words were first published in the Daily National Intelligencer.

The editor did not know the name of the author and little did he suspect that the song would ring down through the ages, but he did pay a tribute to the then unknown author by saying the lines did "equal honor to his principles and his talents."

The circumstances under which the song was composed were related in an article which had appeared a few days previously in a Baltimore paper and the National Intelligencer, of this city, reprinted that story and all the verses of the song in its issue of September 26, 1814, as follows:

"FROM A BALTIMORE PAPER."

"The annexed song was composed under the following circumstances—a gentleman had left Baltimore, in a flag of truce for the purpose of getting released from the British Fleet, a friend of his, who had been captured at Marlborough. He went as far as the mouth of the Patuxent, and was not permitted to return lest the intended attack on Baltimore be disclosed.

"He was therefore brought up the bay to the mouth of the Patapsco, where the flag vessel was kept under the guns of a frigate, and he was compelled to witness the bombardment of Fort McHenry, which the admiral had boasted that he would carry within a few hours, and that the city must fall. He watched the flag at the fort through the whole day with an anxiety that can be better felt than described, until the night prevented him from seeing it.

"In the night he watched the bombshells, and at early dawn his eye was again greeted by the proudly waving flag of his country.

Tune—To Anacreon in Heaven.

O! say can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming,
Whose broad stripes and bright stars
Through the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watch'd were so gallantly streaming?
And the rocket's red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there,
O; say, does that Star-Spangled Banner yet wave,
O'er the land of the free, and the home of the brave?

On the shore, dimly seen, through the mists of the deep,
Where the foe's haughty host in dread silence reposes,
What is that, which the breeze o'er the towering steep,
As it fitfully blows, half conceals, half discloses?
Now it catches the gleam of the morning's first beam,
In full glory reflected now shines on the stream.
'Tis the Star-Spangled Banner, O! long may it wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

And where is that band who so vauntingly swore,
That the havoc of war and the battle's confusion
A home and a country should leave us no more?
Their blood has washed out their foul footsteps pollution.
No refuge could save the hireling and slave,
From the terror of flight or the gloom of the grave:
And the Star-Spangled Banner in triumph doth wave,
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

O! thus be it ever when freemen shall stand,
Between their loved home, and the war's desolation,
Blest with Victory and peace, may the Heav'n rescued land,
Praise the power that hath made and preserved us a Nation!
Then conquer we must, when our cause it is just,
And this be our motto: "In God is our Trust!"
And the Star-Spangled Banner in triumph shall wave,
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

"Whoever is the author of those lines, they do equal honor to his principles and his talents."

To those critical Americans who contend that the lines of Key are not suitable for an American anthem and that the tune to the older English song, "Anacreon in Heaven," are inappropriate it might be pointed out that the "Anacreon" must have been a popular air at the time or thereabout.

And it should be of added interest to all Americans, critical or otherwise, that no less noted literary light of that day than Thomas Paine had considered the air appropriate to carry patriotic verse, for Paine himself had, fifteen years before Key penned his verse, written a patriotic song called "Adams and Liberty," set to the same tune of "Anacreon in Heaven." This song of Paine's was sung at the anniversary meeting of the Massachusetts Charitable Fire Society in Boston on June 1, 1798. It was published and sold by "G. Gilfort at his Musical Magazine, No. 177 Broadway." A copy may be seen in a glass case on display on the second floor of the Library of Congress.

The melody of "To Anacreon in Heaven" and the words were composed by an Englishman, John Stafford Smith (1750-1836) in about the year 1775.

HISTORY RECALLED IN PRINCE WILLIAM

Crowds Celebrate at Unveiling of Marker on Site of First Courthouse.

Reinforced by a throng of visitors from Washington and other nearby cities, more than 1,000 citizens of Prince William County, Virginia, and contiguous counties marched on old Colchester, now Woodbridge, yesterday to witness the unveiling of a marker on the Richmond-Fredericksburg highway marking the site of the first courthouse erected in Prince William County, occupied for the first time in 1731.

The marker, which is of native stone, bearing a bronze tablet, was the gift of Wade Hampton Ellis, Washington attorney, now master of the ancestral and historical Rippon Lodge nearby, who was present at the unveiling, which followed a series of historical pageantry by the school children of the county, under the direction of Miss Beatrix Clark, rural school supervisor.

The day's exercises were held on the lawns of Mrs. Corbin Thompson, owner of the old Mason tract, on which the first courthouse stood.

Following a concert by the band from the Marine Barracks at Quantico, the history of Prince William County was revealed in pageant.

The marker then was unveiled. Mrs. Corbin Thompson released the flag, and J. Lindsay Dawson, chairman of the Board of Supervisors of Prince William County, accepted the gift on behalf of the people of the county.

The afternoon exercises got under way at 2:15 o'clock with the singing of patriotic airs, after which various phases of history of the community were unfolded by prominent speakers. H. Thornton Davies, of Manassas, acting as master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Ellis, who told many stories of the history of Prince William from its birth in 1730 up to the present time.

Representative Howard W. Smith lauded the donor and the people of the county for their interest in the revival of historical events in the life of the section. Charles C. Carlin, former representative of the Eighth Congressional District, touched on the early and more recent history of the community, while C. C. Callahan, historian of Alexandria, and Dr. H. J. Eckenrode also spoke. The exercises concluded with ensemble singing of old Virginia songs.

Windows Smashed By Dynamite Blast

Explosion on Excavation Job Hurls Rocks; Cars Damaged.

A dynamite explosion on an excavation job at 3420 Connecticut avenue, yesterday afternoon, resulted in considerable damage to automobiles and stores in the immediate vicinity, when tons of rock and earth were hurled into the air with unexpected force which was said to have been caused by a seam in the bedrock.

No pedestrians were in the danger zone when the explosion occurred. Plate glass windows were broken in the Woodley Flower Shop at 3415, the sub post office at 3417, the Sanitary Cleaners at 3419, Kohler's Radio Store, 3403 and the Thomas Clark Plumbing Co., 3407, all Connecticut avenue.

Windows and windshields in a dozen autos, which were parked in the vicinity, were also smashed. Several large rocks were thrown through the front door of the Washington Mechanics & Savings Bank, damaging some of the furniture inside.

GEORGETOWN PLANS FOOTBALL GAME AS AID TO UNEMPLOYED

University Will Donate Its Share of Money to U. S. Relief Committee.

NEW COLLEGE BUILDING MAY ALSO BE ERECTED

Would Provide Jobs for Big Group; Institution Is Helping Workmen.

A benefit football game and the erection of a new recitation and science building on the Hilltop campus are being projected by Georgetown University as definite contributions toward the relief of the unemployment situation this winter, Dr. W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., announced at a student assemblage yesterday, marking the opening of the academic term.

The decision of the Georgetown authorities to donate the proceeds of one of its largest football games was made, Dr. Nevils said, in compliance with a request from Owen D. Young, of the President's Organization for Unemployment Relief, in line with similar requests being made of universities throughout the country.

Dr. Nevils is arranging the details with the Athletic Association and expects soon to be able to designate the specific game.

Hopes to Erect Building.

In this connection he said he hoped to be able to announce within a few days plans for the erection of a new college building this winter in furtherance of the university's building program. Because of unemployment in the building trades, he said the Georgetown authorities were determined to press the building program during the coming year, as they had succeeded in doing, at considerable sacrifice, during the last year and a half of the general business depression.

During this period, Dr. Nevils said, the university gave steady employment to 275 workmen in connection with the construction of Copley Hall and other improvements. This summer 57 additional workmen were kept employed in the construction of tennis courts, roadways, landscaping and other improvements on the college campus, he said.

Medals Are Awarded.

At the academic exercises, medals and prizes were awarded to 18 students, including three from the District of Columbia. The local boys were Louis C. Kaplan, Ralph F. Koebel and J. Loren Freund.

The Horace Medal for the best oral examination in 20 selected odes of Horace was awarded to Kaplan. The Kidwell Medal for having made the best average in physics was awarded to Koebel, while Freund received the prize for the best one-act play submitted by a member of the freshman English class.
